DEFY BONUS VETO IN SENATE

AIR MAIL ISSUE SUBJECT OF HOT SENATE DEBATE

Action on Contracts Hit, Defended.

BY JOHN HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—Violent debate over the air mail issue broke out upon the senate floor today.

The word from the countryside was that President Roosevelt put his foot into it two weeks ago when he approved cancelation of all air mail contracts. And the Republican side of the upper house fired eagerly at this first chink in the President's armor of popularity.

The deaths of army mail flyers were blamed, in bitter words, upon the haste of the President and Postmaster General Farley to oust the private mail carriers on charges of fraud and collusion without giving them an opportunity for a hearing and the army corps time to prepare.

Robinson Opens Attack.

Senator Arthur R. Robinson [Rep., Ind.] opened the attack by asserting that there was no defense to be made for the President's "high handed procedure."

"There is no defense," he shouted, "for depriving thousands of workers in the air industry of employment or for sending the brave pilots of the army to their death."

In a moment Republicans and Democrats were snapping at each other as vindictively as they did in the house last week when the emergency bill to authorize the army service was in process of passage.

Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.] cited the crash of the United Air Lines plane in Utah with the loss of eight lives, and wanted to know whether it was not as reasonable to blame this disaster on the Republican administrations during which the contracts for commercial and mail flying were let.

"Not at all," countered Senator Robinson. "Those in the passenger plane went of their own volition. The army flyers were ordered to take the air."

Contracts Called Fraudulent.

"The contracts let by Former Postmaster General Brown were fraudulent and corrupt," cried Senator McKellar. "The President had the power to do what he did. He acted lawfully."

"All the more reason for him to be fair," declared the Indiana Republican.

Senator L. J. Dickinson [Rep., Ia.] got into it, saying that if the contracts were fraudulent, the Democrats had had power to amend them at any time. Senator Robinson asserted that Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, after flying from the Pacific coast to Newark in 13 hours, had been scheduled to broadcast, but had been cut off the air by orders from Washington.

Senator Pat McCarran [Dem., Nev.], member of the special air mail committee, whose investigations loosed the present storm, pitched into it. So did Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.]. Charges flew back and forth across the aile dividing the two parties.

Loss of Life Cited.

"No arguments can get around the fact that six army aviators have been killed and 12 planes destroyed," Senator Robinson broke in. "When he canceled these contracts without giving the operators a chance to be heard, he committed an act more high handed than Stalin or any other dictator has attempted in this era of dictatorships."

Senator McKellar made a bitter attack upon former Postmaster General Brown, who was a witness all last week before the committee of investigation and who is scheduled to appear again tomorrow. He likened him to Harry M. Daugherty, attorney general under Harding, declared the evidence was clear that Mr. Brown had countenanced fraud and collusion in awarding the mail contracts, and said Mr. Brown had "brought his great office into shame and disrepute."

The Republican cabinet officer was vigorously defended by his friend and fellow Ohioan, Senator Simeon D. Fess [Rep., O.], who asserted no evidence of fraud had been brought out by the committee.

Long Has His Say.

It remained for Senator Huey Long [Dem., La.] to ease the tension. It was the "Kingfish's" opportunity to flout Mr. Farley, who has used the patronage club to punish the Louisiana senator for his defections from party authority. Senator Long recalled the recent occasion on which the post-

SALARY INQUIRY BARES SLUMP IN BIG INDUSTRIES

Chicagoans' Names on Senate List.

CORPORATION SALARIES.

Salaries and bonuses paid heads of corporations in last few years, as released to the senate by the federal trade commission, will be found on page 6.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—The Roosevelt administration stood equipped tonight to carry out its often announced plan to prepare legislation to curb the payment of large salaries to corporation executives.

In a final report in answer to the resolution of Senator Edward P. Costigan [Dem., Colo.] adopted last spring, the federal trade commission today submitted to the senate a compilation of the salaries paid to the officers of 877 corporations from 1928 to 1933, together with the total assets of the companies and their net income or loss during those years. The report filled more than a dozen thick volumes.

Included in the reports were figures of salaries and bonuses ranging from $1,635,753 paid Eugene Grace in 1929 as president of Bethlehem Steel and $1,051,000 paid in 1931 to G. W. Hill, president of American Tobacco company. Scores of Chicagoans whose salaries reached high figures were listed.

Progressive Tax.

The most frequently discussed plan to penalize large salaries has been a proposal to levy a progressive tax upon them. While the constitutionality of such a tax has been questioned, it is understood that Attorney General Cummings has told President Roosevelt that such a tax would be within the law.

By the terms of the Costigan resolution, the list submitted today was limited to corporations engaged in interstate commerce, that have assets or capital of at least one million dollars, and are listed on the New York Stock exchange or New York curb. Public utilities were excluded since they have already been covered by federal power commission reports. Meat packers were also excluded, but will be covered in a report to the secretary of agriculture.

Many Fail to Report.

Numerous companies declined to report for various reasons, the commission's covering letter disclosed. The General Aviation corporation, American Can company, General Motors corporation, and the Studebaker corporation declined to recognize the commission's power to exact the required information. A score of others simply failed to report, and still another group declared they were not engaged in interstate commerce.

The commission disclosed the fact that it had paid no heed to complaints that it had no right to pry into a company's or an individual's private affairs. Requests that any information furnished be kept confidential were similarly disregarded.

It was noted that a letter from the General Electric company signed by Owen D. Young and Gerard Swope argued strongly that special compensation awarded officers should not be made public. Such awards were necessary to stimulate executive efficiency, they said; but publication might arouse jealousy within the organization.

"The commission, however, identifies in this report the individual amounts of compensation so far as disclosed," the report states.

Chicago Figures Given.

In the following paragraphs taken from the returns from a number of Chicago companies, compensation shown includes both cash salaries and additional compensation in cash or in stock, options, etc., reduced to a cash value.

The figures contained in the committee report graphically portray the effect of the depression on corporation incomes and how companies, in varying degree, followed their income curve downward by curtailing salaries.

Harvester Salaries Listed.

Total salaries were paid to officers of the International Harvester company as follows: 1928, $1,774,648; 1929, $2,098,709; 1930, $1,499,170; 1931, $469,887; 1932, $383,828. In the peak year of 1929 the late Alexander Legge, president, received $412,860, which was cut to $66,848 in 1932. In 1929 Herbert F. Perkins, Addis McKinsley, Henry B. Utley, George A. Ranney, Cyrus McCormick Jr., and William M. Reay, vice presidents, and William S. Elliott, general counsel, drew respectively, $259,793, $236,665, $120,496,

POLICEMAN SHOT IN BATTLE WITH TAVERN BANDITS

Policeman John Henry, 38 years old, of the Englewood station, was shot in the abdomen and critically wounded early today when he engaged two robbers in a revolver battle in the Delavan tavern at 6404 South State street.

Henry, a detective, had finished work at midnight, and on his way to his home at 7944 South Bishop street stopped in the tavern for a sandwich. Several other patrons, including two women, were in the place at the time.

The two bandits suddenly burst into the place and ordered every one to remain quiet. Ralph Geyer, a bartender, slow in raising his hands, was slugged on the head. At this Policeman Henry, who was in civilian clothes, drew his revolver. The two bandits opened fire on him. Henry fired back, but the next instant collapsed with a bullet in his abdomen. The bandits fled, one half staggering, and got away in a waiting car. Henry was taken to St. Bernard's hospital.

Two hours after Henry was shot squads led by Sergts. James Keeley and John Greer raided a flat at 6247 Blackstone avenue. There they found Lavern Donald, 22 years old, suffering from a bullet wound in the abdomen; Elelo Baker, 21, of 6057 Harper avenue; Miss Betty Wilson, 24, 1647 East 77th street, and Miss Frances Smith, 27, of 6247 Blackstone avenue. In a car outside the flat the police nabbed Donald's wife, Verna, 21, and George Vitse, 20, 6056 Stony Island avenue. Police said they believe Donald was wounded by Policeman Henry. Donald was taken to the Bridewell hospital in a serious condition.

FAILS FOR FIVE MILLIONS, DIES IN OBSCURITY

New York, Feb. 27 [Tuesday].—[Special.]—William Frank McGee, 54, partner in the bucket shop of E. M. Fuller & Co., which failed for $5,000,000 in 1922, died in obscurity and under an assumed name last Saturday, it became known today when his body was identified by Detective John Samuelson of the bureau of criminal identification. He had been staying at a hotel under the name of Frank Welton. Last week he was taken ill and was removed to a hospital, where he died.

Although McGee had been out of public notice since he was released from Sing Sing with his partner on June 5, 1926, after they had served one year for their bucket shop operations, apparently he had been engaged in other shady activities.

Louise Groody, musical comedy actress and the third wife of the bucket shop operator, affirmed her faith in her husband at the time of his arrest and denied published reports that he had sent her $1,500,000 while she was in Europe. She obtained a divorce from him in 1928.

Train Crash in Pittsburgh; 5 Die; 40 Hurt

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—Five persons were killed and 40 others were injured when the locomotive and tender of a New York bound Pennsylvania railroad train toppled off a high viaduct in the north side of the city tonight and crashed 30 feet to the street.

The coaches remained on the embankment, although two of them came to rest precariously at the edge. Of the seven coaches, five of them were badly cracked up.

Crash Heard Far Away.

The wreck, occurring with a crash resembling a terrific explosion, shook the immediate neighborhood. The sound was heard miles away. The roar of escaping steam added to the din. Within a few minutes several thousand persons were at the scene despite the intense cold. The thermometer was near zero.

The train, which was made up at Akron, O., was speeding through the city. As it reached Merchant street the locomotive struck what is believed to have been a frozen switch. The pony wheels passed over it. The next instant the huge engine careened at high speed and plunged over the embankment. It dragged the heavy tender behind it. Both crashed with a terrific roar, the tender falling upon the engine.

Coaches Race On Ahead.

The coaches, disconnected from the tender, raced on for more than 100 feet, then piled up as the leading coach went off the rails. Lights in the coaches went out. Then the cries of injured men and women were heard.

Among the first rescued was Miss Mary Connell, 45 years old, of Youngstown, O., buyer for a Youngstown store. She was taken to the Presbyterian hospital.

"All of a sudden," she said, "our coach began to sway. We flew past a burning object, apparently the failing locomotive and tender. Then came the crash. Everybody was thrown forward. Baggage on the racks above us fell down upon us. It was terrible, everybody shrieking and crying. Then some man called out saying for us to be quiet, and we calmed down."

Snow Delays Rescues.

Rescuers, hampered by the severe cold, worked feverishly and with makeshift lights. They dragged the injured out of car windows and also extricated the bodies of the dead, horribly mutilated. Taxis and private cars were offered freely by men and women at the scene. All experienced difficulty in reaching hospitals on account of snow drifts in the streets.

Late tonight the only identified dead were believed to be David A. Duchrame, 50 years old, of Ansonia, Conn., former grand knight of the Ansonia Knights of Columbus council, and Clarence J. Mayer, 45, of Ingram, Pa.

CAPT. ZIMMER DIES FROM POISONING BY AUTO EXHAUST FUMES

Capt. Matthew Zimmer, veteran of the police department, and head of the uniformed division, died at 12:40 this morning in his home at 8132 South Sangamon street from the effects of carbon monoxide poisoning. He was 67 years old and had been a member of the police force for nearly 42 years.

Capt. Zimmer was overcome last Wednesday in the garage in the rear of his home by fumes from the exhaust of his car, which he was warming up preparatory to driving downtown. At the time he was serving as acting police commissioner in the place of Commissioner James Allman, who is resting in Florida.

The captain was found unconscious by his wife, and was revived after two hours' work by a fire department inhalator squad. Since then Capt. Zimmer had been confined to his home and for a while, because of his vigor and two blood transfusions, it was believed he would recover. However, he began sinking last evening, and hope of saving him was abandoned.

Capt. Zimmer joined the police department on May 13, 1892. He became a captain in 1914. In 1923, under the then existing police provisions, he was appointed deputy police commissioner by Chief Morgan A. Collins, and made departmental disciplinarian. Chief Collins described him at the time as "one of the squarest and most efficient men on the force." On Aug. 1, 1932, Commissioner Allman appointed Capt. Zimmer chief of the uniformed division.

Capt. Zimmer served at many district stations and on various special details.

Surviving Capt. Zimmer are his widow, a son, Dr. William P. Zimmer, and two brothers, Michael Zimmer, warden of the county hospital, and Peter Zimmer.

2 GUNMEN KILL FORMER ALCOHOL RUNNER; ESCAPE

Joseph Smith, 30 years old, 5016 South Union avenue, described by police as a petty hoodlum, was shot and killed by assassins last night beneath the Chicago and Western Indiana railway trestle at 54th place and Lowe avenue.

Clarence Kelly, 523 West 54th place, a former policeman, was the principal witness. He said he heard several shots, and running out of his home he saw an automobile containing two men speeding east from the viaduct in 54th place.

Police believe that underworld associations may be responsible for Smith's murder. They said he once was an alcohol runner for the old Sheldon gang.

Votes to Add 60 Million to Vets Relief

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today reiterated his intention of vetoing any legislation calling for full and immediate cash payment of the bonus.

The President sent a brief letter setting forth his views to Speaker of the House Henry T. Rainey [Dem., Ill.], who did not make the letter public, but explained to newspaper men what was in it.

Meanwhile, the senate was openly defying the administration on another matter of veterans' compensation in a revolt which was regarded here as an ominous forerunner of what may take place when the bonus itself comes up for a vote.

Eighteen Democrats Break Away.

Eighteen Democratic senators broke away from the Roosevelt control to help pass by a vote of 51 to 39 the amendment declaring that Spanish-American war veterans should receive at least 90 per cent of the compensation being paid to them before the passage of the economy act, last summer. It would add 60 million dollars to the veterans' appropriations.

Tomorrow the two senators, Senator Pat McCarran [Dem., Nev.] and Senator Frederick Steiwer [Rep., Ore.], who today succeeded in overthrowing the administration's control, will attempt to continue their program by presenting to the senate amendments increasing the compensation paid to world war veterans and others.

The President's letter to Speaker Rainey merely confirmed a telephone conversation between Mr. Roosevelt and the speaker last week.

Both Houses Show Revolt.

Although the speaker last week informed the house that the President intended to veto any bonus bill, the representatives, setting an example which the senate followed today, revolted against the administration and set a vote on the bonus for March 12. This vote will be the first test on cash payment of the veterans' compensation, since the program of Senators McCarran and Steiwer calls not for full cash payment, but for restoration of the cuts made under the economy program.

Because of the senate's bolt today and the uprising in the house last week, observers here are predicting that the administration, which already has been forced to compromise time and again on veterans' legislation, will be defeated or forced to give ground to the veterans' bloc in congress.

The program which Senators McCarran and Steiwer are attempting to put through is essentially that indorsed by the American Legion. It calls for large scale resoration of payments wiped out by the economy act.

Regrets Byrnes Compromise.

In voting today to restore 90 per cent of the preeconomy compensation to Spanish-American war veterans the senate rejected a provision advanced by Senator James Byrnes [Dem., S. C.], administration spokesman, calling for restoration of only 75 per cent of the previous payments. This amendment itself was a compromise on the part of the administration, but it did not satisfy the senate.

The 18 Democrats who broke away from their party to vote with 32 Republicans and one Farmer-Laborite for the McCarran-Steiwer amendment were: Boone, Caraway, Copeland, Costigan, Dill, Hatch, Lonergan, Long, McAdoo, McCarran, McGill, Neely, Overton, Reynolds, Smith, Thomas [Utah], Trammel, and Wheeler.

DR. WYNEKOOP'S 2D REPUDIATION BARED IN COURT

Her Statements Go Into Evidence.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.

Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop's signed statement that she accidentally killed her daughter-in-law, Rheta, and her subsequent verbal admission, "I did it to save the poor dear," went into the evidence at her second trial for murder yesterday with no discernible effect on the defendant's composure.

The signed statement, which the state holds to be almost entirely untruthful, though containing dangerous admissions, and the verbal confession, which the state regards as true, were admitted into the record by Judge Harry B. Miller over the protest of Dr. Wynekoop's lawyers. Their client, however, seemed wholly indifferent to the points the state scored.

Dr. Alice Merely Smiles.

When at the first trial Dr. Harry R. Hoffman, director of the criminal court behavior clinic, repeated the eight word confession—"I did it to save the poor dear"—Dr. Alice collapsed from a heart attack which later impelled Judge Joseph B. David to declare a mistrial. Yesterday she merely drummed her fingers on the arm of her chair and faintly smiled.

Further, a repudiation of the eight word confession was spread on the record during the cross-examination of Dr. Hoffman by the defense. It was the second repudiation in the case. The defendant had previously repudiated her signed statement, averring that police and psychiatrists had tricked her into admitting she had accidentally chloroformed Rheta to death, then fired a bullet into the girl's lifeless body.

Tells of Second Repudiation.

The eight word confession she made to Dr. Hoffman, according to his testimony yesterday, was Dr. Wynekoop's summary of the situation as one physician to another after signing the written statement.

And then she repudiated the eight words in a panicky interview with him later, Dr. Hoffman admitted on cross-examination. "I never shot Rheta. You got me into this. My God, I adore all my children," he quoted her as saying.

In their desperation to overcome the effect of Dr. Wynekoop's signed statement which, Prosecutor Charles S. Dougherty said, "put her on the death scene with a pistol in her hand," Defense Attorneys W. W. and Milton Smith put at least 2,000 questions to two state witnesses. They were Dr. Hoffman and Police Captain John Stege.

Three Hours of Questioning.

With columns of clippings in a newspaper scrapbook for his guide, W. W. Smith spent three hours questioning Dr. Hoffman and Capt. Stege, striving to show that Dr. Alice was just a bewildered old lady, badgered by scores of Cossack police, tricked by unsympathetic alienists, and half dead from heart disease when the statement was signed.

Smith's voice throbbed with emotion and his slight figure doubled like a sprinter's as he fired the questions. Neither witness was perturbed and neither would yield an inch in his assertions that Dr. Wynekoop got all the consideration to which a woman of her years and professional standing was entitled in the investigation of her daughter-in-law's death.

Highlight of the Day.

It was the revelation of Dr. Alice's second repudiation, brought out ten minutes before court adjourned for the day, that provided the highlight of the second trial so far and brought the testimony at last to new ground. The cross-examination of Dr. Hoffman on that point went as follows:

Q.—You received a call from Mr. Dougherty [the prosecutor] on Saturday, Nov. 25, four days after discovery of the tragedy? A.—Yes, about 10:30 a. m. [This was the day after Dr. Wynekoop signed the written statement and made the verbal confession to Dr. Hoffman.]

Q.—What did Dougherty say? A.—He said he was going to interrogate Dr. Wynekoop and she wanted to speak to me first.

"And she told you she did not kill Rheta, did she not?" Attorney Smith demanded in triumphant tones. Dr. Hoffman quietly assented.

"And she told you that you had got her into this?" in a lower, more menacing tone. The witness thought she had expressed that idea, but in other words.

Q.—And she told you she was in a perfect panic at the time she made the first statement, did she not? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And she said, 'My God, I love all my children—I did not shoot Rheta' did she not? A.—She used the word 'adore.'

Smith was trembling and perspiring when he finished his salvo of questions. Dr. Wynekoop, reclining in her own leather padded chair with her feet propped up on the rung of another, was toying with a water glass.

It was 4:10 p. m. Prosecutor Dougherty called his next witness, D. M. Sweet, vice president of the City National bank. The bank was pressing Dr. Alice for a payment on a $3,500 mortgage at the time Rheta died.

The defendant shot a swift look at Mr. Sweet as he raised his hand to be sworn. With a quick gesture she leaned over and patted W. W. Smith's shoulder, whispering to him.

"Doctor is tired," the attorney told the judge. "May we adjourn?"

Judge Miller assented and the jury filed out.

TESTIMONY IN DETAIL

Capt. Stege was the principal witness at the morning session. Hardly had he begun to testify, however, when the defense attorneys called a halt and asked that the jury be excluded. Before Stege went any further, they said, they proposed to show that the signed statement of Dr. Wynekoop was in fact a confession which she had given under duress and which therefore should be excluded.

"But it's not a confession," Prosecutor Dougherty began when the jury had marched out. "It's not a confession, because it contains no admission of a crime. It merely admits that the defendant was present at the last few moments before Rheta's death and that's what we want to show."

The prosecutor shot a glance toward Dr. Alice, who was huddled in her black caracul coat pressing a handkerchief between her bony hands. She was impassive, except for a rapid blinking of her eyes under Dougherty's glance.

Argues It's Up to Jury.

"The jury may place whatever construction it pleases on the statement," Dougherty resumed to the judge. The defense lawyers smiled faintly at this, knowing full well of Dougherty's purpose to offer medical proof that the statement could not be true.

"The jury might agree that there was nothing incriminatory at all," the prosecutor shrugged. "They may place whatever construction they desire upon it. Whatever they do, the rule of law is that with such a statement 'the other side may not question the manner in which it is obtained.'"

With a half-hearted shrug Defense Attorney W. W. Smith got up to argue that it was a confession. He had lost the same point at the last trial, Judge David having pronounced the document in question an "exculpatory statement."

"It is perfectly obvious," Attorney Smith began, "that this statement has at all times been treated as a confession. The instrument itself purports to warn Dr. Wynekoop of her constitutional rights and to state that her words may be used against her. The real test, I suppose, is whether it's true or untrue."

Dr. Alice Listens, Eyes Closed.

Smith was warming up to the argument now. Dr. Alice had ceased blinking and had closed her eyes.

"They claim it's an incriminating statement," Smith went on in a higher key. "That's one thing, and we might be willing to stand on it. But no, they won't have that—they won't vouch for it. They want to put it in the record, then present evidence to contradict it. Mr. Dougherty's opinion is that it's an exculpatory statement. His point is not well taken at all."

With a few incisive remarks Judge Miller clarified the dispute.

"I think we're all agreed that the statement speaks for itself," he observed. "It's not an admission of any crime, that I can see, and therefore does not come under the category of a confession. So a hearing on how it was obtained is unnecessary. Mr. Dougherty may proceed."

"It's at least an admission of manslaughter," W. W. Smith insisted. "Or anyway of criminal carelessness," Milton Smith added.

Stege Resumes Testimony.

With a dissenting shake of his head the judge waved the jury in and Capt. Stege resumed his testimony. In a few precise words he sketched the scene in the captain's room of the Fillmore police station where Dr. Alice signed her statement early on the morning of Nov. 24, sixty hours after the discovery of the murder. [Rheta was found slain the evening of Nov. 21 on an operating table in the basement of the Wynekoop home at 3406 Monroe street.]

In the police station, Capt. Stege said, Dr. Alice was lying on a rattan couch under Dr. Hoffman's overcoat. Capt. Stege asked her if she wanted breakfast, he said, and she replied that she wanted only a cup of black coffee, so a sergeant was sent for it.

"Dr. Hoffman was standing with his back to the window and I was sitting at her side," the captain said. "She got talking to me and said: 'Captain, what would happen if I told a story about killing Rheta?'"

"Just a moment," interrupted W. W. Smith. "May the record show we are objecting to all this?"

Judge Miller nodded and Stege resumed.

"I told her I didn't want any story," he said, emphasizing the last word. "I said I wanted the truth. She looked up and told me to close the door."

Summarizes the Statement.

In a quiet voice Stege went on to paraphrase the contents of the statement: How Dr. Alice found Rheta disrobing to weigh herself in the operating room, how the doctor said it would be a good time for a physical examination, how Rheta complained of pain under the examination, how Dr. Alice gave Rheta a sponge soaked with chloroform to inhale, how Rheta inhaled until her heart stopped beating, and how, at thought of the gun lying in her desk, Dr. Alice fired a shot into the lifeless body and covered it with a blanket.

Dr. Alice sighed softly as Capt. Stege finished and a recess was declared. Her daughter, Dr. Catherine Wynekoop, skipped in briskly from the corridor, where she had been chatting with the press telegraphers, and began chatting with her mother about the fuel supply at home.

DR. HOFFMAN ON STAND

Dr. Hoffman took the stand when the recess ended. Under questioning by Prosecutor Dougherty he also pictured the scene in the Fillmore station when Dr. Alice made the statement which she later signed.

"In substance, she said she found Rheta disrobing in the operating room and suggested an examination which seemed to give Rheta pain," Dr. Hoffman recalled. "She said she gave the girl a whiff of chloroform on a sponge, then handed her the bottle to take more.

"Then she said she perceived Rheta wasn't breathing, saw her pupils dilated and applied a stethoscope, but found no heart action. She said she tried artificial respiration for 10 or 20 minutes, then took a gun, turned the body on the left side, and fired a shot."

"Did she complain of any abuse [by her questioners]?" Dougherty demanded. A defense objection was overruled. Dr. Hoffman answered "No."

"Did you have any conversation with her after that?"

"I asked her why she did it. Her answer was: 'I did it to save the poor dear.'"

Smith Cross-Examines.

W. W. Smith sprang to the cross-examination with face flushed and fists clenched. Dr. Hoffman's gray eyes met his with mild disdain.

Q.—Did you make any physical examination of Dr. Wynekoop at that time? A.—No sir, except to feel her pulse.

Q.—She complained of a headache did she not? A.—Not to me. An assistant state's attorney gave her an aspirin, however.

Q.—How fast was her pulse? A.—Her pulse was 82 to 86, her blood pressure 225 and her respiration 20.

At this statement Smith doubled over before the jury. He fired the next question with a leap like a hurdle jumper's.

"This woman was suffering from 225 degrees of blood pressure and the only medication was an aspirin?" he yelled.

"Object to 'suffering,'" Prosecutor Dougherty broke in.

"Well, a woman whom you have ascertained to have a blood pressure of 225—wouldn't you say she was suffering?" Smith furiously asked.

"Not necessarily," was Dr. Hoffman's mild reply.

Smith Uses Press Clippings.

Smith refreshed his own recollection with a glance at his book of newspaper clippings.

Q.—Did you hear Assistant State's Attorney [John] Long tell Dr. Wynekoop that she was near the breaking point and would soon confess? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you see him sob and hear him say he'd like nothing better than to defend her if she confessed it was an accident? A.—I did not.

Q.—Was Dr. Wynekoop pale, emaciated, and ill? As a physician, would you say she was or was not? A.—As a physician, I wouldn't care to say unless I had examined her.

Smith paused to scan some notes in his scrapbook. Dr. Hoffman settled back at ease.

"Did you see a policeman shake his fist under Dr. Wynekoop's nose and say, 'We'll put you in the electric chair, old lady'?" Smith stormed. The witness said "No."

Q.—Did you see any police officer under the influence of liquor at that time? A.—None at all.

Quizzed on Lie Detector.

Smith got around to the subject of the lie detector from the crime detection laboratory of Northwestern university which the police had attempted to use.

Q.—You were there (in the police station) when the man from Northwestern university came in with his machine at 3 a. m.? A.—I was.

Q.—You heard Dr. Wynekoop say: "If you think I'm lying use it on me," did you not? A.—No, it was brought into use on Earle (Dr. Wynekoop's son, Rheta's husband).

Q.—You heard the Northwestern man say it was dangerous to go ahead with her blood pressure that high and then saw him leave? A.—No, sir. He said the machine could not be used on a subject with hardened arteries. He remained there until 9 a. m.

Smith snatched a newspaper clipping from the table and shoved it at the witness. Dr. Hoffman identified it as one purporting to have been written by himself and then exposed some of the mysteries of ghost writing.

Q.—You wrote that, did you not? A.—No, sir; I spoke to the newspaper man who wrote it.

Q.—You told the newspaper man that she was wan, pale, and weak after hours without sleep when she signed her confession, did you not? A.—I said nothing about her being wan and weak.

French Cabinet to Demand Full Power to Fix Tariffs

PARIS, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Full power to change tariffs, as a bargaining weapon in negotiations with other countries, will be demanded shortly by the French government, it was understood today. Such authority would be a counterpart to the rights of Premier Gaston Doumergue to make economies by decree, without obtaining approval of parliament, in an effort to balance the budget.

Border Guards Clash

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Feb. 26.—A clash between Hungarian and Jugo-Slavian border guards occurred today near Lenti, according to dispatches from Budapest. The Jugo-Slavians killed one and kidnaped another of the Hungarians. The scene of the engegement is in the southwest corner of Hungary, near the junction of that nation with both Jugo-Slavia and Austria.

HOLD FUNERALS IN ARLINGTON OF 2 ARMY AIRMEN

Both Killed on Air Mail Assignments.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—With full military honors, two pilots killed in crashes since the army started flying the air mail were buried in Arlington National cemetery this morning.

A squad of army rifles barked a last salute over the graves of Lieut. Durward O. Lowry and Lieut. Fred Patrick after the austere military service had been read. A chill wind, whipping up flakes of snow from a blizzard that blanketed the national capital, whistled around the handful of spectators and friends that attended the two services.

Graves Get Honor Places.

The two graves were given places of honor directly behind the Arlington amphitheater and the tomb of the unknown soldier. No other special distinction marked the burials.

Lieut. Lowry, a native of Chicago, was killed when his plane crashed near Deshler, O., on Feb. 22. He was flying the mails from Chicago to Cleveland through a lashing storm.

Killed on Way to Assignment.

Lieut. Patrick, who had been in the army since the war, was killed in Denison, Tex. He was not flying the mail, but was on his way to take command of an air mail post.

These flyers, two of the six that have died since the army started flying the mails a week ago today, are the only ones for whom funerals in Arlington cemetery, the resting place of the nation's illustrious military dead, have been arranged.

HELD AS KILLER OF 4; PLEDGES 'WHOLE STORY'

Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 26.—(AP)—John A. Cane, psychopathic war veteran, promised today to tell "the whole story" of killing his wife and three children at a picnic.

Formally charged with murder, the 36 year old man whose confession led to discovery of the four bodies near here yesterday emerged from an apparent stupor.

Prosecutor Lewis R. Morris expressed belief Cane was "acting crazy to dodge the electric chair."

In his cell a few minutes later the prisoner said he wasn't "trying to fool anybody." He added he thought he was sane but that sometimes his mind "doesn't seem to work right."

ROSCOE TURNER ASKS U. S. TO END AIR MAIL CRISIS

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Col. Roscoe Turner, one of the few independents among the "Big Time" aviators who make a business of flying faster than any one has ever flown before, believes that irreparable damage to the commercial aviation industry is imminent unless the air mail controversy is ironed out quickly.

"If there are some black sheep in the flock," he said today, "there must be some way of culling them out without killing the whole flock."

He expressed confidence that an adjustment would be reached soon, fair to all concerned, and that progress of the "finest commercial aviation companies in the world" would continue.

AIR MAIL ISSUE SUBJECT OF HOT SENATE DEBATE

Voiding of Contracts Assailed, Defended.

master general was given a free airplane ride to Texas.

"Mr. Farley took a little junketing trip at the expense of one of the very air lines whose contract he canceled," chided the senator. "They even bought him a hat. And if he wants to get a new suit now, he knows where to go. The contracts were canceled because the people and the Democratic party were getting mistreated. But now that it's been shown that the air mail companies don't discriminate against our man and give him favors—a ride, plenty of grub, even a hat—why, I don't know why we don't call the whole thing off."

"The postmaster general has the right to travel on any vehicle carrying the mail," interrupted Senator McCarran.

"This plane wasn't carrying any mail," retorted Senator Long. "And I doubt whether the trip should include a stopover at Shreveport, La., for the postmaster general to make an anti-Huey Long speech. The only thing that makes me think the cancellation of the contracts was justified is that all the newspapers have criticized the President for doing it."

MAIL PLANE FALLS IN AFRICA; ONE KILLED, 3 HURT

CASABLANCA, Morocco, Feb. 26.—(AP)—A mechanic was killed and three other members of the crew were badly hurt early today when a French mail plane crashed in a wild, unconquered section of Rio de Oro, West Africa.

Armed flyers in a rescue plane landed on the desert, near the damaged craft, held off natives while the body of the mechanic and his injured companions were taken aboard and returned to Villa de Cisneros.

A second plane then went to salvage the mail, destined for South America. The mail plane apparently was forced down by engine trouble.

2 Student Pilots Die in Plane Crash at Tampa

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Two men were killed here this afternoon in an airplane crash within the city limits. The dead are: Emilio Fernandez, of Tampa, and Paul Hurst visitor from Ohio. Both men were about 25 years old and were student flyers. Their plane caught fire when it crashed. Fernandez was dead when pulled from the ship and Hurst died on the way to the hospital.

STORM HAMPERS QUIZ ON DEATHS OF 8 IN AIR CRASH

Salt Lake City, Utah, Feb. 26.—[Special.]—An investigation into the crash of a United Air Lines plane near here Friday, with a loss of eight lives, was hampered today by a snowstorm.

Seven bodies were removed after the wrecked plane was found last night on Farley's summit in the Wasatch mountains east of here. Today the eighth body, that of Eric G. Danielson, co-pilot, was removed after the smashed plane had been thrown upon its side and the wreckage cut away.

Report No Defects.

The investigators learned there were no structural defects in the craft. They also concluded that its pilot still was "flying" when the plunge began and evidently was not seeking a forced landing, because the wheels were folded against the wings, the throttle was open and the gasoline lever was advanced.

H. P. Lewis, chief pilot of the lines, expressed the belief that Pilot Lloyd Anderson was attempting to rise above a storm when he crashed shortly after taking off at Salt Lake City for Cheyenne.

Believes Pilot Saw Trees.

"The wreckage looks as if the ship did a chandelle [a half back turn] and nosed into the ground," Lewis declared. "The pilot probably saw the trees looming before him and perhaps tried to lift the ship too rapidly.

The crash revealed that the 24 year old stewardess, Miss Mary Carter, killed in the fall, had been married recently to John Wheeler, 25 years old, night manager of the Mozart hotel, 102 East Chestnut street, Chicago. Wheeler said that the marriage had not been announced because of a regulation that stewardesses be unmarried.

PU-YI TO REIGN OVER HIS EMPIRE AS KANG TEH

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

HSINKING [Changchun], Manchukuo, Feb. 26.—Fasting, praying and meditating, Henry Pu-yi spent his 28th birthday today preparing for his enthronement on March 1 as emperor Kang Teh. The city was excited as the young Manchu nobleman began his "process of purification" for the ceremonies next Thursday when the former Chinese boy monarch will again reign over an empire.

His name as the new emperor was announced today, and it was stated that the years to come will be known as the era of Kang Teh. The two ideographs, Kang and Teh, mean tranquility and virtue, of particular significance to orientals because they are the same that Confucius stipulated as necessary for a sovereign who desires a peaceful and benevolent rule.

Thousands of policemen, soldiers and detectives patroled the city, watching for suspicious characters, and questioning all visitors, including newspaper men from many lands.

ARMY MAIL PLANES RESUME SCHEDULES HALTED BY WEATHER

Army air mail planes, halted over Sunday because of unfavorable weather, resumed their regular schedules to the west from Chicago airport yesterday. With poor visibility and ceiling reported over most of the eastern seaboard, no eastern mail was received by air, but the planes from the west were reported on time by Lieut. Col. Horace Hickam, sons commander.

Central Illinois weather proved treacherous yesterday for Lieut. J. Smity, an army pilot who left Scott field at Belleville, Ill., a short distance from St. Louis. Running into banked clouds which extended to the ground over Peoria, he turned back. On the return journey, however, he lost his way and finally landed at Harrisburg, ninety miles south and seventy-two miles east of Belleville. He and his observer walked to the home of a farmer seven miles outside the town and reported themselves and their plane safe.

STEAL 9 OF BEST SNAKES IN BRONX ZOO COLLECTION

Thieves Wreck Toil of Many Years.

New York, Feb. 26.—[Special.]—Nine beautifully marked nonpoisonous snakes were stolen from the reptile house in the Bronx zoo Thursday night by some one who jimmied open the window and removed the snakes from the small display cases along the wall.

Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, curator of mammals and reptiles, announced the theft today after the police had worked secretly for several days on such slender clews as were available.

"The snakes were the star pieces of our collection," Dr. Ditmars said. "All of them were quite harmless. All our poisonous snakes are padlocked behind steel bars, of course, and it would take a blow torch and a crowbar to get at them.

All Prize Specimens.

"But these nine were in the small glass cases on shelves around the wall where they could be seen easily and taken out if necessary to show to nature study classes."

Several of the nine are fairly rare and all of them are distinguished by one thing — they are handsomely marked with vivid colors. They were, in fact, some of the chief show pieces in the fine collection Dr. Ditmars has accumulated over a long period of years.

One, a gorgeous rainbow boa, had been in the reptile house for fifteen years, and another, a red banded snake, was a gift from Dr. Vital Brazil, one of Brazil's great toxicologists to Dr. Ditmars' daughter on a collecting trip to South America some years ago.

Dangerous to Market.

"There are several theories as to why the snakes were stolen," Dr. Ditmars said. "They may have been taken by a snake fan with a private collection or they may have been stolen by some one who intends to put on a traveling snake show. They may, of course, have been stolen for resale, although any dealer would likely be suspicious of such a collection being offered.

"The thief entered through a window in the south lobby of the reptile house. It was his second attempt, for one night earlier in the week some one had broken a small section out of the window glass and had apparently been frightened away."

NATIONAL GUARD FLYER KILLED IN CRASH ONTO ICE

Woman Sees Plane Fall Near Lake Erie Shore.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—Lieut. Albert J. Harmon of the 107th observation squadron, Michigan National Guard, was killed late today when his plane crashed on the ice of Lake Erie, 100 feet from shore off Lorain, O.

Coast guardsmen who rushed to the scene said Harmon had attempted to bail out of the plane but that his parachute had failed to open. He was alive when they reached him but died on the way to a Lorain hospital.

Lieut. Harmon was flying to Detroit from Cleveland. A snowstorm was raging at the time. Mrs. Stephen Domonkas, a resident of the lake shore, saw the plane crash to the ice and burst into flames.

Coast Guard Uses Sled.

Capt. D. H. Forner and a crew of seven coast guards raced to the burning ship by ice sled but were unable to save it in the galelike wind.

One witness of the crash said Lieut. Harmon's plane apparently developed engine trouble as it sped along the shore line. The motor was heard to miss fire a few minutes before the crash.

Home in Detroit.

Lieut. Harmon, identified by papers found on his body, was 28; his home address was 3273 Cortland avenue, Detroit.

Harmon had flown to Cleveland yesterday, taking with him Lieut. Col. C. E. F. Clark, infantry reserve corps and Detroit school teacher, who was to attend a convention.

Army Resumes Air Mail Over Rockies After 2 Days

Oakland, Cal., Feb. 26.—(AP)—The army resumed its air mail schedule from this transcontinental terminus tonight after a 48 hour interruption caused by storms. A plane was ordered to take off for Salt Lake City after late reports that the storm over the Sierra Nevada mountains had broken up.

PRESIDENT ASKS U. S. CONTROL FOR WIRE AND RADIO

Board of Seven Urged on Congress.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—Creation of a federal communications commission of seven members to control transmission by telephone, telegraph, radio, and cables was urged upon congress today in a special message from President Roosevelt, which followed the recent recommendations of his special interdepartmental committee.

The message was read in both house and senate and plans are rapidly being made to convert the presidential suggestions into law through introduction of appropriate bills from the senate and house interstate commerce committees.

Powers Are Requested.

President Roosevelt asked congress to vest in the new federal agency the powers now exercised by the radio commission over radio, and by the interstate commerce commission over telephones, telegraphs, and cables. The new commission would temporarily be content with this existing authority, the President stating that the regulatory body could study intricate problems connected with communications and submit suggestions for further legislation to the next congress.

The President believes that the relationship of government to certain utilities should be divided into three groups—transportation, power, and communication—with appropriate bodies to deal with each. He pointed out that the interstate commerce commission is now concerned with transportation, and the federal power commission with power, but that there exists no "single government agency charged with broad authority" regarding communications.

Busy on Survey for Months.

Studies of the government's official attitude toward the field of communications have been proceeding intensively for months. The President's special committee was made up of experts on the subject, and included Senator C. C. Dill [Dem., Wash.], father of the present radio law, and Representative Sam Rayburn [Dem., Tex.], chairmen of the respective senate and house interstate committees. Both chairmen have been working on bills to carry out the President's intent, and it is understood that similar measures will be presented at each end of the capitol within the next few days—perhaps tomorrow in the senate.

Broadcasting would not be included under the authority bestowed upon the new commission. The President asked the special interdepartmental committee to make a special study of this subject and report to him later on, the federal radio commission meanwhile retaining its present power over broadcasting.

Action Long Expected.

Divorcement of the authority of the I. C. C. from telegraphs, telephones, and cables has long been anticipated by many government experts, who have felt it apparent that the commission must give its principal efforts to the problems of the railroads.

Reduction of rates and prevention of speculative management and the "watering of stocks" were among the chief reasons given by the interdepartmental committee for government supervision and regulation of the communications services. The committee's study led it to believe that rates for the various services could be lowered through regulation of company profits, overhead expenses, and intercompany charges.

Other reasons were that a single independent government agency could prevent discrimination, regulation of annual depreciation charges, and extension of service to localities and homes not now served. It was also thought that government regulation could control exclusive contracts made by communications companies with hotels, railroads, and foreign countries.

Text of Message.

The text of the President's message follows:

"I have long felt for the sake of clarity and effectiveness the relationship of the federal government to certain services known as utilities should be divided into three fields—transportation, power and communications. The problems of transportation are vested in the interstate commerce commission and the problems of power, its development, transmission and distribution in the federal power commission.

"In the field of communications, however, there is today no single government agency charged with broad authority.

"The congress has vested certain authority over certain forms of communications in the interstate commerce commission and there is an addition the agency known as the federal radio commission.

Urges New Agency.

"Ie recommend that the congress create a new agency to be known as the federal communications commission, such agency to be vested with the authority now lying in the federal radio commission and with such authority over communications as now lies with the interstate commerce commission—the services affected to be all of those which rely on wires, cables or radio as a medium of transmission.

"It is my thought that a new commission such as I suggest might well be organized this year by transferring the present authority for the control o communications of the radio commission and the interstate commerce commission. The new body should, in addition, be given full power to investigate and study the business of existing companies and make recommendations to the congress for additional legislation at the next session."

Thomas T. Hoyne Named for Customs Controler

President Roosevelt yesterday nominated Thomas Temple Hoyne for the post of controler of the customs at Chicago. If the appointment is confirmed by the senate, Mr. Hoyne will succeed Leslie L. Glenn, brother of former United States Senator Otis F. Glenn. Mr. Hoyne is a brother of Maclay Hoyne, former state's attorney, and of Dr. Archibald Hoyne, physician and surgeon.

ESTHER RALSTON OF FILMS SUES GEORGE FREY FOR A DIVORCE

Los Angeles, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Unlike the happy ending to the love stories of the screen in which she was the heroine, Esther Ralston's own love story with her husband-manager, George Webb Frey, today came to an unhappy end with the filing of a suit for divorce.

Miss Ralston charged that during their married life, Webb, as he was known in Hollywood, called her harsh names, nagged and quarreled, and displayed an attitude of unreasonable jealousy.

The complaint stated Miss Ralston and Webb were married Christmas day, 1925, at Riverside, Cal. At that time Miss Ralston was a motion picture star and Webb was her manager. They separated Aug. 10, 1933.

TRY OFT DELAYED ACCIDENT CASE IN COURT TODAY

Attorney Harry Fritzker announced yesterday that he would have seventeen defense witnesses in court today to testify in the motor accident case in which Mrs. Blossom Howard, 2000 Lincoln Park West, is charged with driving while intoxicated. Last week the witnesses, all of whom were to testify against Mrs. Howard, wasted an afternoon when Judge Nuncio Bonelli suddenly decided to go to Arizona with his political sponsor, Ald. James B. Bowler of the 25th ward.

Mrs. Howard's automobile crashed into a car driven by John Baird, an instructor in dramatics at Northwestern university, at the corner of Sheridan road and Rosemont, on the night of last Dec. 17. Prof. Garrett H. Leverton, of the university school of speech, a passenger in Baird's car, was seriously injured. Afterward Prof. Leverton said he had reports that a ward committeeman had assured Mrs. Howard that he could "fix" the case in traffic court.

The case has dragged through court, being continued several times since the arrest of Mrs. Howard. There have been intimations of intimidation of witnesses, and on the eve of a trial hearing set for Feb. 17 two prosecution witnesses were reported missing.

Ralph J. Capone, brother of the notorious "Scarface Al," is scheduled to be released today from the federal penitentiary on McNeil's island, Washington, after having completed a three year term for income tax fraud. However, he will not be released until his court costs of $650 have been paid, according to the clerk's office in the United States Court house. If these are not paid, Capone may take a pauper's oath and be released after 30 days. His $10,000 fine has been paid.

When Capone gets out of the penitentiary he will be a free man, for dry law charges aganst him and 17 associates in connection with the operation of the Cotton club and the Montmartre, Cicero night life centers, were dismissed by Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday.

GERALD W. PECK SLAIN IN 4 YEAR TEXAS QUARREL

Rancher Shoots Rich Chicagoan.

Seguin, Tex., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—A four year quarrel over damages to a parcel of ranch land ended this afternoon with the fatal shooting of Gerald W. Peck, 48 years old, Chicago financier and sportsman and president of the Texas Hydro-Electric company. Mr. Peck was a member of a distinguished Chicago family.

Early tonight Tom Hollamon, 67 years old, ranch owner and former United States marshal and Texas ranger, was formally charged with the murder after a preliminary examination. He was released after posting a $12,000 bond.

Hollamon was seized by an attorney and several other officers of the hydro-electric company after the shooting. According to their statements to police Hollamon had appeared at the meeting, which was an annual affair, to renew his demands for damages which he asserted had been done by floods on his land. The floods, according to his charge, were caused by one of the company dams on the Guadalupe river.

Satisfies His Claim.

The men said that Hollamon, who has known Peck for years, conversed with him in a friendly manner for several minutes, then turned to leave the room.

Upon reaching the door he suddenly snatched out a revolver and began firing. One of the bullets struck Peck and he died an hour later.

"I came in for a settlement of my claims and I got it," Hollaman was quoted as saying to Sheriff D. N. Seagert after the murder.

A. J. Wirts, attorney for the hydro-electric company and former state senator, in whose office the shooting occurred, was hurt when he was struck over the head by Hollamon in the scuffle to disarm him. The other officers of the company who were present were unharmed.

The officers said that Hollamon's claims had been presented to the company four years ago and after some dispute were taken to the courts for settlement. The company paid a $3,000 judgment in favor of Hollamon two years ago, but the rancher had continued to press the officials for payment of other alleged damages.

SPORTSMAN AND FINANCIER.

Gerald W. Peck, slain in Seguin, Tex., yesterday, was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Wilbur Peck of Lake Forest, and had been an investment broker on La Salle street for more than thirty years. His grandfather was the late George Wilbur Peck, once governor of Wisconsin and author of the novel "Peck's Bad Boy," of which his father was the inspiration.

Members of the family last evening were "crushed by the news." They said that Mr. Peck had left Chicago on Wednesday last week to attend the business meeting at which he was killed. They said that they had known Hollamon as a "bad man" and "two gun man" for years.

Mr. Peck is survived by his parents, his widow, Mrs. Margaret Canfield Peck; their three children, Helen, 10 years old; Gerald Jr., 4 years old, and Peter, 18 months old; a brother, David, and his sister, Mrs. Albert B. Pattou, also of Lake Forest.

His body will be sent here today and the funeral will probably be held on Thursday from the Church of the Holy Spirit in Lake Forest.

Mr. Peck was known as an ardent sportsman, golfer, hunter and breeder of fine hunting dogs. He lived on his country estate in Libertyville.

INSULL TO ASK GREECE FOR NEW MEDICAL TEST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Feb. 26.—Another medical examination before final action is taken on the expulsion of Samuel Insull appeared likely tonight. The fugitive Chicago utilities magnate has now lived in Greece 26 days without a residence permit.

Ten days ago Foreign Minister Demetrios Maximos voluntarily informed Lincoln MacVeagh, American minister, that Insull would go in a reasonable time—ten days to a fortnight. His departure was predicated on better traveling weather and an improvement in health. Dr. Basil Voylas, Insull's personal physician, said today his patient's condition has not improved.

"I expect another physicial examination before the government reaches a final decision," Dr. Voylas declared. "Insull has not been out of bed for nearly two months."

Mrs. Insull said she is gravely concerned about the state of her husband's health.

"Mr. Insull is no better," she asserted. "The doctor sees him daily, and he receives no one."

She was asked concerning rumors that her husband already had slipped from his apartment and gone elsewhere.

"He is too ill to see anybody and, of course, he is still here," she said.

TWO SLAIN IN TRAP SET BY POLICE TO GET EXTORTIONISTS

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—Two alleged extortionists were killed and a policeman was wounded late this afternoon in a revolver battle precipitated when the men walked into a police ambush in the apartment of Michael Accardi, 5952 Oakhurst place.

One of the dead men was identified as Norman Godier, 30 years old, an ex-convict and a member of the old "Cuckoo" gang. The other was identified as James V. Griffen, 24, who had been arrested but never prosecuted. City Detective James B. Mobrak was wounded in the left shoulder, the bone being shattered by a bullet.

A gang of five men held up Accardi in the garage at the rear of his home and, after robbing him of $150, told him they would visit him at 1 p. m. Monday and would kill him if he did not have $2,300 for them. A squad of eight detectives was placed in the Accardi home.

Godier and his companions saw Mobrak peeking through a door panel as they approached the apartment and opened fire without a word. A moment later they crumpled before the police fusillade and died before they could be questioned.

50 U. S. HOUSES FOR MINERS ARE READY FOR USE

"Period" Furniture Made for Dwellings.

Morgantown, W. Va., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—Mine town families that have lived in poverty for years will have "period" furniture and planned color schemes in their houses at Arthurdale, the government's new industrial-agricultural community near here.

This was revealed today to those who attended the formal opening of the community to inspect the 50 houses that have been constructed this winter.

Three "sample houses" have been furnished and decorated under the direction of Miss Nancy Cook, manager of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt's furniture factory in Hyde Park, N. Y.

The "sample houses" will not be occupied until all other homes in the new town have been furnished, and will be used to show miners' wives what they can do with the materials given them by the government.

Early American in Design.

The furniture will be hand made, simple but graceful, and chiefly early American in design. Rugs and blankets will be hand woven. Curtains will be embroidered.

The furniture now is being made of native walnut and maple by the Mountaineer Craftsmen's guild, a group composed of jobless miners organized two years ago by Quaker relief workers and taught the trade as a way of earning a living.

These men now are working in a factory building in Morgantown to get the furniture ready for the 125 homes that, it is hoped, will be ready in Arthurdale by late spring. They are being paid regularly with civil works administration funds.

Five Beds for Each.

Each house will be equipped with a double bed, four single beds, double decker style; two chests of drawers, three tables, a dozen chairs, and, if necessary, a crib.

Each bed will be supplied with a mattress, blanket, quilt, and bedspread. There will be two pairs of double sheets, a dozen towels, eight pairs of curtains, six rag rugs, and six pillows for each house.

The needle work is being done by unemployed women in Morgantown, paid by CWA funds, and trained by a committee headed by Mrs. James R. Moreland.

Shipley Brown, weaving expert, has been sent here to supervise making the rugs and blankets.

Mattress Factory Running.

A mattress factory also has been set up and CWA workers are making soft, springy mattresses for the Arthurdale homes.

Mrs. Roosevelt had planned to take part in the "opening" ceremonies today, but other engagements forced her to postpone her trip. She has visited the community several times. Clarence Pickett, head of the Subsistence Homesteads corporation, and other Washington officials will attend.

The 50 houses that have been completed to date are simple, one story structures of four to six rooms each. Their designs vary. Each is set in the middle of the large garden tract. Each home also has a furnace, a small porch, and electric refrigeration and lights.

CITY WILL BE HOST TO 150 CONVENTIONS IN NEXT 6 MONTHS

The Chicago Association of Commerce announced yesterday that 150 conventions are scheduled for Chicago for the next six months. Within a few days letters will be sent to 1,500 convention groups in the United States officially inviting them to hold their 1934 meetings here to take advantage of A Century of Progress and lowered railway rates. Sending of the letters was postponed until legislation assuring the holding of the Exposition was passed, and now awaits Gov. Horner's signature and completion of the contract with the south park board.

FAIR'S FINANCIAL POSITION BETTER THAN A YEAR AGO

$1,227,000 on Hand for Rebuilding.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

When A Century of Progress opens on June 1 its financial position will be considerably more secure than it was at its opening last year, when its indebtedness included a $3,800,000 floating indebtedness and a $16,000,000 note issue. This year there will be no indebtedness other than that of $4,867,000 on the note issue.

"We are in a strong cash position and hope to remain so," said M. M. Tveter, controler. "We have $1,227,000 on hand, and the budget for the non-operating period, up to the time of opening, covering mainly rehabilitation and new construction, will be approximately $2,000,000."

$800,000 Still Needed.

Of the $1,227,000, he said, $593,000 in cash is in the corporate funds, available for any corporate purpose. About $634,000 is in escrow and represents money received from the sale of concession privileges, exhibit space sales and advance ticket sales. The advance ticket sales alone have brought in $128,000. All will be available for any corporate purpose as soon as Gov. Horner's signature makes effective legislation assuring the holding of the Fair.

Some $800,000 or less is needed to complete the cost of the budget up to the opening of the exposition. The advance ticket sale will be a principal source for this, together with the sale of additional exhibit space and concession privileges. An additional $500,000 is expected to accrue from concessions and exhibits before June 1, Mr. Tveter said.

Total cash received for concessions space and privileges is $425,000 to date, N. A. Owings, in charge of concessions, said yesterday. Indications are that that source will yield $750,000 by the time the Exposition opens, he said.

Rates Cut One-Half.

The rates are just half what they were last year for concession space and privileges, Owings said, and already the amount received equals two-thirds of that obtained last year from concession space and privileges. This year A Century of Progress will receive a percentage of the gross receipts of concessionaires from the Fair's opening. The Exposition's percentage is supposed to represent half the profits.

A rush of persons anxious to buy concession space continues, although all the space throughout the entire Fair grounds, except for the new beach midway and a few shop spaces on the 16th street bridge, was sold out a week ago, Owings said.

POLITICIAN TILTS WITH PROFESSOR IN CRA MEETING

Clark and Hatton Clash Over Tax Offices.

A report recommending that the positions of county assessor and of the two members of the board of tax appeals be filled by the county board by appointment instead of by general election was presented yesterday at the weekly meeting of the Chicago Recovery administration's executive committee. The report urged that the state legislature take action to reconstitute the tax offices also recommended that the assessor and the members of the board of tax appeals coöperate in the hearing of assessment complaints.

The chief proponent of the recommendation was George O. Fairweather, assistant business manager of the University of Chicago, who prepared the report as chairman of a subcommittee of the CRA. The meeting, which was held in the county board rooms in the county building, was thrown into an uproar as the recommendations were discussed.

Hatton Urges Appointment.

"The experience of the American people has been that appointed officials are more efficient, when they can be controled, than elective officials," said Prof. A. R. Hatton of Northwestern university, arguing for the adoption of the report.

"What makes you think that the people are willing to give up their right to elect their taxing officials?" shouted Ald. John S. Clark [30th], who is chairman of the finance committee of the city council and candidate of the Democratic organization for assessor in the April primaries.

"The worst racketeering in Cook county is in tax assessments," Prof. Hatton declared, "and we ought to profit by our experience."

"How do you know that appointed officials wouldn't be worse?" Ald. Clark asked him.

"You can't fall out of bed if you're lying on the floor," retorted the professor.

Turn to Discussion of Law.

Opponents of the recommendations then turned the discussion to the state law which abolished the old board of assessors and the old board of review and provided for the appointments of one assessor and two members of the board of appeals for two years and their election thereafter. This measure was passed by the legislature two years ago.

"That bill was your baby," Ald. Clark told Fairweather, "and now you're trying to do away with the elections."

"I disclaim any responsibility for what eventuated from the bill," Fairweather replied. "Its working out has been different from what I wanted. There has been no coördination between Assessor J. L. Jacobs and George F. Nixon and Fred Brummel, the members of the board of appeals. I never anticipated that the members of the board would be selected on a bi-partisan basis." [Nixon is a Republican, Brummel is a Democrat.]

Fox Hits Recommendations.

Charles Fox, chief deputy assessor under the old board of assessors, opposed the recommendations. He pointed out that Fairweather in his report had failed to designate at what intervals the taxing officials should be appointed. Fairweather replied that many details in his plan had not been worked out but would be if the CRA executive committee approved his proposals.

Frank J. O'Brien, a real estate man, who was one of the members of the sub-committee favoring the report, suggested that the taxing officials be selected from an eligible list of appointees.

Ald. Clark asserted that it was not the proper province of the CRA to consider the matter.

"This thing doesn't belong here," he said. "I don't think the committee has any right to deal with it. How did it get on the call? It looks like somebody threw in a joker."

"The CRA has the right, like any other deliberative body, to discuss any matters pertaining to the welfare of the community," replied Newton C. Farr, head of the executive committee.

Hatton and Clark Clash Again.

The question of temporary disposal of the report caused another brush between Ald. Clark and Prof. Hatton. The alderman moved to file the report with no definite date for futher consideration. Before he could find a second to his motion, Prof. Hatton moved to continue the discussion to March 5. When this motion was seconded, Mr. Farr called for a vote on it.

"Are you refusing to hear my motion?" asked Ald. Clark. He was told there had been no second to it.

"That is a discourtesy," the alderman shouted. "I'm not going to be rolled around."

"And you're not going to roll us around," Prof. Hatton shouted back at him, and then grinned.

The alderman's motion was revived, seconded and carried.

Fairweather Plans Action.

Fairweather announced after the meeting that he would forestall any attempts to delay the consideration of his report by amending it to include all necessary details and presenting it at the meeting on March 5.

The report said in part that "no matter what candidates for assessor or appeal board members by what party or parties are elected, the party system goes on and there is no evidence or promise or guarantee that its demands on favored elected partisans in these offices will be any the less in the future than in the past."

PINCHOT COMES OUT FORMALLY TO BEAT REED

Would Aid Roosevelt for "Prosperity."

New York, Feb. 26.—[Special.]—The long-expected announcement that Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania would run against Senator David A. Reed for the Republican nomination to the senate was made today by the governor at an uptown hospital, where he is recovering from a troublesome attack of the old-fashioned "shingles," a skin eruption.

Reed will continue, it is expected, his attacks upon the President. In these attacks, such as a radio address last week, Reed used such phrases as "broken promises" and "bad faith" and "burocracy."

The governor promises to answer Senator Reed without sparing words. "It will be a rattling good fight," he said from his sick bed today. "You can depend on that."

The governor's statement said:

"I am a candidate against David A. Reed for the United States senate. Reed, as senator, has run the errands and taken the orders of Mellon and the international bankers and the steel interests long enough.

"He should be replaced by a man who will take his orders only from the people.

"In this crisis, Republican Pennsylvania requires and deserves in Reed's place a Republican senator who will work with the President to restore prosperity, instead of snapping and snarling at his heels."

Senator Reed's announcement of his candidacy for renomination was made several weeks ago and he has followed it with continual criticism of the New Deal as it operates in Pennsylvania.

COUNTY TO MAKE UP FOR 'PAYLESS VACATION' TODAY

County Treasurer McDonough announced yesterday that today and tomorrow he will pay 3,000 men and women, many of them no longer county employés, a total of $327,482, for the first two weeks of September, 1931. The period was the "payless vacation" which the county board decreed during the summer of 1931 as an economy measure.

Recently the state Supreme court upheld a mandamus issued by a Cook county court to Mario Pollastrini, a deputy sheriff, who charged in his suit that the board could not enforce a payless vacation because it had already appropriated in the 1931 budget for the September pay day.

The 1,100 Sanitary district employés were paid yesterday for the first two weeks of February. The pay roll amounted to $122,000 and was made up of delinquent tax collections and proceeds of a sale of tax warrants. The district employés were paid for the last two weeks of January six days ago.

PRIZE WINNING TERRIER STOLEN AFTER DOG SHOW

Police last night were asked to search for a champion Boston bull terrier, "Kid Boots Ace, which was stolen Sunday night from the exhibition hall of the Sherman hotel a few hours after he had been adjudged winner of the Western Boston Terrier club show. The dog was on exhibition Sunday evening following the judging, which had been held in the afternoon. The owner, Louis Rudginsky, president of the Central Tire company of Winthrop, a suburb of Boston, Mass., said he turned from the dog a moment to talk to a friend, and in that short time the champion was stolen.

COMPLIANCE BOARD PLANS FORD CO. NRA HEARING AT CHESTER

Washington, D. C., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—The national compliance board today announced that a hearing on complaint of the Ford Motor company's employés at Chester, Pa., would be held at Chester in a few days.

William H. Davis, national compliance director, said the matter to be taken up at the hearing will be the charge of strikers that they had been discriminated against by the company. Edsel Ford was notified of the hearing.

The national compliance board announced yesterday that it would make a "detailed investigation of the company's alleged refusal to bargain collectively with employés of the Edgewater [N. J.] plant."

The employés charged that the Chester plant was shut down because of the strike and the orders diverted to Edgewater, where the employés also walked out. Dr. Davis held a hearing on the cases in this city last Friday but the Ford company refused to send a representative.

JACOBS' FORMER EMPLOYES TELL OF TAX METHODS

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $262,221, making a total of $107,762,964 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 28, 1933. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for four years follow.

	1928.	1929.
Feb. 26	$ 16,436	$ 38,765
Uncollected	15,151,400	40,624,379
	1930.	1931.
Feb. 26	$ 78,412	$ 128,608
Uncollected	64,325,467	61,711,216

The day's collections of 1932 personal property taxes totaled $272,553. Collections of 1931 personal property taxes totaled $4,165.

Two former employés of Assessor J. L. Jacobs were called as witnesses for the Chicago Real Estate board yesterday in the hearing before County Judge Jarecki on the board's petition for a 15 per cent reduction in the 1931 real estate assessments on the 438,000 homes and small flat buildings in the county. The witnesses testified that methods used in assessing small buildings were unfair and usually resulted in excessive valuations.

The witnesses were Edward Hartman and Ned Pasley. Hartman said the valuations on small homes discriminated against the owners and that more attention was paid to large property owners. Pasley, whose duty it had been to compute the assessed valuations of buildings from material furnished on cards, said speed rather than accuracy was the rule in the office. He admitted that he had been discharged by the assessor on Nov. 1, 1932.

The hearing was continued to tomorrow. Attorneys for the real estate board said they would summon building experts.

CONFER TODAY ON POLICE CAMPAIGN AGAINST RACKETS

Lieut. John L. Sullivan, recently appointed head of the special detail of 40 policemen organized to "rackets" and gangster domination of unions, announced last night that he would confer today with Acting Police Commissioner Ira McDowell on plans for an immediate investigation of all rackets now operating in the city. Lieut. Sullivan said he expected the new police detail would concentrate its initial investigations on labor unions controled by hoodlums and ex-convicts. Later in the day Lieut. Sullivan will confer with State's Attorney Courtney and Capt. Dan Gilbert, head of the state's attorney's special police, who will supervise the racket drive.

DRAFT TENTATIVE SCHOOL BUDGET OF $71,242,610

Economy Program Results to Be Shown.

The tentative 1934 school economy budget calling for a total appropriation of $71,242,610 will be placed in the hands of the school trustees this week. Action by the board in further trimming the tentative estimates will be held up pending the adoption of the school board's legislative program in Springfield.

The estimates are based on the prospective revenue to be provided in the "pegged tax levy" bill now pending before the assembly. This measure would insure a revenue for the school educational fund of $44,000,000 for 1933 and $43,000,000 for 1934. The fixed levies would be substituted for the present tax rates to assure the school board sufficient income despite the lowering of assessed valuation and consequent reduced tax collections.

Estimates Completed.

The estimates in the tentative budget were announced yesterday by Harry Brackett, school auditor, and his assistant, R. L. Douglas, who have been compiling figures submitted by school department heads. The estimates will be sent to the printers today and will be ready for the school trustees by the end of the week.

Howard Savage, business manager of the board, explained that the tentative budget was based on the board's 1933 budget which called for an appropriation of $71,549,701. Savings estimated at more than $3,000,000 were effected by the board last summer in its economy program.

Economy Results Evident.

"The results of our economy program will be apparent in our 1934 budget," said James B. McCahey, president of the school board.

A table comparing the 1933 budget with the tentative estimates in the 1934 budget in the eight major school funds follow:

Fund.	1933.	1934.
Educational	$51,905,403.67	$47,385,900
Free text book	626,246.00	851,911
Building	8,923,000.00	13,696,500
Playground	676,050.00	718,888
Teachers' pensions	1,315,600.00	1,238,400
Bond redemption	7,902,222.00	7,251,111
Lunchroom	119,300.00	95,900
Special funds	21,850.00	24,000
Totals	$71,549,701.67	$71,242,610

Added income in the educational fund will be forthcoming from the state distributive fund, which amounts to an annual appropriation of between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000, and through rentals which amount to $1,000,000 a year, according to Mr. Savage.

The tentative budget comprises the figures submitted by department heads for consideration by the school trustees, Mr. Savage explained.

INVESTIGATE SUBURBAN FIRE.

Melrose Park police yesterday were investigating the cause of a fire which destroyed the bungalow of Michael Stacey, brother of Louis [Doc] Stacey, reputed hoodlum, at 1210 North 15th avenue in the suburb early in the morning. The loss was estimated at $6,000.

FREEZING WEATHER FOLLOWS TORNADOES IN SOUTHERN STATES

Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Biting cold with below freezing temperatures moved in on the south tonight after tornadoes and rainstorms had left a toll of 17 known dead and approximately 100 injured in seven southern states.

The cold was expected to range from 8 degrees above zero in the Carolinas, to around freezing in Mississippi, where the storms took the greatest count in lives with 12 dead.

A cold wind sweeping the south added to the discomfort of the homeless or those living in damaged and makeshift houses.

The storms began striking late yesterday in Louisiana, where a Negro was killed. Hitting Mississippi 11 were killed in the vicinity of Meridian and one at Kewanee. Three died in Alabama and two in Georgia.

LAWYER PIQUETT, "MRS. DILLINGER" VISIT DESPERADO

Attorney Louis Piquett and a woman whom he identified as "Mrs. John Dillinger" appeared at Crown Point yesterday and held a conference with Criminal Judge William J. Murray, Prosecutor Robert G. Estill and Mrs. Lillian Holley, sherif. The lawyer is counsel for John Dillinger, Indiana desperado, who is scheduled to go to trial on March 16 for the murder of Policeman William P. O'Malley, slain during the robbery of the East Chicago bank.

Immediately after the conference the lawyer and the woman visited Dillinger in his cell in the Crown Point jail. They then returned to Chicago, refusing to speak to reporters who gathered to interview "Mrs. Dillinger," who was careful to keep her face veiled. Neither Estill nor Mrs. Holley would discuss the identity of the mysterious woman.

Attorney Piquett last evening said that he had visited Crown Point only to arrange to have his ten witnesses see Dillinger. He said they would testify that Dillinger was in Florida on the day the East Chicago bank was robbed.

BOY, 10, CRUSHED TO DEATH UNDER TRUCK'S WHEELS

Robert Kuhlman, 10 years old, 2346 Touhy avenue, was crushed to death yesterday when he took a ride on a truck. He slipped beneath the wheels when he either fell or jumped from the rear platform of the truck as it was being backed to the curb at Chase and North Damen avenues. The driver, Louis Behnke, 8716 Callie avenue, Morton Grove, was told by police to appear at the inquest. This death increased the 1934 Cook county motor toll to 192.

36 HOUR SNOW TIES NEW YORK IN FROZEN KNOT

Entire Eastern Seaboard Suffers.

New York, Feb. 26.—[Special.]—The nation wide death toll swelled to more than sixty today as snowstorms pelted the northeastern quarter of the country, and rain, hail and wind storms continued to devastate the south.

Snow which fell for more than thirty-six hours and was swept by a brisk nor'easter into deep drifts in rural and suburban areas blanketed New York and New England.

New York City, already cumbered with piles of packed snow and glazed and rutted ice—its heritage from last week's blizzard—was buried under ten inches of fine powdery flakes. Many Long Island communities, and a few New Jersey towns—notably Cape May—were isolated by the storm. Transportation lines were again delayed, planes were grounded and shipping blinded.

Ties Up Traffic.

The Long Island railroad's commuting trains were operated on a more and more erratic schedule throughout the day, and tonight during the rush hour service was completely disrupted.

Trains were operating only erratically beyond Jamaica late tonight, and officials of the road said they could not promise resumption of normal schedules tomorrow. Some of the snowbound villages in Long Island—as well as in New Jersey—were reported to be running short of coal, food and milk supplies, though it was not believed the needs of these communities would become acute before the end of the storm, which the local weather bureau forecast would come some time during the night.

CWA Workers to Rescue.

The storm created so acute an emergency in many parts of New York state and the metropolitan area that Washington granted permission to the local Civil Works Administration to employ CWA workers for snow removal.

Newark, already in dire financial straits, was cheered by the permission to use its CWA men for the job of cleaning its streets—thus saving the city a tidy bill. More than 36,000 were engaged in snow removal in New York City, and the board of estimate appropriated 2 million dollars for the work.

The area of snowstorms extended eastward from Indiana to the Atlantic coast. Five deaths were reported in Pennsylvania.

South Sorely Afflicted.

High Point, N. C., an important manufacturing center, was without communication or power facilities. So was Greensboro, N. C., a city of 60,000. Newspapers in Greensboro were forced to suspend publication, many stores were closed, and only 50 telephones were usable. Long distance lines could not be obtained. To make matters worse, the city's gas supply was rapidly nearing exhaustion.

Many North Carolina cities in the storm area were practically isolated, including Winston-Salem, Lexington, Salisbury, Thomasville, Gastonia, Concord, Monroe and Hickory. So, too, was practically the entire South Carolina industrial area from Columbia west to Greenville.

SCHOOL BOARD TOLD TO PAY UP SALARIES OR LOSE LIBRARIES

Members of the public library board yesterday fixed March 1 as the final date for the board of education to arrange to pay school librarian's salaries and agree to reimburse the library board for $109,000 paid to school librarians for back salaries. U. J. Herrmann, president of the library board said that orders had been issued to 49 school librarians to leave their school jobs on that date if the board of education failed to observe the deadline. The ultimatum affects the retention of libraries in thirty of the city's high schools.

Mr. Herrmann charged that the school board had failed to keep its part of a contract entered into in 1923 under which the board of education agreed to assume payment of salaries to the school librarians.

James B. McCahey, president of the school board, has announced that the trustees will do everything possible to assure continued maintenance of the school libraries.

STRIKE LOOMS AS RESTAURANT CODE GOES INTO EFFECT

The NRA code for the restaurant industry went into effect throughout the country yesterday. It provides for a basic six day work week not exceeding 54 hours for men and 48 for women. Recovery administration officials said the minimum wage scales provided will not add to pay rolls as determined by the President's reëmployment agreement and will be lower in many instances, although not as low as those prevailing prior to the operation of the agreement.

Chicago waiters were not inclined to accept the terms of the new code and made threats of a general strike here if demands for improved working conditions are not granted. They ask that wages and conditions existing prior to 1929 be restored. They assert they will not be able to make more than about $7 a week under the new restaurant and hotel codes. Plans were being made to serve hotels with an ultimatum in the matter today. About 12,000 employés are affected.

The new restaurant code provides for basic minimum wages of $15 a week for nonservice employés and $10.50 a week for service employés in cities with a population over 500,000. The wages are subject to review within 90 days to determine their adequacy. No deductions are to be made from employés' wages other than $3 a week for meals, $2.50 for lodging and a fee for uniform.

LINK HUMPHREYS TO ORGANIZATION OF LAUNDRY UNION

Witness Tells of Talks with Defendant.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

Murray Humphreys, who succeeded Al Capone as the kingpin of Chicago's rackets, picked the organizer for a laundry trade association and later purchased control of a laundry union, it was charged yesterday by a witness in the racket conspiracy trial in which 18 defendants are charged with fomenting terrorism and conducting illegal strikes and boycotts in the laundry, cleaning and dyeing, linen supply and carbonated beverages industries. The case is being tried in the criminal court of Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan.

The witness was Joseph Roth, 4817 North Kedzie avenue. He got his information, he said, from Marshall Rose, a defendant in the trial who allegedly admitted that Humphreys obtained for him his job as secretary of the Cook County Hand Laundry Owners association. The union which Humphreys is said to have "bought" for $1,500, was Local No. 100 of the Inside Laundry Workers.

Tells of Capone Visits.

Roth, a former president of the Walters' union, is now a civil works administration worker. For eight years he was a waiter at the Frolics café, which burned Sunday.

He testified that while he worked at the Frolics he frequently went to Al Capone's quarters in the nearby Lexington hotel to serve food to members of the gang, and saw Humphreys there. He became acquainted with Rose at the Frolics. In February, 1932, Roth testified, he paid a friendly call on Rose in the Hand Laundry association headquarters at 1608 West Madison street. This was several month before Attorney Aaron Sapiro entered the scene as counsellor for the Chicago Laundry Owners' association and promulgated the "Sapiro plan" for "stabilizing" the industry.

"I asked Rose, 'How did you get this?'" testified Roth. Rose, he said, replied:

"'Well, you know I was mixed up in the 'Sun Dodger.' I was called into Hump's office. I was afraid to go at first, but when I got there he asked if I had a record. I said no. Then Hump told me: 'You go over to the west side and take over the hand laundry association. You'll get $75 a week. I haven't got much money now, but the cleaners' and dyers' union is keeping me alive. Times are tough.'"

Tells of Seeking Rose's Aid.

Roth identified the 'Sun Dodger' as a night life publication, which he said was published by one Art Goidle, with Humphreys as a part owner.

Roth told of another conversation with Rose in July, 1932, when he and Walter G. Nolting, later organizer for the inside laundry workers' union, local No. 100, went to Rose and asked his aid in organizing the union.

Rose, Roth said, replied that they would have to get a charter for the union, and Humphreys' approval as well. Roth described a conversation with Humphreys on the subject, and it was brought out that a charter was obtained. Later, Roth testified, Rose told him that Nolting had "peddled that charter to Hump for $1,500."

Urged to Join Union.

The coöperation of Rose with Nolting and Sam Hurt, organizers for the union, had been described by a previous witness yesterday. Herman Shayne, 2608 Lemoyne avenue, owner of a south side hand laundry, Shayne testified that he became engaged in a price war with a neighboring hand laundry and had cut the price of laundered shirts from 13 to 10 cents each. Rose, he said, visited him and urged him to take down his cut price sign.

He refused, he said, and a few days afterward Hurt and Nolting appeared and asked permission to organize his "employés," consisting of one Negro girl. When he refused, his shop was picketed, Shayne said. At the same time officials of the Cornell laundry, 1504 East 56th street, which had been washing his laundry for him, called him and told him that they could no longer do his work. His shop was picketed for a month, at the end of which time Rose returned, he said.

"Rose said," testified Shayne, "'Would it make you mad if I took off those pickets?' I said, 'I should say not.' Rose said, 'All right. Then take down that 10 cent shirt sign.' I did, and the pickets were called off."

Roth did not finish his direct testimony yesterday and defense attorneys waived cross-examination of Shayne, the first time they have failed to cross-examine a prosecution witness in several weeks.

Tells of Nelson's Change.

Following the appearance of Attorney Sapiro in the picture, Ald. Nelson underwent a change of opinion regarding the ability of his clients, the drivers' union, to give one laundry owner preference over another in the matter of a wage scale contract, according to the testimony yesterday of Attorney Leo Lowenthal. Whereas, the witness testified, Nelson once refused to countenance the preferential wage scale, he did, later, uphold it in his capacity as legal counsel.

The witness said that he had been attorney for the Chicago Laundry Owners association at intervals for 25 years, and that for more than a year before the Sapiro plan was adopted he had attempted in vain to get for his clients a revision of a five year wage scale contract made with the union in 1929.

On one occasion, in late 1930 or early 1931, Attorney Lowenthal said, he suggested to Ald. Nelson that members of the association be given a lower scale than nonmembers. Ald. Nelson told him then that it couldn't be done, he said.

Backbone of Sapiro Plan.

The backbone of the Sapiro plan was just such a contract, giving members of the association a base scale of $30.50 a week for drivers. Nonmembers had to pay the old scale of $40.50 a week, under individual contracts. A number of independent laundrymen then organized the Laundry and Dry Cleaners Association of Cook County, with Attorney Lowenthal as counsel.

He identified correspondence which he had with Ald. Nelson, asking that the Cook county association be granted the same low scale as the Chicago association.

In the final letter of the series Attorney Nelson replied on behalf of the union that the union refused to recognize the Cook County association, that it regarded the Chicago association as the only bona fide employers' group, and that nonmembers of that association would have to continue to pay the old scale under individual agreements.

The Sapiro plan was promulgated in July of 1932. There followed a series of strikes at independent plants which Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber and his staff insist were called for the sole purpose of forcing the independents into the Chicago Laundry Owners' association.

Attorney Lowenthal described a conversation which he had with George Knott, vice president of the union and a defendant, when a strike was called on Aug. 29, 1932, at the Edgewater laundry, which was one of his clients. The conversation, he said, ran as follows:

LOWENTHAL—George, why don't you call off this strike? These people are paying the same scale as the Chicago Laundry Owners' association.

KNOTT—If you're going to pay that scale you'll have to join the association.

LOWENTHAL—They can't join. I wouldn't allow a client of mine to join. The contract has every evidence of being illegal. The dollar a week assessment may lead to violence, and if it did, the signers would be liable. [He referred to an assessment of a dollar a week per truck under the Sapiro plan, to be used by the union for organization of price cutting hand laundries.]

Refers to Threat.

KNOTT—They [the Edgewater laundry] will join or pay the $40 scale.

LOWENTHAL—They'll do neither.

KNOTT—Then we'll put them out of business.

LOWENTHAL—They'll operate if we have to put a guard on every truck.

The Edgewater laundry attempted to use strikebreakers, some of whom were slugged, but eventually signed up as a member of the Sapiro group, previous testimony has shown.

Fight Spectacular Fire in Loop

Restaurant Ruined

Cause of the fire which early yesterday caused $50,000 damage in the five story building at 18-20 West Lake street was traced to an overheated furnace. The flames practically destroyed the Bollard and Frazier restaurant on the first floor, well known for many years, and a new redwood barroom in the basement. Also damaged was a stock of imported liquors of the Le Coeur-Droulet products company on the second floor. Several hundred firemen were summoned by a 4-11 alarm.

ICKES DISCUSSES NEW DEAL PLANS ON CONSERVATION

More Water Projects in Prospect, He Says.

The development of more water power projects like the two great ones at Boulder dam and in the Tennessee valley is planned by the Roosevelt administration, Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior, declared last night in an address delivered to members of the Chicago Dental society. The occasion was the opening of the society's 70th annual convention in the Stevens hotel.

"This administration is planning ahead for the next twenty-five or fifty years," Mr. Ickes declared.

He mentioned specifically the study of the Mississippi valley now under way and the survey of the country's water sources which is being made by the national planning board as evidence of the national administration's ambitious plans for the future.

An Ardent Conservationist.

Secretary Ickes described President Roosevelt as "a practicing conservationist" and he himself as "an ardent one."

"Heretofore," he declared, "the reckless exploitation of natural resources has resulted in serious losses in lives and property. No man has a right to make $5,000,000 by destroying the forests at the headwaters of a river if that exploitation causes floods that destroy property worth $50,000,000 downstream.

"Under the New Deal the property of the people will be developed, under wise control, for the benefit of the people. Heretofore it has been the habit to turn our resources over to the private exploiter.

Cites Evidences of Waste.

"Among the shameful facts of man's inhumanity to man, through waste of natural resources, have been the destruction of timber land, the extravagant exploitation of oil and the serious depletion of the western ranges through overgrazing."

The country is paying, Mr. Ickes declared, for the actions of its "thoughtless, exploiting, destructive forefathers."

"They had the vices that went with their virtues," he said. "The universal ambition was to acquire wealth and it was catch as catch can. No holds were barred.

"I do not object to any man building up a great fortune, providing he can do so without injury to others. But I do take serious objection to a man enriching himself at the expense of others.

On Women and Children.

"No man has a right to live in soft luxury through the employment of women or children of tender years at tailsome, back-breaking tasks beyond their strength, for wages insufficient to support themselves in decency.

"No man has a right to become a multi-millionaire through the waste or wilful destruction of essential natural resources, especially if such destruction means loss of property and life to others."

Destruction of the country's forests, Secretary Ickes said, has made its rivers abnormally high in rainy seasons and abnormally low in dry periods. There is a decline in underground water levels, too, he said, which is seriously disturbing the west.

Recalls Los Angeles Flood.

As an example of the cost of destroying forests he cited the Thanksgiving day flood at Los Angeles, which, he said, would not have occurred had the brush cover of the area been left intact.

Referring to the western uplands, he asserted that land was being destroyed "at an alarming rate." He estimated that at least 35 million acres of formerly cultivated land had been "practically destroyed" by erosion and declared that it takes "at least 400 years" to build an inch of productive soil from raw subsoil clay.

Mr. Ickes asserted that the western ranges are being exploited by sheep and cattle men who have little regard even for their own future welfare. They are gradually destroying their own industries, he declared, though in recent years enlightened stockmen have attempted to correct conditions by forming voluntary grazing districts.

Urges a Grass Conscious U. S.

"We ought to educate the people of this country to be grass conscious," Mr. Ickes said. "Maintain grass on the range and new cracks and gullies will cease to form. Plant grass on the slopes and at the headwaters of the streams and floods will be controled.

"If farmers will plant more grass they will not only protect their erodible soil but will perforce raise less wheat and corn to press on an already overburdened market. A wise use of grass will solve many problems of conservation, agriculture and economics.

"Some stockmen are supporting a bill drafted to give the secretary of the interior power to regulate and control grazing on the public domain in the real interest of the stock industry. But a great many cattle and sheep men are resisting the efforts of the government to help them by opposing control of their destructive methods though the range they are destroying is not theirs but the range of all the people of the United States."

Animal Resources Vanishing.

"Sportsmen and nature lovers are in a state of alarm over the disappearance in many parts of the country of natural animal resources," Mr. Ickes went on.

"What can be done to protect and build up this wild life," he said, "has been demonstrated by the state of Pennsylvania where millions of trees have been replanted in its denuded forests and which is now one of the greatest hunting and fishing states in the union."

Approximately 100 speakers are expected to discuss scientific subjects during the dental convention, which will close Thursday. Two hundred clinics are to be held at the Stevens hotel and in hospitals.

CWA WILL LAY OFF 17,500 MORE MEN IN ILLINOIS BY FRIDAY

Frank D. Chase, new Civil Works administrator for Illinois, yesterday announced 17,500 CWA workers in the state will be laid off by Friday. The reduction is being made in conformance with the general CWA demobilization order of Harry L. Hopkins, federal administrator.

Director Chase said 5,000 workers will be dropped in Cook county to bring the total number of workers in the county to 90,000. Last week 5,000 county workers were cut from the CWA pay roll in compliance with Washington orders.

Downstate a cut of 12,500 is to be effected during the week to bring the total number of those employed outside of Cook county to 69,500. Last week 18,000 downstate men were laid off. At the end of the week the total number of workers in the state will be 159,500, as against peak employment of approximately 200,000 workers.

In all cases reductions are to be made with a view to keeping those most in need on the pay rolls, Mr. Chase said.

Mr. Chase named his successor as chief engineer of the administration for the state. He is Paul E. Green, consulting engineer, who served under Administrator Chase as assistant chief engineer in charge of downstate counties.

LAWYERS FLOCK TO ASK QUASHING OF INDICTMENTS

Quick Rehearing Sought in Supreme Court.

The Criminal courts building hummed with activity yesterday as a result of the state Supreme court's decision of last Friday invalidating the Cook county grand jury system.

Lawyers flocked to the courts with petitions to quash indictments against burglars, gunmen, rapists—criminals of all classes—on the ground that the indictments were illegal under the high court's decision.

Judges Plan Action.

The judges met in an emergency meeting at noon and decided on a plan of action which will prevent the release of any law breaker pending a decision on a petition of the state for a rehearing and a reconsideration by the Supreme court judges of their ruling.

State's Attorney Courtney announced he would ask the Supreme court to sit in extraordinary session and listen to the petition for a rehearing as a matter of public policy. The high court will not meet again in regular session until April and a decision could not be expected until June in the ordinary course of events.

If an emergency session were held, a decision could be rendered in about two weeks, it was pointed out.

Trials to Continue.

Acting immediately on the many petitions to quash indictments, the Criminal court judges decided to insist that all such petitions be presented in writing and then to take them under advisement. No petition will be ruled upon until the Supreme court has made a decision upon the motion for a rehearing.

In the meanwhile, the trials of indicted persons will continue. If a defendant is found guilty and sentenced to the penitentiary, the defense attorney will make a motion for a new trial based on the faulty indictment. This motion, likewise, will be held in abeyance by the judge until the Supreme court rules on the rehearing petition.

The defendant involved will be kept in the county jail pending the high court's action. This was held to be the only course open to the judges, but it will undoubtedly create a serious condition in the county jail, already filled to overflowing, if the Supreme court decision is long delayed.

Summons Already Issued.

Both Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan and State's Attorney Courtney said nothing could be done about the selection of the March grand jury to conform with the recent ruling which stated that only 23 men should be summoned for each jury instead of the fifty or more summoned in Cook county. This is done to avoid delay in obtaining the proper number, the 23 jurors being then chosen by lot from those who answer the summons.

Under the law, it was pointed out, a grand jury must be summoned twenty days before the time for impanelment and the March grand jury summonses have already been issued.

Before the Criminal court judges decided upon the system of taking all motions under advisement, they had been called upon to rule upon scores of motions to quash indictments. Several judges continued such motions, others overruled them. Hereafter, they will all follow the same course, it was announced.

The state's attorney's staf was also busy yesterday drafting legislation designed to correct the grand jury act. As a further complicating circumstance, it was pointed out, the present criminal code, which went into effect Jan. 1, declares that the county board should draw the grand jurors, a provision which was included in the law, apparently by error, and which has been disregarded by the state thus far.

A new worry disturbed the state yesterday when another possible result of the Supreme court ruling was revealed. Under the law, an indicted person must be tried within ninety days after the time of his incarceration if he remains in jail during that period and makes no motion for a continuance. He is entitled to a discharge if he demands a trial at four successive terms of court and is not given a hearing. If the Supreme court decision on a rehearing is delayed, many a person charged with crime may be set free after ninety days if he complies with the provisions of the law, it was pointed out.

Recall Earlier Decision.

Only a year ago, on Feb. 23, 1933, the Supreme court of Illinois issued a decision in the Wolf case, lawyers recalled yesterday, which was apparently a direct reversal of their decision of last week. Justice Norman L. Jones, in that opinion, said:

"It was clearly the intent of the legislature to leave to the judge or judges of the court the exercise of reasonable discretion in certifying the number of grand jurors to be drawn. In the exercise of that discretion, the judge has a right to draw upon the experience of the court as to the requisite number to be drawn to insure the attendance of 23 qualified grand jurors who do not have legal excuses.

"He has no right to unreasonably exercise such discretion and thus put the public to the expense of drawing and summoning an unreasonable number. While 100 seems a large number [the number drawn in the case in question] we cannot say from the evidence of the experience of the Criminal court of Cook county that there was here an unreasonable exercise of the discretion vested in the chief justice."

COX MARITAL SUIT IS HEARD IN PRIVATE AS TOO DIRTY FOR PUBLIC

New Orleans, La., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—The case of George M. Cox against his estranged wife, Thelma Goertz Cox, on a contempt rule for the latter's refusal to permit him to see their 3 year old child, was being tried in Judge Hugh C. Cage's private office Monday.

The judge said it's too filthy for the public to hear. "I'm not running anybody out of this courtroom. I have no right to do that, but anybody who has come here to hear filth will be badly disappointed, since I intend hearing the Cox case in chambers."

Asked if that meant that reporters would also be excluded, Judge Cage replied emphatically, "Yes, you have no more right to attend this hearing than anybody else."

The courtroom was packed at the time Judge Cage made his ruling.

CRAIN ASSURES FAST PAYMENT ON CWA CONTRACTS

Fears of further delays in government payment for materials hurriedly supplied for early projects of the Civil Works administration are without basis, C. M. Crain, state purchasing agent for the CWA, said yesterday. Mr. Crain explained that all legal obstacles to payment of these bills were removed Feb. 16 by the President's executive order covering emergency expenditures rushed through without competitive bidding.

Money is being turned over rapidly to contractors and others as yet unpaid for CWA work, Mr. Crain said, and all of the earlier bills, until recently held up, should be settled within a few weeks. This applies to downstate contracts as well as those in Cook county.

Hardware merchants, in a message asking the President to cut red tape to enable speedier payment had quoted Mr. Crain as saying payment might have to await congressional action. This, Mr. Crain explained, was prior to the President's order, which altered the situation completely.

CALLS 'NEW DEAL' MODEL OF AN OLD CHINESE CUSTOM

Prototypes of the national recovery, agricultural adjustment, and public works administrations existed in China more than 700 years ago, according to Kenneth E. Foster, director of stage art and design at the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, who spoke yesterday before the Junior Association of Commerce at the Great Northern hotel.

During the latter part of the Sung dynasty, 916-1280 A. D., a scholar by the name of Wang An Shih gained the confidence of the emperor and for five years he was a dictator with powers similar to those exercised by Gen. Hugh Johnson, said the speaker, who is a student of Chinese history.

Industry was to be nationalized with manufacturers and the government forced to buy surplus products and transport them to places where they were needed. Poor farmers were given state crop loans.

M'FADDEN ASSERTS MACDONALD OFFERED BERMUDAS TO U. S.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Congress was told today by Representative McFadden [Rep., Pa.], that at the famous "log conference" between Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain and President Hoover at the latter's Rapidan camp, Hoover refused to accept the Bermuda islands in part payment of England's war debt to this country.

Describing such a transaction as "nothing new," McFadden suggested that France and the United States agree on a transfer of the Marquesas islands to the United States in cancelation of France's overdue debt payments. He also urged that a similar deal be negotiated with England and Australia for the Admiralty islands or the Solomon islands.

McFadden also charged that "a deliberate and sustained effort is being made" to force the United States into a war with Japan.

"If fate," he said, "with a little assistance from propaganda, should rule that two rivals of wise old England should destroy each other's naval and commercial strength by conflict with each other, England would stand to recover the trade and ocean carriage she has lost."

EVANSTON'S DRY ORDINANCE SETS 3.2 AS THE LIMIT

The Evanston city council adopted a dry ordinance last night prohibiting the sale of any alcoholic beverages stronger than 3.2 per cent. The vote was 13 to 1, the lone dissenter, Ald. Albert Smith of the 8th ward, contending that in the last state referendum Evanston voted better than 3 to 1 wet, and that the present sentiment is wet.

The new dry ordinance is a stopgap measure. A referendum, which is expected to settle the question definitly, will be held by Evanston voters on April 3.

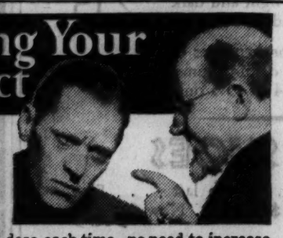
Stop Irritating Your Digestive Tract



Avoid Laxatives That Constipate. Nature's Way—a Gentle Flush

Medicine-laxatives—no matter how pleasant tasting—often cause the intestinal muscles to become sluggish, lazy. For most of them work by irritating the delicate membranes of the digestive tract.

PLUTO WATER is a saline mineral water—not a medicine-laxative. It owes its speed to the fact that it promptly opens the pylorus valve leading to the small intestine—flushes both intestines gently and completely. It is non-irritating—cannot give you the laxative habit.

The proper dilution—one-fifth glass Pluto in four-fifths glass hot water is practically tasteless. The same dose each time—no need to increase it—always performs, does not gripe, gives positive results in less than one hour. Two sizes: Splits (8 ounces)—large bottles (3 times the quantity). PEEK WILL HEAD 3 U. S. BANKS FOR FOREIGN TRADING

President Puts Export Plans Into Effect.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—America's hopes for building up a great foreign trade with the nations of the world were discussed at length today at a presidential conference.

At the conclusion of the conference, George N. Peek, farm leader, announced his acceptance of the post as head of three export-import banks which are to be set up at once to help American exporters to finance shipments abroad.

There had been several evidences of dissension among the Roosevelt advisers on the plans proposed by Mr. Peek, and for a time it was doubted that he would accept any new post in the administration, but his announcement was taken as an indication that the differences have been ironed out.

Three Cabinet Members Attend.

The conference, held in the President's White House office, was attended by Secretary of Commerce Roper, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Secretary of State Hull and various of their assistants and economic advisers, and representatives of the federal trade commission and the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

It was learned that the President informed the group that he would ask congress for extraordinary powers to deal with the trade situation, to permit him to wield tariff rates in his own discretion and to enter into reciprocal bilateral agreements with any foreign nation. It is the President's hope to enter into bargaining with many nations who can purchase American goods and who can supply goods to the American markets which Americans do not produce in sufficient quantity.

These negotiations have already proceeded practically to completion with various South and Central American countries, under the direction of Secretary Hull.

Peek to Head Three Banks.

The venture into governmental participation in the financing of American exports, to be headed by Mr. Peek, will be accomplished, Peek revealed, by the formation of three government-owned banks, to be located in Washington.

One of these banks, for the financing of Russian exports and imports exclusively, is all ready for immediate operations, and Mr. Peek indicated there would be no delay in the extension of credit to exporters having orders from Russia. The details of the procedure to be followed and the extent to which the government will guarantee the payment of the bills of the soviets have not been disclosed.

Mr. Peek said a bank to finance exports and imports to Cuba will be organized promptly, to be followed immediately by the creation of a third bank to handle credits for all other foreign countries.

Peek Issues Statement.

The Peek statement, issued with the authority of President Roosevelt, is as follows:

"In accepting the presidency of the Export-Import bank of Washington, it is only fair to agriculture, to so much of industry as may be affected by its operation, and to the public, briefly to make known my views.

"To agriculture: I shall not forget the farmers' interest, to which I have devoted myself for at least a decade. I have said on many occasions that I am in politics for agriculture, not in agriculture for politics. I call attention to the fact that for many years I have advocated expansion of our agricultural exports to relieve our burden of surpluses, present and recurring. Increased exports of agricultural products to some countries is possible to some extent in spite of existing handicaps, while exports of industrial exports alone are possible to certain other countries.

"Both types of exports can benefit the farmer, the first by directly expanding his markets, and the second by relieving unemployment and thus stimulating the demand for agricultural products in our own industrial centers.

Statement to Industry.

"To industry: Due to changing conditions throughout the world, government can and should assist in many directions in the conduct of a sound international trade. I urge industry in its own interest to be temperate in its demands, and I invite its fullest coöperation. I want to make it clear that the bank has been created for the purpose of assisting our foreign trade and of providing facilities, not now obtainable in regular banking channels, for financing the seller.

"It has not been created for the purpose of acting as Santa Claus to hand out presents at home or abroad. Eventually exports and imports must balance.

"To the public generally: I say that this is just one more move on the part of the President in his program to break the back of the depression. We did not get into our trouble in a few weeks or months, and we shall not be lifted out of it by any miracle. A second export bank is now being set up for Cuba, and a third will be formed at once for other foreign countries.

Agricultural Prices Ruinous.

"Agricultural prices are and for a long time have been unduly depressed and ruinously below their fair relation to other prices. Agriculture must be restored promptly to its proper place in the nation's life. This must be done, as the President has repeatedly pointed out, not only for the sake of the farmer, but for the sake of industry and labor, indeed, for the nation as a whole. The organization of this new agency adds one more force to those already working in unison to recreate a balanced national recovery.

"In addition to the duties as president of these banks, I will continue as foreign trade adviser to the President in which capacity I shall undertake to coördinate the information pertaining to the many activities in foreign trade which are now scattered throughout many departments and bureaus of the federal government."

ADMITS KISSES; IT'S ALL RIGHT, GIRLS MARRIED

Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 26.—(AP)—A charge that one of the state printer's employés has been printing kisses on the lips of feminine colleagues stirred California's capitol today.

James F. Lyon, supervising copy editor at the plant, was accused specifically. He said he was "no more guilty than 14 or 15 others."

"There is nothing wrong," Lyon protested. "The women are all married. Some of them have been married several times. We did kiss the girls but only in a fatherly way."

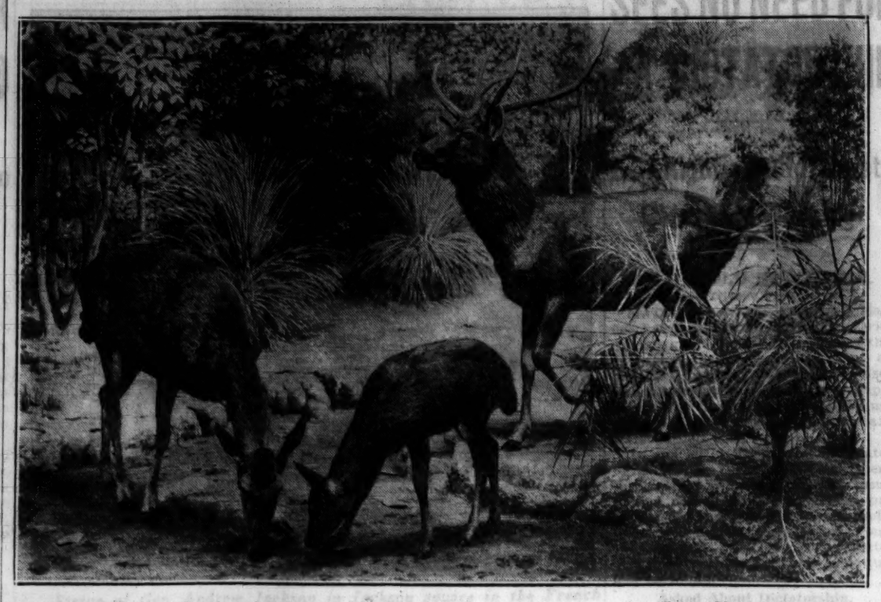
Sambar Deer to Be Displayed at Field Museum



New group of Sambar deer of Asia to be placed on exhibition at the Field Museum of Natural History tomorrow. The animals were collected by Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Kermit Roosevelt, and Col. J. C. Founthorpe. [Field Museum Photo.]

Opens Tomorrow

A group of sambar deer of Asia, two of them obtained in 1925 by Col. Theodore Roosevelt and Kermit Roosevelt, will be placed on exhibition tomorrow at the Field Museum of Natural History, it was announced yesterday by Stephen C. Simms, director of the museum.

The animals, mounted in characteristic attitudes, have been placed in a setting which reproduces a luxuriant forest scene. The alkaline crystals of a salt lick are seen on the ground and one of the deer is licking this.

The group was prepared by Taxidermists Julius Friesser and Arthur G. Rueckert and Staff Artist Charles A. Corwin. It is the eighth to be completed in the museum's new hall of Asiatic mammal groups. Plans call for twelve more groups in this series, work on some of which is now under way.

TURKEY OPENS WAY FOR U.S.; HITS BRITISH INDUSTRY

Cancels Orders Pending New Treaty.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 26. — A bombshell was dropped today on British industry by the Turkish government which should provide a great opportunity for American manufacturers to enter a new market.

The news has reached London that the Ankara government has canceled a big contract with a British firm for sugar refineries in Anatolia. The Turkish government ordered that in no circumstances shall any contracts be given to British firms under its five year plan until Great Britain agrees to reciprocate with a commercial treaty such as Turkey already has with the United States and several European countries.

Awarded to German Firm.

These particular contracts have been awarded to a German firm, although its quotation was 12 per cent higher than the British figure.

A commercial treaty between Britain and Turkey has been under discussion for some time. The British, however, insist upon certain conditions which the Turks claim are political, such as the right to fly over Turkey on an air route to India, and the refusal to agree to Turkey's demand for the right to refortify the Dardanelles.

At the same time trade is continuing between the two countries and the sugar refineries contract was agreed to by the ministry of national economy, but vetoed by the foreign office. This action led to representations to the British government by British engineering firms, which urged that a speedy agreement be made with the Turks.

Hampered by Imperial Pact.

The trouble with Turkey is also complicated by certain clauses in the imperial trade agreement which hamper the British in meeting the Turkish views.

This situation may be even more far reaching than with just Turkey. It is learned that Riza Khan Pahlevi, shah of Persia, will soon be visiting Ankara and Bagdad, Iraq, with a view to arranging for economic coöperation between Persia, Turkey, and Iraq. Persia also has a five year plan from which British manufacturers have been hoping to benefit.

Iraq recently decided to take into its own hands the refining of its share of oil from Iraqi fields and soon will be in the market for refining machinery. Persia in the past has favored British firms, but it is feared now that if a rapprochement with Turkey is established trade may be routed in other directions for political purposes.

One of the big opportunities in both Turkey and Persia lies in the plans for the hydro-electrification of both countries from power on both sides of the Caucasus mountains.

So far, the military of both countries is opposed to any unification scheme, because in case of war one country would be dependent upon the other for power.

PENAL AND CHARITY POPULATION GROWS 1,052 DURING YEAR

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—Illinois' penal and eleemosynary institutions have a population of 47,203, according to a report made to Gov. Henry Horner today by A. L. Bowen, director of the state department of public welfare. This figure, compared with last year's 46,151, shows a net increase of 1,052.

The fact that almost 90 per cent of the annual increase represents mental and nervous cases, Director Bowen said, emphasizes the importance of Gov. Horner's recent action in appointing a state psychiatric council, composed of representatives from each of the four medical colleges in Illinois, to coöperate with the welfare department in the study and prevention of mental and nervous disorders.

Total enrollment at the state institutions on Feb. 1 reached 60,168, the directors' report revealed. The difference between enrollment and resident population is accounted for by prisoners on parole and absences on furlough from old soldiers' homes.

FARMERS MUST PAY INCOME TAX ON EASY MONEY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—Commissioner of Internal Revenue Guy T. Helvering today ruled that farmers who have received acreage reduction checks from the agricultural adjustment administration must list them in their income tax returns.

Between 150 and 200 million dollars in such benefits have been paid out by the AAA to farmers who have agreed to cut the production of wheat, cotton, and tobacco. Millions of dollars are yet to be paid to other farmers.

Commissioner Helvering ruled that all of these payments are taxable income and must be reported in making up an income tax return. The ruling is expected, however, to touch only a comparatively few farmers because most agricultural incomes do not reach up into the income tax brackets and are exempt entirely.

FINDS ROOM FOR U. S. EXPORTS IN SOUTH AFRICA

Refrigerators, Radios and Bicycles Are Wanted.

BY W. E. NASH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

JOHANNESBURG, Union of South Africa, Feb. 26.—More than one trade market lines the route between Cape Town and Cairo. More than one overseas nation aspires to supply these customers with industrial products. Great Britain, by no means, possesses all the trade in its African possessions.

During 1932 Britain sold $80,000,000 worth of merchandise to the Union of South Africa alone. During the first nine months of 1932 the United States came second. The shipments totaled 14 per cent of all South Africa's needs. The cash value was about $20,000,000.

Prosperity at this end and the depreciation of the dollar, it is believed, will increase the United States' share of the trade in 1934.

Has Money to Buy.

South Africa has money. Reports indicate a $150,000,000 surplus in the trade budget [excess of exports over imports]. Railroad earnings are shooting up. Wool shows an increase of 139 per cent in price. Agriculture is prospering. Unemployment is fading. Gold mining on the Witwatersrand and building operations throughout the Transvaal are booming.

A large section of the buying public, chiefly the Dutch or Afrikaan speaking inhabitants, is favorable to American goods.

American exports to this as well as other parts of Africa heretofore have consisted principally of specialties, such as mining machinery [air-driven], radios and refrigerators, agricultural machinery, automotive and petroleum products, movie films, and office appliances.

Out of 200,000 automobiles registered in the country fully 75 per cent are American made. British automobiles, however, are becoming popular and during the first nine months of 1933 more British than American cars were imported. Several of the lower priced American cars are assembled in factories at Port Elizabeth, Cape Colony. They ship cars north far beyond the borders of South Africa.

Construction Timber Needed.

Oregon pine and other kinds of construction timber is purchased in the United States.

There is room for American blanket and bicycle exports. Native purchases of these articles are enormous, not only in South Africa, but also in the protectorates. Japanese exporters have been getting a good slice of this business.

American bicycles are practically unknown in this part of the world. They cost between $25 and $30 in Johannesburg, against $18 for a British make and $12 or less for a Japanese brand. A reduction in price would help the American bicycle business here.

Reciprocal tariff concessions proposed by the United States to aid her bicycle or specialty trade would meet with sympathetic consideration from South Africa. Among the most acceptable concessions the United States could make would be a removal of the embargo on South African fruit. This embargo has its origin in the fear of the so-called Mediterranean fly. Any relaxation of the embargo would remove some of the sting.

Concessions on manganese ore are also sought. A liberal quota for South African wine and brandy would also be appreciated here. Diamonds, asbestos and wattle bark could be earmarked for additional preferences.

Cheap ocean freight rates are of primary importance to encourage trade between the United States and Africa. These scarcely exist at present. The one steamship line which offers direct freight and passenger accommodations between the United States and South Africa, as well as the two or three direct lines from Canada, are under British financial control. Their freight rates offer no saving on the roundabout quotations via Liverpool and Southampton.

American interests in Africa would like to see the establishment of a new line out of New Orleans, calling first at Cape Town and then other African ports along the east coast up to and including Portugal's Beira.

The commercial term "South Africa," includes territory as far north as the River Zambezi. It includes Basutoland, Swaziland, Bechuanaland, South West Africa, Southern Rhodesia, and parts of Mozambique or Portugese East Africa.

Southern Rhodesia as Buyer.

Southern Rhodesia, a self-governing colony, might become a promising market for United States exports. She is the sixth largest gold producing country in the world, with a high purchasing power and a high standard of living. She is acquainted with American goods, too.

Though intensely British, Southern Rhodesia may be induced to buy more American automobiles, movie films, and machinery if the United States purchased some of her tobacco.

British West Africa is another potential market. In fact, her purchases in the United States totaled $1,500,000 in the first six months of 1933.

Steady progress in civilization made by British Africa in the last 30 years has created a greater demand for manufactured goods, 90 per cent of which must come from overseas, and the United States could easily increase her share.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

THIS is the first entry in the diary of THE TRIBUNE'S experimental farm located near Yorkville, in Kendall county, Illinois. The acres of this farm on the banks of the Fox river are to become a practical field laboratory for testing new crops which agriculturists believe will furnish additional sources of income for the midwest farmer.

The diary of the experimental farm is going to record not only the regular routine which is followed in the production of crops, but also the many human interest and more intimate incidents which make up the farmer's day. The pleasures and compensations of living in the country away from the noise and confusion of cities, the challenge in making things grow, the joy of harvesting what you have sown, and the difficulties which attend the farmer's work as he produces and markets his products—everything that happens on the farm will be revealed in this daily chronicle of events.

Inventory Day.

Today is inventory day in the diary. As February gives way to March and a promise of spring, the farm presents this stock inventory:

BEEF CATTLE—The farm has 198 head of cattle. All are Herefords, with the exception of 49 plain steers. About 31 of the Herefords [yearlings] will be marketed soon. The rest will be held until fall.

THE DAIRY—There are 21 Guernseys in the herd of dairy cattle, of which 15 are being milked. The dairy barns also house eight calves ranging in age from two months to yearlings, and four that are yearlings and over.

SWINE—The Hampshire and Chester White sows total 50. Already eleven of the sows have farrowed more than 85 pigs.

SHEEP—The sheepfold is crowded with 173 bred ewes, 47 ewe lambs being held for breeding stock and three Southdown rams.

POULTRY—With 175 Barred Rock hens, 8 cockerels, 25 guinea hens, 12 Muscovy ducks and 21 turkeys [18 hens and 3 gobblers] the poultry yard is a busy place these days. In addition to these birds there 26 wild geese and 12 swans which live on a pond and rear their families away from all barnyard and domestic fowls.

Twelve draft horses and three tractors furnish the power for cultivating the acreage of the farm.

The Farm's Staf.

Clarence Thurow is manager of the experimental farm. Louis Thurow Sr., his father and a veteran farmer, acts as "general counsel." Assisting Clarence on the farm are Edward Johnson, Charles Sleezer, Herman Guenther and Louis Thurow Jr. Thurow and Sleezer have charge of the feeding of the cattle. Jack Kunde handles the herd of dairy cows. Herman Guenther is charged with the responsibility of taking care of the swine. John Rawlings is the sheep and poultry man.

Although winter is trying hard to hold the land in its grip, spring is giving hints of its arrival, so all the workers on the farm are busy at tasks which range from getting seeds for planting and preparing pastures for grazing use to planning for the setting of hens.

DR. DEAN'S AUNT OFFERS ALIBI AT MURDER TRIAL

Testifies Niece Planned to Wed Another.

Greenwood, Miss., Feb. 26.—(AP)—A witness told the jury today that Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean was planning to marry another person last summer when Dr. John Preston Kennedy, with whose murder she is charged, died of what the state contends was a poisoned whisky highball.

Mrs. Ruth Dean Boyls, aunt-namesake of the defendant, calmly testified that Dr. Dean was planning to marry Capt. Franklin C. Maull, and then told the jury that Dr. Dean was sewing on her trousseau and did not leave the house on the night she is alleged to have handed Dr. Kennedy a poisoned highball at a farewell tryst.

Mrs. Boyls, who cared for Dr. Dean "since she was a baby," said the defendant had planned to leave Greenwood on Aug. 5, the day before Dr. Kennedy died.

"Do you know where this Capt. Maull lives?" a defense attorney asked.

"In Lewes [Del.], I think," Mrs. Boyls answered.

The prosecuting attorney asked if she would get Maull's address.

"That depends on whether she'll give it to me," Mrs. Boyls replied, looking over at the defendant.

Dr. Dean's trial entered its fifth week today. The greater part of the day was consumed by wrangling between counsel over hypothetical questions.

SCALDED BABY DIES OF BURNS.

Peter Skapes, 18 months old, 6441 Cottage Grove avenue, died at St. Bernard's hospital early yesterday of burns suffered Feb. 23 when he fell into a tub of scalding water in the kitchen of his home.

Hair roots become dormant when (1) they have been deprived of normal nourishment or (2) when some local scalp disorder makes it impossible for these sources of growth to function normally.

Thomas' effective scalp treatment (1) stimulates these dormant sources of nourishment and (2) overcomes the local causes of baldness. if ANYBODY KNOWS NEW YORK

If you want to know a newspaper's real selling power, find out what the department stores think of it; find out how much department store advertising it publishes. For if anybody knows the local market and its advertising mediums it's the local department store.

In New York you'll find that the department stores have for many years placed more advertising in The Sun, which is published six days a week, than in any other newspaper, including those that have seven issues a week. The Sun leads all seven-day as well as six-day newspapers in the entire country in department store advertising.

Any manufacturer of merchandise sold through New York stores, any retailer in New York, large or small, can profitably be guided by the pronounced preference which the New York department stores show for The Sun.

ROYALISTS RALLY IN VIENNA; CHEER ARCHDUKE OTTO

Report Fascist Troops to Escort Him Into City.

[Copyright: 1934: By the Associated Press.]

VIENNA, Feb. 26.—Lusty cheers were given for the imperial Hapsburg family, Chancellor Dollfuss, and Prince von Starhemberg, heimwehr commander, at a massmeeting tonight of monarchists who demanded the eventual restoration of the Austrian throne.

While they met rumors circulated that troops of the Fascist heimwehr, of home guard, were en route to the Swiss border to meet the Archduke Otto, claimant to the Austrian throne, and escort him triumphantly into Vienna.

Hail Victory Over Socialists.

Legitimist speakers tonight paid tribute to Dollfuss' and Prince von Starhemberg's recent victory in a Socialist uprising and called these gains a prelude to the reinstallation of a monarch.

As an immediate and preliminary step in that direction orators demanded the revocation of laws banishing the Hapsburgs and confiscating their property.

Chancellor Dollfuss did not attend the meeting, but sent a message of encouragement.

PLAN TO GAG PRESS

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Feb. 26.—The next onslaught by the new Fascist government of Austria, which will shortly adopt a corporative constitution, will be against the freedom of the press. This was foreshadowed today in an article in the Montag Zeitung by Richard Steidle, minister of propaganda.

The Austrian press for several months has been laboring under strictures. Since the warfare with the Socialists several newspapers have been suppressed.

Steidle revealed in his article that plans are under way to force a number of Jews out of journalism because, it is charged, they are unpatriotic and irresponsible. The minister predicted that in Austria as well as Italy all newspaper writers will shortly be compelled to belong to an association. Membership will depend upon government approval.

Follows Mussolini Reforms.

This step would be taken ostensibly to prepare newspaper workers for membership, as an organization, in the new guild system. Actually it will clean out present day journalists and substitute new ones. Steidle's outlined plans for press reform are along the same lines as those of Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Hitler. He said in the article:

"A newspaper must be patriotic and have a sense of responsibility. Editors in the future must have those qualities which enable them to carry out their responsible work. The fact that Austrian newspaper publishers now are not responsible agents is a source of much of our present grief.

"Anyone now who wants to can write for newspapers. Individuals, not even Austrians, who have fled from some other country to save themselves, are practicing journalism here. They must be stopped."

This last phrase is taken as a reference to Jewish writers. Ninety-five per cent of Austrian newspapers are said to be controlled by Jews.

Sent Troops to Border.

Meanwhile reports of an Austro-German rapprochement and secret meetings between Chancellor Hitler's representatives and Prince Ernst von Starhemberg, Fascist Heimwehr leader, were current.

The government announced 1,000 troops are being dispatched to the Austro-Bavarian frontier between Passau and Salzburg on border patrol duty.

The troop movement is apparently a gesture against the Nazi threat to open hostilities against the Dollfuss government on Wednesday. That is the day the Nazi ultimatum to Austria to make peace by giving them a greater voice in the government expires.

By way of showing his strength Vice Chancellor Emil Fey is parading his troops frequently and paying inspection visits to the provinces.

The police have arrested Mayor Karl Strohaeus of Wagna, near Leibnitz, and 13 others following the discovery of a cache of ammunition and guns.

Nazi Leader in Berlin.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUNICH, Feb. 26.—Theodor Habicht, director of Nazi activities, is in Berlin conferring wit hChancellor Adolf Hitler on the matter of the Nazi ultimatum to Chancellor Dollfuss. The ultimatum expires Wednesday.

Well informed Nazi circles in Munich believe a strong Nazi propaganda campaign will be launched in Austria on Thursday. They assert that this propaganda will be carried out by Austrians and not by Germans. Nevertheless, diplomatic circles are alarmed, since Hitler, when the four power pact was concluded, promised to refrain from encouraging Nazi propaganda in Austria.

GERMANY, POLAND AGREE TO MOLD FRIENDLY FEELING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 26.—Public opinion in Germany and Poland will in the future be officially molded through the press, literature, radio, the theaters and the movies, "in order to develop mutual understanding, thereby guaranteeing a friendly atmosphere." This agreement was officially announced tonight after discussions in Berlin. Both countries will keep in permanent touch with each other regarding the influencing of public opinion.

AUSTRIAN OFFICES STORMED BY MOB IN CUBA; 12 HURT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba., Feb. 26.—About 300 communists and unemployed attacked the Austrian consulate and legation tonight to protest tactics used against workers by Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss in the Austrian civil war. Twelve persons were reported seriously wounded as the mob battled officers.

It is reported that consular records were also burned before soldiers and police reached the scene and rescued the Austrian officials. Five unexploded bombs were found in the buildings.

SPAIN'S PREMIER SEES NO NEED FOR A DICTATORSHIP

Both Rightists and Leftists Get Sharp Warning.

BY HAROLD ETTLINGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Feb. 26.—Premier Alejandro Lerroux interrupted his bout with Spain's gnarled political problems this afternoon long enough to grant an interview to THE TRIBUNE. He used this statement to a foreign newspaper as an opportunity to sound warnings to both impatient right quarters and watchful left foes.

To the left parties, which threaten to revolt if he turns his back on them, the premier declared that any insurrection will find the government prepared. To the rightists, whose leader today told Lerroux he is in office only by sufferance, the premier asserted that if he is thrown out no substitute will be found.

Asked About Dictatorship.

Referring to the apparently successful efforts of Socialists and anarchists to establish a revolutionary united front, Lerroux was asked if he considered dictatorial measures necessary and if his moderate government would take the responsibilities for them.

"The government is vigilant and prepared," he said. "We need not go outside the law. The government has legally sufficient means to suppress the movement without using dictatorial measures.

"The constitution provides a sufficiently strong means for dealing with any revolt. Naturally the government will be responsible for all legal measures taken"

The disappearance of moderate parties abroad was pointed out to Lerroux. Asked whether he believed his center group was strong enough to keep from being absorbed by either the right or left, the premier replied:

"The government over which I preside wishes to maintain an equilibrium between the forces of the right and left. It does not wish to incline to either side and seeks to pacify public opinion by a policy of equity and, if possible, by the labor of reconstruction.

Reply to Catholic Leader.

"As this is a minority government, it can obviously be defeated in the cortes. Nevertheless, it must be remembered that for a long time it will be impossible to form any other kind of a cabinet than the minority one over which I preside."

This last statement was a direct reply to a speech today by Gil Robles, young Catholic leader and key man in the political situation. Robles declared his right bloc must attain control and that an attempt to stop it would be equivalent to a coup d'état.

"Do you consider the danger of Fascism imminent or at least real in Spain?" Lerroux was asked.

Sees No Fascist Threat.

"There is no imminent danger of Fascism in Spain," the premier answered. "There is too much individualism in the Spanish temperament to permit the formation of a strong Fascist movement. For the present, at any rate, it is an embryonic movement without great prospects. It is engaged in struggles with other social and political tendencies."

Sporadic disturbances and strikes, meanwhile, gave evidence of the tenseness of the situation. A syndicalist was killed at Madrid when a band of five tried to deliver a comrade from jail.

The president and secretary of a postoffice workers' union were arrested in connection with a strike conspiracy. Forty-eight men and 12 women were arrested in Saragossa when police raided a secret syndicalist meeting.

MAN WHO GAVE UP HIS ARMY LIFE FOR NAZIS IS JAILED FOR INSULT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NUREMBERG, Germany, Feb. 26.—Former Lieut. Oskar Scheringer, who sacrificed his military career on account of his Nazi sympathies, was arrested at a movie theater today because he walked out during the singing of the Nazi Horst Wessel anthem.

Scheringer and Lieuts. Hans Ludin and Wendt were arrested in 1930 and sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment in a fortress for Nazi activities. During their trial Adolf Hitler made his historic forecast of developments in Germany.

Hitler, then referred to as leader of the Fascists, was subpenaed to testify at the trial. The three officers were charged with high treason for conspiring with the Fascists to forcibly overthrow the government. Their sentence was reduced to the period of custody during the trial. The prosecutor in the course of the hearing threatened to place Hitler on trial as a traitor.

Scheringer later joined the communist party. He was recently released from custody for communit activities.

"Give me but the liberty of the press and I will give to the minister a venal house of peers. I will give him a corrupt and servile house of commons. I will give him the full swing of the patronage of office. I will give him the whole host of ministerial influence. I will give him all the power that place can confer upon him, to purchase up submission and overawe resistance; and yet, armed with the liberty of the press, I will go forth to meet him undismayed. I will attack the mighty fabric of that mightier engine. I will shake down from its height corruption and bury it beneath the ruins of the abuses it was meant to shelter."

—Richard Brinsley Sheridan.

A NEW DEALER DESCRIBES AMERICA.

We wonder if the League of Women Voters listening to Secretary of the Interior Ickes Saturday night recognized the pleasing picture he painted of American life and character prior to the New Deal. We gather from this work of art that the American experiment in democracy was, up to the coming of Mr. Ickes and his confrères in Washington, one of the most disastrous failures in the history of nations.

Apparently the trouble began with our forefathers who after fighting the Indians, the British, the Spaniards and the Mexicans turned to fighting each other; having exploited nature they turned to the exploitation of human beings. A savage lot, it seems. Not satisfied with African slaves, they sent over to Europe and, painting glowing pictures of the land of opportunity, enticed hundreds of thousands of innocents to our shores. "Eagerly and hopefully came these hordes, year in and year out," says Mr. Ickes, "seeking a hospitable land where they could realize their dim dreams of freedom, equality, and fraternity." Into the jaws of the man-eating shark, disguised as Uncle Sam, came these kindly folk, deceived and doomed. "Herded into mines, congregated in factories, housed in squalid hovels, they worked for long hours for inadequate pay," while "all the descendants of the conquering pioneers more and more lived lives of ease and comfort, while profits continued to pour in as the result of physical slavery in the south and economic exploitation in the north."

We quail before this picture of American brutality. No other people on earth ever descended to such depths of cold deceit and cruelty. The "descendants of pioneers" who made this smiling land a howling wilderness, peopled by slaves, by hollow eyed women and starving children, certainly deserve a special circle in the inferno.

How this ghastly tragedy, the pre-New Deal America, was accomplished among a people possessing the franchise and the public school Mr. Ickes did not elucidate, no doubt for lack of time. Perhaps Prof. Merriam, Mr. Ickes' sponsor on this occasion, will take up this hideous story on another occasion. Mr. Merriam is professor of political science at the University of Chicago and it must be assumed approved Mr. Ickes' survey of the American scene.

However, let us take heart of grace. There came a stage of what Mr. Ickes calls "our national degradation" when help appeared—from Mr. Ickes and others. The frightful wilderness, full of ravening beasts, is soon to be turned into a garden where the hordes of American slaves will wander happily under the beneficent rule of a perfect government. It seems that this millennial change is still resisted by certain "constrictive critics" who would rather have the patient die than that their "incantations" should fail. Naturally the Americans who built the hell which was America prior to last March 4 will do anything to preserve their handiwork. But Mr. Ickes is in Washington and others equally abhorrent of the intolerable past. We cannot count upon the summary disposal of all foes of our millennium. America has ceased to be the unmatchable human failure Mr. Ickes has so movingly described for us. America is no longer to be the reproach to humanity she was before March 4, 1933.

MODERNIZING RAIL TRANSPORT.

An article in a recent financial section of THE TRIBUNE, written by our traffic manager, regarding the Union Pacific's new streamline train merits special consideration. He has visualized a new twenty-six billion dollar industry that will develop from the replacement of railway passenger equipment to meet modern conditions and restore to the rails their long haul traffic of which they have been deprived by the overexpansion of automotive transportation into fields that are out of its element, but in which it has been successfully competing because misplaced paternalism has deprived the railways of their vitality.

History will repeat itself. During the long depression of '73 economists wrote that as the development of the country had reached its zenith business must of necessity be content with consolidating its gains and move more cautiously and conservatively into a future that offered no more worlds to conquer. Yet within a few years railway construction furnished the impetus that brought health to scores of industries and through them prosperity to the country for a long period.

The way is clear—to cease senseless public spending and lend a hand to the newcomer. Further increases in the public debt cannot but add to the problems of this and future generations, while the rejuvenation of our transportation system, for which the public will pay gladly through renewed patronage, will naturally restore financial health. That a natural inclination to travel more extensively is being curbed by the present expensive, inadequate and slow train service cannot be denied. The business man wants more frequent contact with his associates. His presence is desired at numerous conventions, conferences and luncheons in other cities. Railways and communities well know the value of conventions, and yet, generally speaking, those who are able to attend form but a pitiful representation of the entire membership of the organization or society involved. The traveling salesman covering an extensive district wants more frequent visits to home and headquarters. All of us would prefer more frequent family reunions and visits to cherished friends—even to attend funeral rites.

Coördinator Eastman, viewing the train at Washington, expressed the opinion that the train was the forerunner of what was going to occur in the transportation field and that the country is "on the verge of tremendous changes." Congress should assist by rewriting the whole interstate commerce act, with the new thought in mind that our principal carriers are the lifeblood of our commerce rather than a necessary evil.

LIQUOR PRICES.

The federal alcohol control administration under Joseph Choate Jr. is giving some attention to the prices of liquor. President Roosevelt has indicated that he believes they are too high and the liquor administration is trying price control devices such as encouraging the import of Canadian supplies.

Customs and various taxes, together with the desire of the legalized trade to take all the traffic will bear, have produced prices at a high range. If hard liquors were put under this disability without any mischievous consequences the extortion might be viewed complacently. Its effect would be to diminish the use of the least defensible alcoholic beverages, and if there were reasonable prices for beer and wine the thing would be in the direction of temperance. Unfortunately, beer has not reached the old pre-prohibition prices and the wines are also expensive. Undoubtedly the administration's concern is not to promote the consumption particularly of hard liquors, although there is public revenue in that, but to prevent a recurrence of bootlegging.

It is now an excise and not a moral question. High prices always tend to produce contraband, particularly if the high prices are in large part due to customs and taxes. In fighting the bootlegger and contraband runner again the government will be in a new position because there will be no question of personal rights involved, but only the question of revenue collection. Nevertheless, smuggling can make a serious problem, and if beverages which escape the payment of the king's penny can be had for half or a third of what the lawfully sold beverages can be purchased there'll be a great market for them and consequent lawlessness which should be avoided. The social advantages found in high prices for hard liquors would be offset by the bad effects of the illegal trade.

All the various divisions of government—federal, state, and local—have endeavored to get as high a percentage of taxation as they could and the traffic is carrying a heavy structure of these imposts. It was pointed out the other day that a gallon of imported liquor has a $7 tax on it before it encounters state regulations and the dealer's profit seeking.

It is possible that the brewers and the native wine producers have not yet come to their stabilizing point, but the duties on foreign wines protect the domestic prices and the American producers will take what they can get. Taxes again, both on wine and beer, will keep the price up. It has been hoped that American habit can be turned in sensible directions and the restored liberty be enjoyed without offense. The price question is important.

Editorial of the Day

WHEN THE TEST COMES.

[Quincy Herald-Whig.]

The real test of the Roosevelt policies, in the minds of those who are thoughtfully concerned about the future, will come within the next few months when definite plans are made for the transition from public to private support for our economic structure. This period will give an indication, more than has appeared heretofore, of the true philosophy behind the administration's measures. It will offer the opportunity to judge whether sound individualism, nurtured during a period of stress by governmental favors, will be given an opportunity to reëstablish itself as the principle for America's development or whether socialistic control of the instruments of production and distribution is to receive approval as a permanent American doctrine.

Thus far both criticism and commendation of the policies of recovery have not been able to go to the fundamental merits of the policies themselves. The circumstances surrounding the putting of these measures into effect rather than the soundness of the measures have influenced all judgments. The great need of definite and immediately effective policies prevented and made unnecessary a close scrutiny of the ultimate effect of quickly passed laws. Favorable comment was influenced either by the stress of circumstances or the blind devotion to the President and his efforts to hasten recovery. Criticism, for the most part, has come from those who were prejudiced either for political reasons or because of their opposition to any deviation from orthodox thinking on economic, social and legislative questions. The policies of themselves have received careful analysis only from a few of the most discriminating critics and writers.

The emergency was so great and the need so intense that any person who worked with the courage and purpose of the President was given the support needed to carry out his plans. The time called for united action and no divided counsel.

When conditions are as serious as they have been government in business, on a scale never before known, is countenanced. When people must have means to live public expenditures in sums never before contemplated receive sanction. When drastic remedies are needed the economic philosophy behind the measures proposed is not subjected to the closest scrutiny.

However, the period of transition cannot be long delayed. The government cannot regularly spend money in sums much larger than its receipts. Public moneys cannot continue to support idle people. The welfare of the people cannot continue to depend upon public spending. Private enterprise must be restored as the vital factor in a nation's economic life.

It is in the months to come that the Roosevelt policies will be tested. As temporary expedients they have the sanction of the people. It is when private initiative is to be substituted for public bounty that the true philosophy of the present administration will be determined and the soundness of its principles of government be put to rigid test.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

HUMANS ARE FUNNY! Take a man who roars like a wolf with its tail caught in a trap if he suspects his wife of cutting her corns with his razor blade or who carefully counts the number of drinks in the quart of Scotch to be sure the butler isn't lapping it up on the sly and who refuses to let anybody else use his fountain pen, leaving his automobile, costing anywhere from seven hundred and fifty dollars to three thousand, out in the street on a blizzard night. And then being utterly dumfounded and surprised when he finds the thing frozen stiff the next morning. The more you study humans, the less you understand 'em.

INFECTED GALL BLADDER.

DYSPEPSIA is nothing more than a symptom, and those who look on it as a disease and diet themselves for it, taking pepsin, dyspepsia pills, and stomach bitters, generally get nowhere. Nothing is more misleading than the indorsements of dyspepsia remedies. In a given case of dyspepsia a man cannot begin intelligent care of himself until he knows what causes the dyspepsia. Any other policy is gambling and nothing more.

The most frequent cause of the disorder is some trouble with the gall bladder—sometimes gallstones, sometimes infected gall bladder, sometimes some other gall bladder trouble. If a dyspeptic is over 40, is fat, and leads a sedentary life the chance that his liver or gall bladder is the cause of his trouble is very great. An X-ray picture of the gall bladder sometimes shows gallstones and sometimes misses them even when they are there in numbers. A history of attacks of jaundice or of gallstone colic points to the gall bladder as the focus of trouble in many cases. If occasionally and especially after attacks the stools are light in color and greasy in appearance the gall bladder is almost certainly the cause.

Physicians have tests by which they can say almost with certainty that the gall bladder is sound or otherwise. Dr. H. .. Knight attaches value to two simple ones, as well as to the more complicated ones.

One is the gall bladder reflex test. In this test a mustard plaster is placed on the right upper part of the abdomen, over the liver. It is left on long enough to cause reddening, but not to blister. If the gall bladder is out of sorts there will be an area about the size of a dollar located over the gall bladder region. This area will be a lighter pink than the mustard reddened skin around it—a lighter island in a sea of deeper red.

The other test is known as the cardiac gall bladder test. The physician listens to the heart beat with his stethoscope. As he does so he makes firm, deep pressure over the gall bladder. A deep, sharp punch over the gall bladder is an effective way of applying this pressure. As the force strikes the diseased gall bladder the heart gives a little, slightly irregular jump.

RAIN WATER.

L. K. L. writes: What benefits are derived from the use of rain water for adults and babies?

REPLY.

Rain water is soft—free from minerals. It has no advantages over other waters except that it is good for washing the hair and it saves soap. This last is quite an item in hard water regions.

Rain water caught from roofs is apt to be fouled unless provision is made for keeping the gutters free from bird nests, leaves, and such trash, and for diverting the first flow—that which has served to clean the roof.

TREMBLING PALSY.

Mrs. E. C. writes: I am 74 years old and have trembling palsy. I have had bladder trouble for about 30 years. Why does the urine have so much odor? What diet should I eat and what medicine should I take?

REPLY.

Nothing can be done for trembling palsy. That condition is progressive, but it is very slowly so.

The urine should be examined for pus, blood, and albumin; and for acidity, alkalinity, and ammonia. There is a good chance that your physician can give you an antiseptic that will help. Which it is depends on whether the urine is acid, alkaline, or ammoniacal.

The reaction and the odor may indicate need for a change in diet. Analyses will indicate the change. As a rule, old people should live on milk, vegetables, fruit, bread, cereal, dates, and desserts. They need meat once a day or three times a week. They should eat less than they did when younger. If they are accustomed to coffee, tobacco, and alcoholic beverages they should continue their use but in reduced quantities.

ECZEMA ON HANDS.

H. J. writes: A friend of mine has had eczema on her hands for the last two years, and it is now starting in her armpits. Her dresses get all wet from the discharge and she scratches it often. Can this be caused by uncleanliness? What's the matter with her? What should she eat?

REPLY.

It is probable the rash is due to chemicals such as dyes used on cloths, gloves, and such. However, ringworm is possible. Diet is also a possibility, though not so likely. If a physician can find the cause it should be possible to avoid it, whereupon the eruption should disappear.

GRANULATED EYELIDS.

J. G. M. writes:

1. What is the cause of granulated eyelids?
2. What is the cause of my eyes watering profusely on cold days?

REPLY.

1. Among the causes are trachoma, infection, poor nutrition, chronic conjunctivitis from eye strain.
2. Perhaps you have a strictured tear duct, or it may be too small for some other reason.

It is natural for the secretion of tears to increase on a cold or windy day. That is a measure of protection for the eyeball. The excess of tears should be able to drain down the duct, but some overflow may be expected. If the overflow amounts to an habitual flood the cause should be sought for. It generally lies in the tear duct.

REPAIR OR WRECK.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—[Friend of the People.]—I call your attention to the building at 2300-2308 in our block. The doors are open, permitting drunks to loaf there and children run in and out. The plumbing has been stolen, doors removed, plaster thrown out on the street, and all windows removed. This property is a detriment as well as a menace to the neighborhood. A. L.

Our inspector reports that the building in question is in a dilapidated condition and is being stripped by vandals. We have notified the owner to repair and put said building in safe condition or wreck it. In the meantime police will make frequent visits to the building to prevent trespassers from entering premises. JOHN E. ERICSSON.

PROPERTY DIVISION.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A man and his wife who are considering divorce are in altercation over the assignment of the furniture and other household articles. At the time of their marriage the husband purchased said furniture and household articles, making the payments with checks. At present he has both the canceled checks and the receipts in his possession. Can the wife claim the furniture as her own and obtain legal possession of it? Or does it belong to the husband to do with as he may see fit? I. C.

We would say that on these facts it belongs to the husband until the court decides otherwise, but that in the course of divorce proceedings the court would probably award a share to the wife, depending on all of the relative equities of the parties.

SALES TAX.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 20.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I would like the ruling of the state Supreme court on the recent 3 per cent sales tax that was held unconstitutional. 1. On what basis was it so ruled and [2] who wrote the opinion? F. P. S.

1. [a] That the exemption of farm produce and [b] of motor fuel was unauthorized under the constitution. [c] That the legislature must appropriate funds and cannot delegate that function to the relief commission. These points were avoided in the present law.
2. The opinion appears [352 Ill. 441] as "per curiam," meaning "by the court," no individual judge taking the responsibility.

LONDON.—London is slowly, but surely, becoming "telephone minded."

Strange as it may sound, ten years ago only one in nineteen had a telephone. In fact, it was more or less a social event in suburbia when one's neighbor had a telephone installed.

Last year, however, the proportion had advanced to one in eleven. The total number of calls in the same period increased from 750 to more than 1,500 a minute.

These and many other interesting facts are given in the report on telephone progress in the London area for 1933. The report is a record of enterprise and progress.

In all the mass of figures demonstrating this onward movement there is only one tiny sign of retrogression. In 1933 the average time it took the exchange operator to answer a call was 5.3 seconds, against 5.2 seconds in the previous year, and 5 seconds in 1931. On the other hand, the average time taken to complete a call was reduced to 36.8 seconds—the lowest ever achieved.

The growth of the service in London is illustrated in striking fashion by the following statistics:

	1923.	1932.	1933.
Exchgs.	99	232	244
Phones	401,065	787,000	820,000
Tel.calls	384,706,901	745,000,000	798,000,000

The report attributes a large share of the recent improvement to the advertising campaign begun in 1932 and extended last year.

Further advance in extending the use of the automatic system has now brought about one-half of London calls under this service. It is claimed that the scheme enables the telephone engineering staff to detect faults and troubles more quickly because they are able to obtain first hand information from subscribers in the initial stages of the difficulty.

Another improvement recorded is in the speed of providing telephones to new subscribers. Last year 92 per cent of the new phones were installed within one week of receiving the order.

It is now possible to speak to almost anywhere between China and Peru. The service in the latter country was opened last July. India, the Bahamas, Central America and the Philippine islands were among the other places linked up with London last year.

Canadians made more telephone calls in 1932 than any other people, it is disclosed in the statistics. Calls made totaled 2,346,573,225—an average of 223 calls per head of population. In the same year the United States had 222 calls per head, and Britain 33.

TAXES ON SOUTHERN CONSUMERS.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—I note in THE TRIBUNE of today a letter signed Disgusted. The letter is hitting at the cotton processing tax as unfair to the people of the north. Well, Disgusted, if that is all you think of to bellyache about, I can tell you a lot.

How about the 30 cents per bushel processing tax on the wheat grown here in the north? It takes about three bushels of wheat to make 100 pounds of flour. That is 90 cents tax on each hundred pounds, and there is very little wheat grown in the south.

How about the 26 cents or so per bushel on the corn grown here in the north? That tax is added to all kinds of corn products, such as cornmeal, starch, sirup, oil, and numerous other products derived from corn. Hundreds of thousands of gallons of this sirup are processed and shipped to the south as table sirup.

How about the processing tax on the hogs raised here in the north? Millions of pounds of northern meat products go to the south. Thousands of people in the south get no other meat than what is shipped there from the north.

Thousands of the farmers of the south depend on growing cotton to buy everything that they use. If the farmers of the south would grow their own grain, meat, and other things that can be grown there instead of the cursed cotton, where would the farmers of the north get off at? C. H. HAND.

A PHONY BILL.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—I beg to inform you that the facsimile of the "Zehn Trillionen Mark" bill in the article, "How Inflation Paved Way for German Dictatorship," in today's Graphic, is not the facsimile of a real bill but of phony money.

The very first word, "Reichswanknote," is an intentional misprint, meaning wabbly bill; the following text leaves no doubt whatsoever about the phoney character of the bill.

I do not think that the facsimile of the above mentioned bill belongs in Sigrid Schultz's article, although it should not make any difference to an American reader who has no knowledge of the German language.

TRAINING FOR THE ARMY FLYERS.

Chicago, Feb. 22.—The administration at Washington is to be commended for having canceled all domestic air mail contracts. Under the system as it existed millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money each year found its way into the pockets of a few powerful, politically connected individuals.

The plan to have army planes carry the mail is an excellent one. The army flyers are being paid by the taxpayers. They badly need flying practice, and carrying the mail from coast to coast will not only improve their flying ability but will also reduce the burden of taxation now resting on the shoulders of the people throughout the United States.

VICTIMS OF A MURDER.

Chicago, Feb. 24.—Just one year ago today my dear husband, Dennis Bruce Zeigler, was taken away from his loving family, myself and eleven children, by murder by Chicago racketeers. His cruel death so shocked my eldest son that he passed away last Thanksgiving day. He died of a broken heart. These racketeers who murdered my husband are well known throughout the labor unions, and are still walking the streets as free as the air, while I am still grieving the loss of my dear one greatly and trying to carry on, trying hard to keep my home, which I am afraid I cannot do much longer.

I think it is a very sad plight for our city to stand for such a cruel murder to go unnoticed. When is justice going to be shown?
MRS. DENNIS BRUCE ZEIGLER.

ABOUT BULLETPROOF VESTS.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—We were surprised at the statement that appeared in THE TRIBUNE several days ago in regard to bulletproof vests. We wish to call your attention to the fact that the statement given to your representative by Sergt. Frank Reynolds is the most ridiculous ever made. It has no basic foundation whatsoever.

In the city of Chicago in 1933 about 1,800 guns were picked up, or an average of five a day. Sixty per cent of them were below the .38 caliber of the obsolete type, having low muzzle velocity and penetrating force, made in foreign countries. About 25 per cent were of the police type revolver, .38 caliber. About 10 per cent consisted of .45s, Thompson machine guns, and other calibers. The other 5 per cent were pistols of a higher velocity, including five .38 superautomatic pistols as described by Reynolds.

On about Jan. 10, 1934, we secured an order from State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney for ten bulletproof vests. We delivered the regular vests having our regular technical guarantee. Several days later they decided that they wanted a vest which would stop the new .38 superautomatic, so we took back the first vests and replaced them with new ones, which we know will stop the gun mentioned by Reynolds.

We are ready to give tests, either public or private, to prove that our vest will stop the gun mentioned by Sergt. Frank Reynolds. He himself has shot at a piece of our vest with this new weapon in the office of Capt. Stege and in the presence of half a dozen other officers, and failed to shoot through this vest; the high powered bullet was smashed to bits. ELLIOTT WISBROD.

HE CAN'T SEE THE DIFFERENCE.

Chesterton, Ind., Feb. 23.—An editorial in today's TRIBUNE states that Gen. Johnson welcomes criticism. He says he does, and then reaches for a brick.

THE TRIBUNE, I understand, also welcomes criticism, and then they reach for two bricks. CHARLES H. SMITH.

FANTOM SHIP OF ARCTIC SAILS ICE LANES 3 YEARS

Valuable Cargo of Furs Disappears.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 26.—(AP)—The fantom ship of the Arctic still sails the northern ice lanes, glides past unseen shoals as though by a ghostly hand at her wheel and steering always toward some destination she never reaches.

The derelict Baychimo has been drifting now for three years, her staunch hull withstanding the battering of the ice, still as strong as the day she broke anchor off Wainwright Alaska, and drifted off into the northern mists.

The valuable cargo of furs the Hudson Bay company steamer carried then has almost wholly disappeared—prey to venturesome Eskimos and the two shiploads of white persons who have sighted her in her wanderings. Isobel Wylie Hutchinson, who collects Arctic specimens for two English institutions, was with one of these two groups, the only white woman ever to have boarded the derelict.

Tells of Boarding Ship.

The little Scotswoman, perhaps the only white woman who travels the Arctic on her own, was in Halifax today on the way back to England with botanical specimens and Eskimo curios. And she told reporters of her visit aboard the Baychimo when it loomed up 12 miles off Wainwright—its starting point—last summer.

Miss Hutchison was traveling along the coast, in the Beaufort sea, on the little schooner Trader manned by an Icelandic crew. Capt. Peter Palsson steered a perilous course through the floes to the big steamer, lifted almost fully out of the water by the tightly-packed ice.

Before this, another crew had visited the Baychimo, and the hulk had been stripped then of everything the visitors could carry. The hold still contained some caribou skins.

Odd Variety of Articles in Hold.

The rifled hold, open to the winds, held an odd assortment of mineral ore typewriters, curios, writing paper, and Hudson's Bay company ledgers. A pair of rusted handcuffs lay on the hatch. In a wooden box rested a "Times History of the Great War."

The Trader was weighed down with salvage when she left the Baychimo; she headed shoreward past the revenue cutter Northland—anchored at the edge of the pack—and soon the Baychimo vanished into the mists.

It was several days later that those on the Trader sighted the Baychimo again. Far off on the edge of a glittering ice pack they saw the fantom ship reflected in a mirage. She was steering at a good five miles an hour past the shoals and ice that held the Trader, heading toward Point Barrow with the pack.

"You'd think," said Capt. Pete, "that some one was steering her. I guess she's haunted. She steers clear of the shoals as if a master hand was at her wheel."

The Trader stayed trapped in the ice 15 days as Baychimo sailed on to her will-o'-the-wisp destination.

BRITISH HUNGER ARMY ASKS HOUSE TO HEAR ITS PLEA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 26.—Hunger marchers who participated in yesterday's demonstration in Hyde Park against the government's new unemployment relief bill rested today. Police, however, took no chances and special officers again took over traffic and other duties of the regular police. The "regulars" were on duty near the house of commons, Trafalgar square, Buckingham palace and other centers where extremists were likely to stir up trouble.

Fireworks, if any, are not expected until tomorrow when a deputation of marchers will attempt to present a petition to the house of commons. J. McGovern, Glasgow member of parliamen and leader of the Scottish contingent of hunger marchers, today asked permission to present a petition from the marchers. He also asked that a deputation be received at the bar of the house to state their grievances.

Tomorrow McGovern will put a question to Prime Minister MacDonald asking him in the form of a motion to hear three members of the hunger marchers. It is not expected that MacDonald will give his consent as he has already refused to meet a deputation of marchers.

Students Riot Over Report Teachers' Pay May Be Cut

AVILA, Spain, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Angered by reports that teachers' salaries might be reduced, students of the Teachers' college here today rioted, destroying furniture and breaking windows. Students in other schools joined the demonstration, leaving their classes.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of those little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them: 15c, 30c, 60c.

They can hardly believe their Census!

"You mean, don't you," queried one sales manager, "that Philadelphia has more individual homes than New York or Chicago in proportion to population?"

We do not! There are no percentages or proportions involved. By actual count (U. S. Census, 1930) Philadelphia has 70,420 more single-family dwellings than all of New York City; 154,772 more than Chicago.

Philadelphians are home people! Though they have built the third largest city in America, they have preserved that love of a home; preserved it by spreading out instead of building up; preserved it with street after street and mile after mile of single-family homes.

Philadelphia presents a striking contrast with other great population centers: A city in which 91.6% of all dwellings are single-family homes. A city in which apartment houses comprise only 2.5% of the dwellings and where tenements are unknown. A city in which home interest dominates. A people who are alert to every improvement in the art of home living.

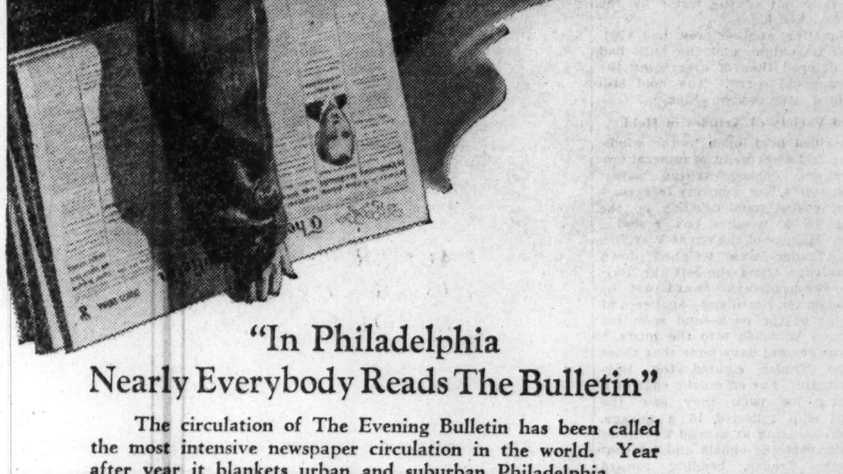
The man with a home to heat and fuel bills to pay is keen for news of improved home heating methods. The housewife with a house to supervise and three meals a day to plan is a prime prospect for every food product and household convenience. And so on down the list of those hundreds of items for which every home dweller is an interested prospect.

If you have a product that will add to the comfort and convenience of home living, bring it to Philadelphia — the greatest home proving ground of all. You can reach every member of nearly every family in Philadelphia's home newspaper — The Evening Bulletin.

Just as Philadelphia has grown great in homes, The Bulletin has grown great in home circulation and influence. Today's 504,822 net paid daily (1933 average) is a voluntary expression of the confidence and reading interest which Philadelphia has in The Bulletin.

Two and one-half times the circulation of any other Philadelphia evening newspaper, more than any Sunday newspaper, more than all morning newspapers combined.

And the advertising cost, for thorough coverage of this greatest market of homes, is one of the lowest among all newspapers in America.



"In Philadelphia Nearly Everybody Reads The Bulletin"

The circulation of The Evening Bulletin has been called the most intensive newspaper circulation in the world. Year after year it blankets urban and suburban Philadelphia . . . selling nearly as many copies as there are homes. The Bulletin's growth has been normal and natural. Premiums, prizes or circulation contests are never used. Its circulation depends upon the reading interest and confidence of the Philadelphia home. A recent survey by the American Association of Advertising Agencies shows the thorough coverage The Bulletin gives of each important income group.

Philadelphia (City)	$2000-2999	$3000-4999	$5000 9999	$10,000 & over
No. of Families	150,405	122,862	52,781	12,448

Port of Philadelphia has greatest year in 1933

"The Port of Philadelphia set an all-time record in port traffic during 1933, surpassing the previous record year of 1930 by more than a half million gross registered tons. The total for the year reached 53,372,207 tons, an increase in tonnage of almost twelve per cent. over 1932, while the number of vessels arriving and leaving the port numbered 969 more than the previous year, according to an analysis by the Philadelphia Business Progress Association of the records of the U. S. Commissioners of Navigation.

"A definite gain in foreign trade was recorded with the value of imports set at approximately $100,000,000 for the year, more than $10,000,000 above the 1932 total. Likewise the export trade was credited with an increase of $7,000,000, totaling $49,500,000 for 1933." — From Monthly Progress Summary, Phila. Business Progress Assoc.

To find the milline rate, divide the circulation into one million; then multiply by the rate. Example: Bulletin's circulation of 500,000 goes into 1,000,000 two times. SEE SNAGS AHEAD AS LEGISLATORS RESUME SESSION

Expect Demonstrations to Delay Assembly.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Some confusion in the Illinois general assembly this week was foreseen yesterday by Chicago members leaving for the capital, where both houses are scheduled to resume the work of the second and third special sessions today.

Demands for speedy action on a number of subjects, accompanied by demonstrations and active lobbying by various delegations, they predicted, will interfere with the adoption of an orderly program such as was followed last week when the enabling acts for A Century of Progress and six Chicago school finance bills were passed.

See Governor's Opposition.

In addition it was pointed out that Gov. Horner is back at the capital after his vacation and the legislators expect that he may take a decided stand on some of the many pending bills. He already has come out in open opposition to the Devine bill to lift some of the present restrictions on the sale of beer.

Revenue legislation for distressed school districts will be the subject of conversations today between the governor and a committee representing the Illinois State Teachers' association. The teachers' group, headed by Robert Moore, Carlinville, will present much of the same information which was laid before the assembly last week.

The governor has not indicated whether or not he favors any of the many plans now before the assembly designed to obtain additional school revenue. However, it is believed that he may take a firm position of opposition to some of the new taxes proposed by the teachers, by means of which the state distributive school fund might be boosted from the present $10,500,000 a year to $30,000,000 or even $35,000,000 a year.

Oppose New Taxes.

Some of the taxes urged by the teachers, such as that of one-eighth of a cent on grain futures, of three per cent on corporation incomes, and of two per cent on other incomes, Chicago lawmakers say, would be paid almost entirely by Chicago, which would get about only one-third return in the form of aid for its schools. They also take the stand that the income tax levies would be unconstitutional.

The teachers promise to be the most active of the delegations descending on the capital. The Chicago division of the Illinois State Teachers' federation has chartered a special train on the Alton, leaving the city at 7:30 tomorrow morning, which will land them in Springfield at noon. It is said that between 400 and 500 will be in this group.

In addition, it is expected that large groups of downstate teachers will be on hand to join with the Chicagoans in some matters affecting school finances. All these delegations, it is said, expect to have hearings before joint sessions or before each house, and they intend to ask hearings before Gov. Horner.

Canal Hearing Wednesday.

Legislation sought by the Chicago sanitary district to meet the federal aid plan is set for a joint hearing of the two houses on Wednesday, and probably will be in progress about the time the teachers arrive from Chicago. It is predicted there will be some lobbying against one of these bills—the one authorizing the district to impose charges for handling industrial waste, particularly that from the stockyards.

The sanitary representatives who will be present to argue for the bills will include President Thomas J. Bowler, Trustee Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the finance committee; Attorney Elmer J. Whitty, and Philip Harrington, chief engineer.

The school board representation will consist of Richard S. Folsom, its attorney, and Ralph Condee, first assistant. The one pending bill in which the board is interested is the "pegged levy" measure to fix the amount of the tax levies for the educational fund in a way to increase the former by $8,500,000.

Hope to Get Signature.

They also hope for a chance to talk with Gov. Horner about signing the six bills already passed by both houses, which were sponsored by Mayor Kelly.

Just what will happen on the beer bill, as the Devine measure for the issuance of licenses for beer only is called, had the departing Chicago legislators guessing.

Brewers and their representatives are expected to be extremely active in support of this measure. It is contended, however, that the enactment of bill would not affect the licensing situation in Chicago unless the city council follows up with an amendment to its present ordinance requiring one license for all forms of alcoholic beverages, a proposal to which Mayor Kelly has expressed opposition because of his certainty that "cheating" would be general in "beer saloons."

LONDON, Feb. 26.—The film and stage world in London was interested today in the latest report in the Lord Ashley-Douglas Fairbanks affair. Lady Ashley exhibited to friends a swanky new automobile which Fairbanks is said to have purchased for her and has just been delivered. Fairbanks has been named co-respondent by Lord Ashley in the latter's divorce suit against Lady Ashley.

SAFE CRACKER DOES HIS DUTY FOR OLD JOLIET

Warden Frank D. Whipp of Joliet penitentiary summoned a convict yesterday to open the ancient prison safe which baffled a professional locksmith. Convict Joseph Allman took just 3 minutes and 40 seconds to open the strong box and then apologized for the delay.

"I'm not in condition," said the convict, who was sentenced to serve a one to ten year sentence from Cook county in 1928. He threw aside a device of his own invention which he had hoped would record the dropping of the tumblers as the dial was spun. After knocking off the dial with a hammer he used his fingers in typical "Jimmy Valentine" style to line up the tumblers.

Allman chose the occasion for an announcement that he has invented a safe which the best cracksman would fail to open, even with explosives. He said the lock was magnetized and could be operated only by "remote control." The safe he opened yesterday contained historical documents of the prison which Warden Whipp had never seen.

FEWER JOBLESS NOW APPEARING ON VENIRE LISTS

In contrast with reports of recent months, only 32 out of 300 veniremen called to serve for the next two weeks in the city hall Municipal courts reported themselves jobless. Two months ago 55 out of 300 veniremen were jobless. A year ago 240 out of 300 veniremen reported themselves as unemployed.

Report Relief Worker Indicted for Swindle

A true bill charging embezzlement of $479 of Emergency Relief commission funds was reported to have been returned yesterday against Carl Harned, 41 years old, 12414 South State street, who for 18 months was in charge of the tabulating department of the Cook county bureau of public welfare, which was acting as an agency of the commission. Harned, who at one time was an investigator for the Secret Six, allegedly altered canceled relief orders and sold them for cash.

Measures Indorsed at Luncheon Meet.

BY AL CHASE.

Representatives of industrial, labor, social, real estate, and architectural organizations yesterday publicly indorsed housing legislation pending before the assembly at Springfield at a luncheon sponsored by the Metropolitan Housing council in the Tavern club.

The measures in question, the Adamowski-Ickes house bills, which probably will be considered in the assembly this week, possibly today, provide for the creation of special municipal corporations to be known as housing authorities which would open the way for Chicago and other municipalities to obtain public works administration funds or federal housing projects.

Group to Visit Capital.

It was announced at the luncheon that a delegation of Chicagoans and interested officials will go to Springfield today to be on hand to lay before legislators information regarding large scale housing projects. Among them will be Ralph K. Chase of Washington, legal representative of the Public Works administration housing division; John R. Fugard, president of the Metropolitan Housing council; Joel G. Hunter, head of the United Charities and vice president of the housing council, and Albert J. Weisberg, treasurer of the council. Alfred K. Stern, head of the Illinois housing commission, also will attend.

Patrick Sullivan, head of the Chicago Building Trades council, announced yesterday that his organization, comprising 125,000 members, would lend all possible assistance toward support of the two house bills. He promised to send a labor representative to Springfield today.

Step Toward Employment.

"If these bills are passed," he said, "we hope money will be provided for construction work, which will take several thousand of our unemployed mechanics off the streets."

Among the organizations which indorsed the proposed legislation at yesterday's luncheon were the Chicago Council of Social Agencies, comprising 200 different organizations; the Building Construction Employers' association and the American Construction council; the Illinois League of Women Voters; the Illinois Municipal league, and the Illinois Society of Architects.

Ready to Act at Once.

"The housing authorities proposed in house bills Nos. 4 and 5 have been designed for immediate action," said Mr. Fugard yesterday. "They will be able to go ahead without delay because they're not dependent on local capital for equity financing. The PWA through its grants and loans will provide all of the necessary capital."

Mr. Fugard pointed out that the housing authorities will not have taxing powers and the proposed act provides specifically that no debt of an authority shall be an obligation of the state or any city, county or other municipal unit, but shall be payable only out of the assets and revenues of the housing authority.

He also showed that the proposed housing bills do not provide for tax exemption of the properties of housing authorities.

FRANK GORDON HEADS TRANSIT BONDHOLDERS

Frank M. Gordon, vice president in charge of the bond department of the First National Bank of Chicago, yesterday was elected chairman of the first mortgage protective bondholders' committee of the Chicago City Railway and the Calumet and South Chicago Railway companies. The properties comprise the south side sections of the Chicago Surface lines.

Mr. Gordon, who takes the place of Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, will carry on negotiations for the security interests in the pending plan to unify the street car and elevated systems. The properties of both systems are in federal receivership.

This morning Attorney Walter L. Fisher, traction expert and special appointee of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, will hold another hearing in the federal court to consider arguments of junior security interests for better treatment in the proposed reorganization plan. In the last few weeks they have been negotiating adjustments among themselves. Any agreement arrived at will be presented at the hearing this morning.

REPORTS NOT ONE TRUCK HIJACKED IN THREE MONTHS

Not a single motor truck and cargo has been hijacked in the metropolitan area for nearly three months, it was announced yesterday by the Chicago Association of Commerce. The report was made by the cartage theft committee of the association, which also dispatched a letter of congratulation to Police Commissioner Allman.

The frequent hijackings of recent years have been eliminated by a special police detail which has been working with a business committee of the Association of Commerce. The detail has also been successful in arresting a number of alleged hijackers and in recovering a large quantity of goods.

The association announced yesterday that it will seek a reduction in insurance rates for motor trucks in the Chicago area on the basis of the reduced risks involved. A survey, now nearing completion, will disclose what locations are particularly subject to hijacking, the seasons when robberies are most prevalent, and the amount of goods taken in the last twelve months.

Victim Gives Pickpocket a Handy Moral Lesson

When William B. Wood, 55 years old, 6445 Eggleston avenue, felt a hand tug at his pocket as he stood on the platform of a Clark street car he swung a vicious left hook to the jaw of the pickpocket. The man, who later identified himself as Frank Ward, 35 years old, 2718 Princeton avenue, fell into the street at Adams street. He was collared by a policeman.

APPLICANTS TO BUY MODEL HOMES JAM YOUNGSTOWN OFFICE

Youngstown, O., Feb. 26.—(AP)—The public's long dormant home buying enthusiasm awoke with a bang in Youngstown today as one of the most ambitious homestead projects in the government's New Deal program was formally placed on the market.

Prospective buyers literally swamped the offices of the Mahoning Homestead Gardens, Inc., with a flood of applications to purchase.

With a $500,000 government loan already in its possession the company will be ready shortly, its officers said, for the actual construction of 160 model houses on approximately 300 acres of land in Mahoning, Trumbull and Columbiana counties.

The company plans to keep six room houses within a $4,000 price limit, and to sell them with one to two acres of land on monthly payments of $30 or less, including taxes, interest and insurance. The payments would continue for 25 years.

REPORT DAIRIES, DRIVERS NEARER PAY AGREEMENT

Progress toward a settlement of the wage and employment issues between the Chicago milk wagon drivers' union and the representatives of leading milk companies was reported to have been made at an all day conference between negotiating committees for the two groups at the Stevens hotel yesterday.

Although the drivers' union has twice refused to accept a pay cut from the existing scale of $40 per week, it was reported that the union's officials were seeking a basis of settlement with the employers to avoid a large scale reduction in the number of drivers employed by the milk companies. The groups expect to confer again later this week.

The dairies were represented largely by officials and members of the Milk Council, Inc., only one spokesman for the small milk dealers being present. Early in the afternoon this member, John Laue, president of the Chicago Milk Dealers' association, withdrew abruptly from the meeting, declining to comment on his action.

SENATOR WALSH ESTATE TO PAY WIDOW $30,000

Helena, Mont., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Mrs. Nieves Maria de Arbeu y Chaumont Walsh, widow of Senator Thomas J. Walsh, will receive $30,000 in cash or government bonds as a part of her share of his estate.

Judge W. H. Poorman signed the order today acting upon a petition filed Saturday by Genevieve Walsh Gudger. Mrs. Gudger, daughter of the senator and the only other heir, asked for partial distribution of the $77,700 estate. A hearing was set for March 10.

The senator married Mrs. Walsh, a wealthy Cuban, only a few days before his death.

FASHION AUTHORITY FOUND DEAD IN HER KITCHEN; GAS IS ON

New York, Feb. 26.—[Special.]—Mrs. Helen W. Liebert, 47, widely known fashion authority and millinery designer, was found dead today on the floor of the kitchen of her apartment.

Police, summoned by her son, Hyman Liebert, who found his mother's body, said two gas jets on the kitchen stove were open. They began an investigation to determine whether Mrs. Liebert's death was accidental or suicidal.

Mrs. Liebert, with her brother, Edward, operated La Mode Chez Tappe, a fashionable millinery salon in West 57th street.

Slugging Bandit Gets $60 in Holdup on Ninth Floor

A youthful gunman executed a daring daylight robbery on the ninth floor of the Straus building, 310 South Michigan avenue, yesterday and escaped with $60 after slugging Roy Dunlap, 37 years old, 608 Wrightwood avenue, an employé of the Commonwealth Edison company. Police posted guards at all exits in the building in the belief that the gunman might still be inside, but he was not captured.

GUNMEN HOLD UP GROCERY HOUSE; FLEE WITH $2,500

Three robbers, one of them armed with a machine gun, invaded the office of Franklin MacVeagh & Co., wholesale grocers, at 1347 South Clinton street, yesterday. The gunmen held up a score of employés and customers and escaped in a waiting car with $500 cash and $2,000 in checks.

The machine gunner entered first, sweeping the muzzle of the weapon in a half circle around him as he warned every one to be quiet. His companions followed, armed with a sawed off shotgun and a revolver. James Gordon, 425 South Grant street, Hinsdale, the cashier, was compelled to hand over the contents of the cash drawer.

The original MacVeagh company, while in process of liquidation some time ago, sold its title and stock to the Albert F. Bridges company, which has continued under the name of Franklin MacVeagh & Co.

CHICAGO SCOUT COUNCIL OPENS $135,000 DRIVE

Membership Hits Record of 17,552 Boys.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

A campaign to raise $135,000 to meet the 1934 budget of the Chicago council of Boy Scouts was launched last night at the council's annual meeting in the Hotel Sherman. This will be the first public drive for funds since 1930 when the council undertook a $1,250,000 campaign to cover a four year expansion program.

Today the "larger gifts committee of 100" will start seeking large contributions from individuals and business concerns. Mason Phelps and R. Douglas Stuart are co-chairmen and Clarence Sills and James H. Douglas Jr. are vice chairmen of the committee.

For the first time, council officials said, sustaining memberships will be offered through a smaller gifts campaign in which 3,000 citizens each will be urged to support one scout. The cost per scout last year was $5.86.

Set Membership Record.

Last night's meeting, in addition to opening the fund campaign, was considered significant by the council because it marked the establishment of an all-time record in Scout membership—17,552 boys in the Chicago area.

The annual report of Perry A. Lint, scout executive, disclosed that the scouting movement accomplishes more than the award of merit badges for proficiency in its various activities. The story of its character building value and training for citizenship was told in the reports of 3,100 scouts who filled 7,500 assignments at A Century of Progress; the 142 units who performed services for the Chicago Tuberculosis institute in the sale of Christmas seals, and the 176 units which aided in the annual roll call of the American Red Cross. Other similar assignments were listed.

Judge John P. McGoorty presented the reports of Chicago troops which took part in the national "good turn" campaign initiated by President Roosevelt. Eight thousand Scouts participated in the campaign here, collecting articles of furniture and clothing for the needy. The reports will be sent to the President.

Make Silver Beaver Awards.

One of the high points of the meeting came when 13 year old Oliver Tate of Troop 29 led a group of men in the scout oath after they had received the Silver Beaver award in appreciation of their work for the scouts.

Those present to receive the awards were M. Berthold Auerbach, Sydney T. Baker, the Rev. William S. Braddan, James B. Forgan Jr., Robert E. Hecht, Walter S. Hubbard, and John R. Winterbotham. Father W. H. Chalminski received the award for Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, and E. A. Schmidt Jr. took the award for his father who is ill. A posthumous award was given to the family of Orlando Neeves who died last November.

Mr. Stuart, president of the council, was reëlected, as were all other officers.

Mr. Moist, who was 60 years old, died Sunday at his home after a long illness. Burial will be at the Memorial Park cemetery.

S. E. MOIST.

Born in Le Mars, Ia., Mr. Moist entered the piano business in Chicago early in the century. He helped organize and maintain student orchestras at four music schools and aided many young musicians to continue their studies.

Mr. Moist in recent years took great interest in the appearance of his home on the north shore, flowers being one of his hobbies. The lighting effects of his grounds each Christmas time drew attention. He is survived by the widow, Christine, and a daughter, Jane.

MRS. CAMPION, WIDOW OF FIRE MARSHAL, DIES

Mrs. Margaret Mulroy Campion, widow of John Campion, former chief marshal of the Chicago fire department, died yesterday in her home at 665 Grace street after an illness of several months. She was 83 years old.

Mrs. Campion was born in Toronto, Canada, and came to Chicago when she was a girl. Her home was a stone's throw from where the Chicago fire of 1871 started, and was destroyed in the conflagration. Mrs. Campion's husband was a fireman at the time, and a member of the first company on the scene. He became a battalion chief in 1883, and chief marshal in 1904. He retired on a pension two years later following a departmental dispute with the city administration.

Surviving Mrs. Campion are a son, John Campion, and two daughters, Mrs. Frank J. McNichols and Mrs. James Sullivan. Funeral services will be held at 9:30 tomorrow at St. Mary's of the Lake Catholic church. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

Miss Skinner Offers 'Loves of Charles II.'

Performance Equals Notable 'Wives of Henry VIII.'

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Cornelia Otis Skinner's new dramatic sequence, "Loves of Charles II.," with which she opened a week's engagement in the Selwyn theater last night, ranks with her notable "Wives of Henry VIII." in richness of historical detail and vividness of character study. It is a "solo-drama" [her own phrase], however, which runs mainly in the vein of comedy. The grimness of the Tudor atmosphere and the sadness of uxurious Henry's queens is replaced by the gayety of the Stuart restoration and the frivolity of amorous Charles' lovely companions in sin.

The contrast between these two items of Miss Skinner's distinguished repertory is marked in material, but in stage values the Charles sequence and the Henry sequence are about equal. In her dealing with the women who figured in the career of the Merry Monarch, Miss Skinner strengthens her hold upon her unique position in the American theater.

She presents six characters, and yet the leading rôle in this series of monologues is the unseen character that binds them together. Charles II. is Miss Skinner's central figure, and she depicts him by refraction, not as clearly and completely as a psychological novelist, practicing the same method, would have done, but, nevertheless, with skill and understanding. Moreover, she places him in a sympathetic light, retouching the old tradition of total bawdiness with forgiving modern fingers.

She begins with Henrietta Maria, his French mother, advising the youth who is a king without a throne, and ends with Catharine of Braganza, his Portuguese wife, sitting at his deathbed to grant and ask forgiveness. In between are four of the mistresses with whom Charles amused himself—one of them, a wanton in a Dutch tavern, mythical, the others well-documented characters in the history of the period. The three famous girls of the royal seraglio are Barbara Villiers, better known as Lady Castlemaine; Louise de Kéroualle, the French courtesan and bedroom diplomat; and Nell Gwyn, the Drury Lane actress of romantic tradition.

The Henrietta Maria episode is the weakest and lightest, but serves as a satisfactory prologue. The Dutch tavern harpy is a merry trollop whose attitude toward Charles's royal status is derisive. She succeeds in stripping him of everything of value on his person except his shoe buckles, and then thumbs her nose as he takes his leave. It is a diverting chapter in the sequence, but Charles would have regarded it as a blot on his record as a woman tamer.

Lady Castlemaine comes out in the developing process as a loud, brazen, ill-tempered dame, violent in her jealousies. The dialect here runs too blatantly toward cockney, I fell, because the Villiers dame, with all her vices, was bred as an aristocrat.

The sketches of Louise de Kéroualle and Nell Gwyn are the happiest of the collection, the gayest, the most charming of detail and witty of line. The deathbed scene, in which the somber daughter of the royal house of Braganza receives Charles' request about "poor Nelly's" future [this was actually spoken to his brother James], is touching in its subdued pathos.

Miss Skinner prefaces "Charles II." with three of her brief sketches, all new to me. They bear the titles, "Nurse's Day Out," "Lynching Party," and "Being Presented."

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

With the color of a girl's lipstick just as important to her peace of mind and her chic as the color of her favorite costume, it's no wonder the gods that grind out lip rouges are so scientific these days, testing their shades against colored fabrics under all lights and on all types before they even bring them to market for us to buy.

At one of our stores you'll get an idea of the seriousness of it all if you watch the representative of a lip rouge manufacturer doing marvelous things with eight different shades arrived at after exhaustive experimentation.

There is one color, for example, that is marvelous for the brown eyed redhead, a type that usually has lipstick color troubles. Another, that appears on the chart to be extremely dark, turns out to be a most conservative when blended on to the lips. It does wonders if it is not applied too freely for the gray haired woman and it is a color that holds up well under amber lights. Another shade, vividly raspberry, is better for day than for night lights.

Still another color they've achieved has an interesting history. It represents the exact shade, so the experimenters tell us, of the natural color of some 20,000 lips. It's a reddish blush—just about right for the healthy, naturally red lipped woman who wishes merely to emphasize her natural color slightly, not to change it via the lipstick route.

These lip rouges stay on well; what is more important, the color lasts. In a great many lipsticks the coating will last for a long time but the color will change—one of the distinctions between indelibility and permanence of color every woman should take into consideration when she chooses a lipstick.

There are rouges, either dry or paste, to complement each shade of lipstick in this line, too.

Hosiery Must Be Chosen to Suit the Legs

Stocking Shade Improves or Mars Limbs.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Stockings belong in a beauty department because they have much to do with the shapeliness of the leg. But I should be telling you, who have bought at least one pair that made your ankles and legs look awful, or else you're a magic stocking shopper.

We hear much talk about dress colors thickening or thinning the silhouette. And they do, as you well know, black, dark blue, dark browns, being the good old standbys for the normal weight plus sisterhood. But you can't put your ankles and legs in black and very dark shades without making them appear thicker, and often quite ugly, unless, of course, the hosiery is so sheer that the heel is the only give away that there is a stocking on. And these are pretty expensive for current budgets. So the lighter shades have to be studied. Thank goodness, the generous hearted stocking trade is right there with all the tones needed.

Legs which are inclined to be a bit thickish have to be kept out of stockings with pink and yellow tones. Those on the sand coloring, the misty, grayed shades are more flattering. Of course your stocking tone is regulated more or less by the shade of frock with which you are wearing it, and you can get good advice from the saleswoman if you make known the general ensemble color. But you need, also, to bring your own smart color sense to bear on this important choice, and realize that a right shade of stocking will do a good deal for a leg. It won't, of course, make a very thick leg and ankle look thinner, but the leg and ankle just off the envied slender line profit immeasurably by the shade that keeps away from flesh, and pink, and yellow lights in it.

And, speaking of stockings, these days when we dan't dash out and stock up anew for any and every occasion, as was the case in the extravagant twenties, the best trick known for prolonging stocking life is to rinse them out in tepid water after each wearing. Time and again I've been told by women, forced to strictest stocking economy, that they've gotten along on less than half their former stocking allowance by following this washing rule.

Mrs. Roosevelt Describes Year in White House

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt will round out her first year in the White House next Sunday.

When the newspaper women at today's conference asked her how she and the President were going to celebrate the day she said of course they weren't going to celebrate; for there was nothing to celebrate except the fact that the date was a milestone in the march since last March, which she feels is now "on the upward way."

She's not ready to commit herself to any specific figure the degree of prosperity. But she is satisfied that things are on the upgrade in this year, "which seems so much longer than an ordinary year because of the many things that have been done; the new doors opened; the new points of view developed."

One of the developments, she told the women, is the growth of a social philosophy.

And the people are thinking. She likes that.

"You can be a Mussolini," she declared; "but there's not any use in being a Mussolini in a democracy, because the people must go along and use their minds at the same time or nothing happens permanently."

The talk turned to personalities. A recently published magazine article quotes the late Ike Hoover, for many years chief usher at the White House, as saying that it is impossible to have informality in the White House; that even the most informal presidential wife soon learns to call her spouse "the President"; that there are so many rules; as for instance, that neither the President nor his wife would dare to operate the elevator themselves.

Making it clear that she didn't wish to criticize Mr. Hoover, to whom she paid high praise, she did point, a bit pointedly, perhaps, that most of Mr. Hoover's data was gathered before March 4, 1933.

As for herself, she usually calls her husband "Franklin"; sometimes it is "Mr. President"; but then usually in fun.

Of course, she runs the house elevator; and frequently.

As for formality, state functions have to have a certain amount of it. "You want them to have dignity"; private parties can be just as informal as you wish; and are.

Then everybody asked everything. No, she doesn't believe in capital punishment; but does wish for more speedy justice. Yes, she's in sympathy with the small book storekeeper in the present business conditions. No, she won't appear in his behalf at the coming NRA hearings.

Yes, she's had a talk with her eldest son, Jimmy. No, she hasn't converted him to her way of thinking for the child labor amendment. But then, neither has he converted her.

Groups Demand Artist Juries for Institute

A letter claiming to represent the urgent protest of nearly 450 Chicago artists against the use "of laymen" on art juries was made public yesterday. The protest, which was mailed to directors and trustees of the Art institute, concerned the selection of paintings and sculpture in the annual Chicago exhibition at the institute. Leaders of three artists' groups expressed the opinion that movements will soon be started by artists all over the city to no longer submit their works to the Chicago show unless they are judged by "artists chosen by artists."

"If this respectful but firm demand is not acceded to we will take all possible steps to appeal to the widest public opinion," the letter stated. "We will carry our case, knowing it to be founded on simple justice and common sense, before the women's clubs, civic organizations, the press, and the public, before every artists' organization in the United States and before the membership of the Art institute itself.

"We have no wish to dominate such juries as may henceforth be chosen, but insist only that they be composed of artists, not museum directors, officers, officials, or other laymen in the art we practice," the letter concluded. It was signed by the Association of Chicago Painters and Sculptors, the Pallette and Chisel club, and the Oak Park Art league. John F. Stazy, Othler Hessler, and Mrs. Alice Bartholomew are the respective presidents.

"We are fighting, not for schools of art, but for treatment as individuals by those who are our peers or whom we ourselves deem superior in the fields of art to which we have dedicated our lives," members of the organizations said yesterday.

The jury which selected the paintings and sculpture for the current Chicago exhibition was composed of out of town museum directors, according to Robert B. Harsche, director of the Art institute. "Forty years spent with art juries have convinced me that the most catholic and impartial judgments are rendered by museum authorities," he declared. Similar sentiment was expressed by Charles H. Worcester, trustee of the institute. "We seem to have the same trouble every year," he said. "We have tried both conservative and so-called modernist juries, but the artists are apparently not satisfied to have their works classified in this manner."

Two years ago, it was pointed out, a similar protest was sent to the Art institute. As a consequence a jury of artists was chosen for the next year, appointed by the director of the institute. Each change has met with disapproval.

Color Contrasts for Spring Styles

Color dramatics in your newest spring suit ensemble! Here, in apple green soft wool contrasted with dark blue silk. The long, loose swagger length coat ties into place high under the chin with bows and loops of dull blue silk crepe that doubles as a collar line at the back. Completely invisible in the picture, but very much in evidence when the coat is off, is a cleverly designed short sleeved blouse, also of dark silk to match the coat bow and tie. From a Chicago collection of new spring clothes for immediate wear.

Even Busiest Shopper Lags Behind Styles

BY RHEA B. SEEGER.

There's never a dull moment in the life of a snooping shopper! Just when you think you know the town from northeast to southwest, some enterprising crowd springs a good surprise and leaves you gasping. As, for instance, an entire floor of one store completely transformed with open space, some new paint, and swanky furniture, and new spring clothes that will leave even the most hardened shopper weak from envy till they are packed in a box and all her own.

There are new clothes with price tags that will cheer the most dubious shopper—snappy, fresh, young things with all the verve and smartness that everybody wants these dull days, all the exciting new colors and color combinations, tricky new necklines, sleeves, smooth, slim silhouettes, frilly collars and cuffs, and all kinds of simple smart things for street from suits to knockout three-piece ensembles.

There are quantities of coats, "toppers" that will snuggle smartly around you, lots of loose swagger lengths of all the good looking new tweedy wools in every fascinating high and pastel color, all wearable, vastly becoming new costumes hung about in a brand new atmosphere. You will find everything you want for your spring wardrobe, all available on one floor, including colorful new sports clothes, checked, striped, and plaid skirts, all the newest sweaters, silk and wool blouses, all kinds of exciting new hats. Even spring fur pieces can be selected without stepping off the floor.

Young Morrow Will Speak to Amherst Club

Assistant to President to Be Banquet Guest.

BY JUDITH CASS.

OUT of the east comes Dwight W. Morrow Jr. to be the guest speaker tomorrow night at the 1934 annual banquet of the Amherst Club of Chicago at the University club. The club officers who have succeeded in bringing young Mr. Morrow here consider it a "coup," for he is assistant to President Stanley King of Amherst and exceptionally well qualified to talk about the college in his address "Amherst, the Small College of Liberal Arts."

It's scarcely necessary to identify Mr. Morrow. His father was the late Senator Morrow, who was graduated from Amherst in 1895, a classmate of the late Calvin Coolidge. Young Mr. Morrow finished at the college last June and then was invited to return in the fall as assistant to President King, a position especially created for him.

Mr. Morrow's presidency of the Amherst Debating council and the Interfraternity Debate league, as well as his membership in Delta Sigma Rho, an honorary debating society, all testify to his ability as a speaker. During his undergraduate days he also achieved membership in Phi Beta Kappa and was a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity.

Mr. Morrow gets into town at 7:30 tomorrow morning and will go directly to the University club, where he is to stay.

More than 150 Amherst alumni and prospective Amherst students and their fathers have accepted invitations to be present at the dinner.

Paul A. Jenkins is to be the toastmaster. The Rev. Russell M. Boynton is president of the club and Robert J. Koretz the secretary.

Sarah Lawrence President Here.

It was 5 o'clock before most of the Sarah Lawrence alumnae arrived yestedray afternoon for their tea at the College club for, by mistake, the newspaper notices given out by one of them had stated the place as the Arts club and as a result more than one guest made a trip all the way down to the Wrigley building and then had to return to Delaware place.

Miss Constance Warren, the well liked president of Sarah Lawrence, was the reason for the tea. She is in Chicago this week on her annual visit, spending most of her time contacting the preparatory schools in and about the city. She was looking especially radiant yesterday in a lettuce green dress with a spray of gardenias on her shoulder.

Miss Margaret Fenner and Miss Gertrude Davis poured. Among the guests were Miss Lucy Trumbull, Miss Elizabeth Vaughn, and Miss Betty McCracken, all recent graduates of the school, Miss Jean Rawlings, Mrs. William W. Wollett, Miss Jane Redman, Miss Ann Stevens, Miss Mary ApMadoc, Miss Marion Greenlee, Mrs. Sidney Fenellosa, and Mrs. Charles Morgan Price.

SOCIETY PRESENT

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Chicago's Bryn Mawr alumnae proved themselves as clever last night as Nell Gwynn, Lady Castlemaine, and the rest of the 17th century ladies who lived again for an evening on the stage of the Selwyn theater.

Presenting the stunning, talented Cornelia Otis Skinner in a repertory of solo drama, "The Loves of Charles II," for the benefit of their scholarship fund, they not only realized college dreams for two or perhaps three worthy and ambitious young women but also provided a gala evening in the theater.

It was especially appropriate that they chose Miss Skinner [in private life Mrs. Alden Sanford Blodget] for their benefit, for she was enrolled at the college for two years between 1918 and 1920.

"I've never enjoyed a performance more!" Miss Skinner told some of her friends who were waiting to congratulate her at the stage door after the final curtain. "I can certainly say I am glad I went to Bryn Mawr. It's magnificent to have such friends."

Mrs. Richard Bentley, strikingly pretty in a sunset red gown, and Mrs. John L. Cochran, looking her loveliest in a brand new formal, were two of those who voiced their enthusiasm in especially loud and long applause, for they were classmates of Miss Skinner. At noon yesterday they welcomed her back to Chicago at a Casino luncheon.

Mrs. William Gold Hibbard was hostess in one of the two theater boxes while Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Carton entertained a party of friends in the other. Among Mrs. Hibbard's guests were former Congressman Morton D. Hull and her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Hale. With the Cartons were Mr. and Mrs. Albert D. Farwell and Mr. and Mrs. T. Albert Potter.

Every seat in the house was occupied . . . in fact the demand was so great that there were quite as many ermine wraps and dinner jackets in the lower balcony as there were on the main floor. Palmers, Meekers, Douglases, Donnelleys, McCormicks, Thornes, all contributed to the festivity of the occasion.

Even more than Miss Skinner's brilliant cross section of the court of the English restoration, the young English vice consul, Malcolm Henderson, appreciated the actress' parody on a presentation at Buckingham palace. Many is the duplicate Mr. Henderson has seen of the "lady from Nebraska who could wear three white feathers and swish a train if the British could." Mr. Henderson was sitting last night with his pretty young wife, the former Paula Wilms; Miss Eloise Requa, who is the president of the Chicago Bryn Mawr club; Miss Requa's house guest, Miss Harriot Hopkinson of Manchester, Mass.; Miss Marian Porter, Creighton Miller, Raymond Owens, and Joseph Dryden.

Radiant in a gown of blue and silver tissue decorated only by a huge spray of gardenias, Miss Virginia Hobart was giving direction to the dozen recent Bryn Mawr graduates who were assistant ushers. There were among them Miss Elinor Chapman, tall, stunning Grace Dewes, petite Mrs. Conway H. Olmsted, and Mrs. Wilbur C. Smith, Miss Dewes' mother, Mrs. Edwin P. Dewes, who had so ably managed the ticket sale, arrived from a dinner party at the Casino with another of her daughters, Miss Dorothy Dewes.

Secretary of the Interior Ickes, in Chicago primarily for his appearance last Saturday evening before the League of Women Voters, dropped in for two of the character sketches. Mr. and Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr. . . . Mrs. Douglas striking in gold tissue and a sable wrap . . . came with the Fairbank Carpenters. Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer sat not far from Mrs. John Adams Chapman, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson Jr., who were with the Cyrus H. Adamses.

An interesting group of "young marrieds" include Mr. and Mrs. Ezra J. Warner, Dr. and Mrs. Paul B. Magnuson, Mr. and Mrs. Edison Dick, and Mr. and Mrs. Hermon Dunlap Smith. Mrs. Charles Wesley Dempster, arriving with Mr. Dempster, showed the effects of a southern holiday in a becoming touch of sun tan.

BROTHERLY love note: Paul T. Gilbert, who takes the North Shore to town from Kenilworth, observed that each morning the conductors carefully pick up all the newspapers left behind by passengers, smooth them out, and save them. He inquired what they did with the papers and learned that they turn them over to the tower man at Roosevelt road. The word has gone out that the tower man has daily papers to give away and each day a procession of depression sufferers, too poor to buy a daily paper, come to him to get their newspaper.

LIQUOR propaganda is everywhere—in the shop display windows, in the magazines, even in the names applied to commercial objects. A new line of lipsticks not only is named for wines but the lipsticks are supposedly flavored with the wine of their name—claret, Chianti, Burgundy. The other day we went into a bookstore and found a wine list there—an asortment of books dealing with the subject, including some London published books we had not hitherto seen. There were books called "Sherry," "Champagne," "Claret," "Port," and "Hocks and Moselles" that are the histories of those wines and the achievements of the men who made that history. There was "The Blood of the Grape," by A. L. Simon, a textbook for the wine trade. There was "American Wines and How to Make Them"; "French Wines," by P. de Cassagnac; "What Everybody Wants to Know About Wine"; "Rum: The Englishman's Spirit," and "A Handbook of Wines." There also was "Bottlescrew Days," about wine drinking in England in the 18th century, containing a chapter on wine glasses and bottles, and Julian Street's "Wines."

Having seen divers articles by Mr. Street on the etiquet of serving wine, we recently were diverted by the magazine account of a feverish invalid who had had a realistic dream. In the dream a pheasant had Julian Street down and was pouring Burgundy down his throat.

LEONID MASSINE was excited by the enthusiasm Chicago displayed for his Tchaikowsky ballet, "Les Presages," which he told Carleton Smith was only the beginning of what he thinks will be the next era in ballet. He explained that the structure of the symphony takes the place of the scenario or story in the choreography and the mood of the music replaces the characters. Massive plans to do the Beethoven 7th and Mozart shortly. The number selected for St. Louis was the Chorearteum to Brahms' Fourth Symphony.

Part of the company must return to Monte Carlo for a spring season, Massine said. None of the ballerinas want to go. When the company decided to come to America they didn't want to come and made innumerable demands, so that it took a great deal of diplomacy to handle the ballerinas (and their mothers).

THE little son of a Chicagoan has started to parochial school and he was told by his mother before leaving home not to be afraid of the nuns or to be shy.

"You will like them very much and you must talk to them," she said. "Be sure to make conversation with them."

The little boy, upon entering the school, saw on the wall a picture of Christ. Remembering his mother's admonition to make conversation, he commented after one of the sisters had greeted him:

"My, sister, isn't that a wonderful likeness of God?"

THE WILD BIRD

SYNOPSIS.

Barbara Brawne, aged 22, is completely dominated by an adoring though jealous father, who is against every modern idea and improvement. Lynwood, their home, is in the prim and proper village of Oxbridge, a place of intellectual sanctity. Barbara seems predestined to join the ranks of the village spinsters. Her father scares away any would-be suitors. She contemplates rebellion. Gregory Rance, popular novelist, is visiting her cousin, Laurie Chiswick. They are mutually attracted. Barbara overhears Rance asking Laurie about her. He says she is the sort of girl he'd want to marry. Barbara proposes to Rance. But Rance is divorced and her father hates divorce and uses this as an excuse to oppose their marriage. When Barbara determines to marry Rance, regardless, her father has a stroke. Barbara fears he'll kill himself deliberately. She promises him she won't marry Rance without his consent. Gregory goes away and Barbara strives futilely to put him out of her mind. Disbrough, her father's partner, is a frequent visitor at Lynwood. Barbara goes on a visit to Long Island. Brawne worries himself into a frenzy. When Disbrough calls Brawne tells him that if he can win Barbara he has his consent.

INSTALLMENT XXXVIII.

AN UNROMANTIC PROPOSAL.

Disbrough averted his glance. How the devil had the old fellow read his mind? Was he sincere, or was he pretending to be, to lead him on and turn on him after his avowal.

"Mr. Brawne," he said slowly, "in a way you are right. The advantages to a man who intends to go far are so obvious that I won't deny I did sometimes think, hope——"

"Good."

"But, frankly, this is the difficulty. I'm not the sort of a man to inspire romance in a young girl."

"She's through with that," Brawne barked out. "She's had her lesson!"

"I don't fall in love myself, and I certainly won't cause any one to fall in love with me," Disbrough said carelessly, knowing well the satisfaction the declaration would bring the father.

"You're no fool, Allen," said Brawne abruptly. "You can get her if you want to. Only—don't pretend to be in love with her. She won't marry you for that."

"I understand that, sir." He opened the portfolio. "Now in this suit against the City of Bridgeport, I think I have followed your instructions fairly satisfactorily."

. . . . . .

At the end of the month Mr. Disbrough proposed. Barbara had been expecting it. He had prepared for it step by step, as he would a difficult case, where the imponderables must be taken into account, the idiosyncrasies of the trial judge, the human elements to be contended with in the prejudices and emotions of the jury. He would not bungle his case or lay himself open to ridicule. It would be a neat, logical presentation, delivered with dignity and compelling respect.

"Have you ever considered marrying someone your father would approve?"

The man interested her, if only from the fact that he was diametrically a contrast to everything in her. As far as she had been able to discover, he was completely devoid of sentiment, or any emotional weakness. Withal, he had a certain impressiveness. Life was keen to him. He was so tremendously interested in himself that sometimes he created an illusion of being interested in other persons. He was eminently presentable, at ease in any society, and the little attentions he paid her were gracefully if not fervidly performed.

In their contacts Barbara had come to know what he thought without penetrating any deeper into what he felt. If he felt? Did he ever feel? Had there ever been in some forgotten period of his youth a moment when he had been swept off his feet and been emotionally torn as she had been? Whatever happened to him in life he would remain, she was certain, insensitive to suffering.

She was in town for a session at the dressmaker's, and occupying the studio apartment of a friend, when he came up late in the afternoon. Tea was ready before the fireplace as he entered importantly and they sat down opposite each other. She divined at once what was on his mind, and felt the same nervous expectancy she had noticed in the courtroom when he had risen to present his case.

"Only he'll wait until he's through with his tea," she thought, amused. "No man, not even Mr. Disbrough, could propose with a cup of tea in his hand."

"Your father," he said smiling, "is getting a bit out of hand. There's been a flare-up with the nurse. I succeeded in quieting her down, but I couldn't stop him from suing the water company. Then there was a historical scene last Wednesday after Dr. Richards had peremptorily forbidden him any more wine. But you've heard of it?"

"Nothing at all."

"He ordered Thomas to bring up the entire contents of his wine cellar and range them on the lawn. Then he had him methodically knock each bottle in with an ax. Mr. Chiswick happened to arrive and tried to stop him. There was a quarrel. Your father ordered him off the place."

"Uncle Tony, too!"

"It would have been amusing if the excitement had not upset him. Nothing serious, a few days in bed to calm down, but I think you had better run up soon."

"That's what will always happen when I'm away," she said in a discouraged voice.

He put down his teacup gingerly.

"You are in a difficult situation, Barbara, and no one realizes it more than I."

She nodded gloomily.

"I am in a situation from which there is no escape." There was no one else to whom she could unburden herself. He was sympathetic. He knew. He had been kind. "My father may live ten or fifteen years, and while he lives my life belongs to him. He let me go away this once, but he resented it. I suppose you spoke to him?"

He nodded.

"It will be harder the next time."

"But it isn't a life," he said tentatively.

"That's all I see before me."

"Have you ever considered marrying some one your father would approve of?"

She met his look.

"Are you speaking of yourself?"

"Yes."

She drew back in her chair, her hands under her chin, and stared at him.

"May I discuss this in a purely friendly way?" He waited, and as she made no objection, he continued: "Let me take up my side first. I shan't pretend to things I do not feel. I am not an emotional person. I have disciplined everything in me rigidly to succeed, because at the time other men could afford to play, I was poor and had to depend on myself. I worked my way through school and college. I determined when I was a boy that I would go far, and I am going far. I set my goal at forty. In a way I have been digging a tunnel, a long tunnel, and at forty I shall emerge. I have not been unhappy. Far from it. I have enjoyed this absolute concentration to an idea because I am confident that the end will be the reward. I am thirty-six now. If anything," he added with a smile, "I can say I am ahead of my schedule."

"And you've been able to keep on like this, year after year," she said involuntarily, "and nothing happened to upset you or distract you?"

"Never. Question of temperament, undoubtedly. I was born self-sufficient, I suppose."

"It must be that."

He continued tersely to recount his progress while she watched him intently, thinking, "I could never feel anything for him, but then I don't want to love again. Never!" To love again would be the supreme disloyalty to her romance. Most marriages must be made like this, when one sat back and looked steadily into the future. She roused herself from her revery and said abruptly:

"Just what are you looking ahead to?"

"A public career, of course. Politics. I should like a period in congress as a step towards a final diplomatic career. That appeals to me for it would give me the opportunity I've always coveted, to know the old world, old cultures, and to become intimately acquainted with political ideas that are ingrained, and ideas that are experimental. I want the broadest possible contact with public affairs, in a word."

Miss Lombard Buys Bear for Birthday Gift

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—Knowing Director Norman Taurog's aversion for bears, after the hectic three days he spent trying to get the trained bear "Lady" to go through scenes with Bing Crosby in "We're Not Dressing," Carole Lombard had a great idea how to help Taurog celebrate his birthday, which occurred within the week. She bought a live bear, had it crated and delivered to Taurog's home at 7 a. m.

But even when wakened at 7 a. m. Taurog thinks fast. "Oh," he lied to the express men, "there's a slight mistake. I bought the bear. It was intended as a gift for Miss Lombard. Your instructions have it twisted? What we intended to do was to have you deliver it in the crate to the Zoological garden and kept there at Miss Lombard's expense."

He spent the rest of the day laughing inwardly, but maintaining the outward aspect of glumness every time he looked at Carole.

Mitchell Leisen, directing "Murder at the Vanities" at Paramount studio keeps two coffee percolators bubbling all day long. Every time action lulls he has a boy bring a cup of coffee. Jack Oakie, who is working in the picture said, "I watched him drink 22 cups the other day. Then my stomach got too upset for me to count any more."

Alan Mowbray spent several hundred dollars outfitting himself to catch a marlin swordfish. Eventually he got to sea and hooked one. After battling an hour and a half with it, Mowbray, worn out and disgusted, yelled, "Well, if you want the damn outfit that bad you can have it" and tossed rod and reel overboard.

Donald Dilloway is playing a female impersonator—a woman bareback rider—in the Joe E. Brown circus story, "Sawdust." So as not to be mistaken he always smokes a cigar between scenes.

Here's the reverse on the gentleman's bromide about feminine Hollywood being "beautiful and dumb"; Jean Muir says, "No, I've never ridden a bicycle or eaten a tamale and what's more, I've never met a man who could carry on an interesting ten minutes' conversation." That girl is so audacious that her studio is grooming her for a big hit.

Girls Who Love Bright Lights Seldom Change

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Yesterday we spoke of marrying a man to reform him of his drinking habits. Today we have another angle, of the marrying-to-reform, in inquiries from a man. The girl he would like to marry, granted he has reasonable hope of reforming her, is one whose reputation might be called pretty spotty, to put it mildly. She has had affairs with several men, is extravagant, and likes to go where the bright lights glitter.

The man is her exact opposite but desperately in love. He is not sure that the young woman cares for him that way. He can spend, and is a good spender when he does step out, but stepping out is not his idea of marriage. He wonders if marriage won't make the girl settle down, forget other men, force her to be less extravagant, be a homebody in place of the night life butterfly she now resembles.

True, you never can tell about human beings. This woman might just turn out to be the exception that proves the rule. The faith, the loyalty, the unfailing devotion of a man to a woman of experience sometimes does effect a miracle. But miracles, as you know, are not daily happenings. For the average run of folk, the measure of the girl or man before marriage is pretty much the measure of him and her after marriage. People bring into marriage the same likes and dislikes, the same characteristics that have always been theirs. They do not change overnight. They're pretty much the same boy and girl, basically, that they were in school, reflecting their home training or lack of it, their strength of morals or their lack of them, their honesty or dishonesty, and so on.

You hear stories about how this and that girl, notoriously wild in younger days, has settled down into the most domestic of persons. These are the miracles, and miracles because of a great love combined with sterling qualities that were already there. We would not think of a young woman with a couple of affairs to her discredit, extravagant, and passionately fond of the bright lights, as the material from which a miracle might be wrought.

Better let the girl prove that there is something to her first.

Co-ed at Michigan Uses Own Vows for Her Marriage Service

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Brides have been known to delete the word "obey" from their marriage vows but Mrs. Rex. E. Buxton, University of Michigan co-ed, went a step further and devised a brand new ceremony.

The Buxtons explained that their wedding ceremony embodied their own ideas of what modern wedlock should be. The phrases "to obey" and "till death do us part" were among those eliminated. The Rev. Charles B. Allen, of Detroit, officiated. The service opened with a short outline of the duties and responsibilities of marriage, read by the Rev. Mr. Allen, which included, among other things, the assertion that "marriage is no real union established by a vow."

"Marriage," the service continued, "is a relationship between two personalities functioning together in progressive integration."

Young Morrow Will Speak to Amherst Club

Assistant to President to Be Banquet Guest.

Bush's guests will be the group of young matrons and post-debs who sew together every Tuesday for the Visiting Nurse association, the Red Cross, or some other charity.

They will gather this afternoon about 2:30 with their sewing kits under their arms and then put in two hours of concentrated needlework and after that they will have tea. Today they are to make baby outfits for the Visiting Nurses.

Among those who are in the group, started about five years ago, are Mrs. William D. Cox, Mrs. William E. Graham, Mrs. Bruce Thorne, Mrs. John P. Wilson Jr., Mrs. Norman C. Pritchard, Mrs. John Beadle, Mrs. Roger Q. White, Mrs. John I. Shaw, Mrs. Niblack Thorne, Mrs. Arthur T. Hellyer, Mrs. George J. Jaeger Jr., Mrs. Theron Chapman, and Mrs. Fletcher Nyce.

Tavern to Have Party for Actors.

The Tavern, which had such a successful cocktail party last Wednesday for the young Russian dancers, is to have another one this week on Friday. It is for the actors and actresses who are in the city, including Cornelia Otis Skinner and members of the casts of "Hold Your Horses," "Ten Minute Alibi," "The Curtain Rises," and "Elizabeth Sleeps Out."

William R. Moore and William B. Edwards, two popular bachelor beaux, are giving a tea party Saturday from 4 to 6 o'clock for Sally Garden, the lovely young sub-deb daughter of their friends, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh M. G. Garden. And it's a tea party, not a cocktail party, they will explain, for these two gentlemen are old fashioned enough to think that tea is a better beverage to serve to young people than "likker." Miss Garden went to Mount Vernon in Washington last year but this year she is staying home and working hard as a freshman at Northwestern.

The most interesting entertainment the Chicago Drama league has introduced in a long time is its series of candlelight salons featuring Chicago personalities. Invitations have just been issued for another of these programs at twilight next Sunday at the Arts club. Kenneth Foster is to discuss with illustration "The Chinese Theater; Ancient and Modern."

Mrs. Lawrence Eggleson Is Visitor in City.

A popular visitor in town this week is Mrs. Lawrence Eggleson of Minneapolis, who is visiting her mother, Mrs. Charles W. Folds, until the week-end, when she will go out to Lake Forest to stay with her sister, Mrs. Lithgow Mitchell, until the middle of next week.

The Mitchells are not leaving town this winter, for they have something far more important on hand, which will occupy most of their time. They are moving from their Washington street home into a new house on East Laurel avenue, which they purchased recently. "Moving day" for the Mitchells will be around March 15.

Life is not all play in the winter resorts for those fortunate ones who are vacationing, for from Sarasota, Fla., comes news of an interesting affair given by some Lake Foresters who have a winter home on Siesta Key, Sarasota, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hull Ewing. They invited a group of about fifty to their home to hear Dr. Fritz M. Marx, a former professor of the University of Hamburg and Rockefeller research fellow at the University of Chicago in 1930-'31, speak on "The Youth Movement and the Nazi Party in Germany."

Dr. Marx had a life time appointment as commissioner general of the unemployed in the state public welfare department of Hamburg, which he resigned last November because he was not in sympathy with the Hitler program. He describes himself as a "refugee from Hitlerism" and is spending the winter with relatives at Bradenton, near Sarasota.

Mrs. Bell, Daughter Go to Arizona.

Mrs. Laird Bell and her hard working daughter, Miss Helen Bell, have gone to Arizona for a vacation. Miss Bell has been on the production staff of the Junior league's successful version of "Peter Pan." They are joining Mrs. Bell's sister in law, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, on a ranch near Tucson, and will be away for at least three weeks. Mr. Fairbank returned to Chicago last week.

Miss Janet Fairbank is visiting in New York and will return to Chicago the third week in March.

Winnetk.. is welcoming home the James Fentresses who have been abroad for the last ten or twelve weeks.

At last the Donald F. McPhersons have gotten away for a vacation. They have gone to Useppa island for a month. Their daughter, Miss Fanny McPherson, is at school in Paris just now, but she will return in the early summer and start making plans for her formal debut next winter.

Mrs. William C. Jackson and Mrs. Eugene E. Andrews have gone to Winter Park, Fla., to visit Mrs. Andrew B. MacCaughey. The Tracy L. Turners are other Chicagoans who are in Winter Park now. They have taken a house that for the season so as to be near her son, Foster, who is a student at Rollins college.

Miss Mary MacCaughey has gone south to join her mother and with her went Mrs. Carl Galloway, John Schreiner, and Harold Elliot.

Mrs. Butler Returns from Palm Beach.

Mrs. Stresenreuter Butler has returned to her home in Hinsdale from a two weeks' visit to Palm Beach.

The Ronald P. Boardmans, the Donald P. Welles, the George A. Blairs, Miss Constance Wallerich, William P. Martin Jr., and Mrs. Charles A. Ramsay are among the Chicagoans who sailed on the Mauretania Saturday night for a thirteen day cruise to the West Indies and South America.

Quite a little colony of Chicagoans has collected in the Huntington hotel in Pasadena, Cal., and most of its members have set April 1 as the earliest date for their return to Chicago.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By A. HAL SIMS

Mr. Sims is universally acclaimed the greatest living contract and auction player. He was captain of the renowned "Four Horsemen" team of four, now disbanded, and has won twenty-four national championships since 1924. These articles are based on the Sims system, which includes the one-over-one principle which the Sims group of players was the first to employ and develop.

THE ONE NO TRUMP OPENING BID.

IN yesterday's article I gave the requirements for making an opening bid of one no trump and stated that with one type of holding it was advisable to bid a no trump and yet with identical values but no tenace positions it was best to bid a suit.

After the bidding has been opened, regardless of position, the partner of the opening bidder is expected to keep the bidding open should he hold as good as a "distributed trick plus." That is a king, queen, and jack, even if all these cards are in different suits. This will be fully explained in the article on responses, but with just this bare holding and no biddable suit the response is always one no trump.

Maneuvering the Declaration.

Several years ago I asked myself the following question: "How can the 'through strength and up to weakness' play be made to serve the declarer as well as the defense?" I made a study of this and the answer was obvious. The declarer can benefit to the greatest extent if he can force the opponents to disobey this rule or if he can impel them to lead through weakness and up to strength at the very outset of the play of the hand.

In order to do this the declarer must maneuver the bidding so that the opening lead will be up to tenaces. If his hand contains tenaces he wishes the lead to come up to him; but if his hand will not suffer because the opening lead comes through it, then the partner must be made to bid no trumps.

With the following hand one no trump would be bid:

Spades—A Q 10	Diam—Q x x
Hearts—K Q 10	Clubs—A J x x

This hand invites the lead up to it. Now change the spade queen into the club queen. The hand is no longer a no trump type.

One club should be bid with:

Spades—A 10	Diam—Q x x
Hearts—K Q 10	Clubs—A Q J x x

Suppose your partner holds the following hand:

Spades—Q x x	Diam—K 10 x x
Hearts—J x x x	Clubs—10 x

The response would be one no trump. You should now bid two no trumps, the strongest kind of an invitation to continue the bidding, and he would then contract for game in no trumps.

Maneuvering on the Second Round.

Maybe your partner is able to respond to your opening bid with another suit. It is still to your advantage to have him play the hand at a no trump declaration. This you do by making a bid in another suit if possible, or else by rebidding your own suit strongly by giving a jump bid in it. Here is an example:

Spades—K J x x	Diam—K Q J x
Hearts—A x	Clubs—A x x

You should bid one diamond.

Your partner holds the following and bids one heart:

Spades—Q x x	Diam—x x
Hearts—K J x x x	Clubs—Q x x

The next natural bid by you seems to be two no trumps, as the outlook is very bright for a game. But what have you to gain by playing the hand? You know that your partner has some values. The heart lead through you cannot hurt. A club lead may be into the queen in your partner's hand or even the jack, ten. Bid one spade. Now your partner's reply is one no trump and you then bid two no trumps and he should raise to three.

The bid of a second suit over a one-over-one response either shows a legitimate two suiter of the aggressive type or else proclaims excess values in the hand. It is not a response force unless it is still a one-over-one, but does constitute an invitation to partner to rebid. When able to bid three suits the partnership should be able to arrive at a safe declaration if only for a partial score.

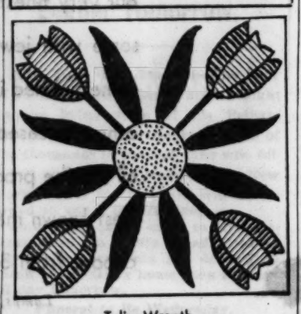
Applique Quilt Is Popularly Known for Individuality



Tulip Wreath.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Relatively speaking, this applique block is a newcomer to both the tulip family and the quilt field. Its growing popularity is accounted for by its originality of design, and the ease with which it may be appliqued. The colors rose, green, purple, and yellow form one of the most popular and attractive combinations.

For a quilt pattern in this design send 5 cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn, and Tribune Tower.

Mrs. Bernard M. Eckhart and Mrs. Charles M. Hewitt are two who will remain until spring breezes blow, and Mrs. William F. Burrows and her daughter, Miss Louisa Burrows, may stay there until May 1.

The George Voevodkys arrived at home Saturday from a holiday spent in Florida and New York.

The Dennis F. Kellys will return to their Lake Forest home shortly after April 1 from a cruise to the West Indies.

Mrs. Ronald Chinnock at Arizona Ranch.

From Phoenix Mrs. Ronald J. Chinnock writes of long days in the bracing Arizona air and sunshine. She is staying on a ranch about eleven miles outside of the city. It will be at least another fortnight before she returns to Chicago.

Early this week Mrs. Robert White Jr. will board a plane for Cincinnati. From the Ohio city she will go on by train to Parkersburg, West Va., where she will visit her aunt and uncle, Dr. and Mrs. Mark Fisher, for a fortnight.

It is with regret that we write of the death of a baby whose birth we announced just last week, Diane, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard ReQua Jr. The baby was born on Tuesday and died four days later. Mrs. ReQua will be leaving St. Luke's hospital and returning to her home in Geneva at the end of this week probably.

At 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon Norman Condon, accompanied by Henry Jackson, will give a program of songs in the Chicago Lighthouse, 3323 West Cermak road, and undoubtedly several of the Lighthouse Volunteer aids will be driving west for the interesting event.

String Quartet Shows Skill in Concert Series

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Chamber music took another step toward popularity last night, when the Philharmonic String quartet played the second concert of the Chicago Chamber Music committee series in the foyer of Orchestra hall and made a striking success of it.

Like the Mischakoff String quartet that opened the series and will follow in two weeks, the Philharmonic organization is made up of members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Like it, too, it is composed of good players who have worked together until they have an expert knowledge of the art of ensemble playing.

The program began with a first class performance of the Beethoven Quartet, opus 18, No. 2, in G major. There followed two movements from a work by Robert Sanders. This was a composition of a slightly surprising kind, because, although it was written only a few years ago, it constantly makes respectful salutations to the diatonic scale and yet turns out to be bright, original, attractive, and a proof from several points of view that the diatonic scale has not yet been worked out as a source of good melody.

Ravel's Quartet in F, a work full of charm, was the final number on the program, but there was an added number, a rollicking, not quite conventional Scherzo by Reger. In general and in detail the Philharmonic String quartet demonstrated itself to be deserving of earnest attention.

Iota Alpha chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon will give a concert at the Chicago Musical college tonight in honor of Rudolph Ganz, president of the college. Lurena Winston, soprano; Ethel Swindelle, contralto; Rosalind Wallach, violinist; Ruth Walmsley, pianist, and a vocal ensemble will present the program.

English Trifle Delights as a Tasty Dessert

Dainty Is Favorite of the British Isles.

"Delicious Fish Dinners," a booklet containing menus and recipes for fish dinners and luncheons, is on sale at the Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 2 cents. By mail, 3 cents, stamps or coin. Address Mary Meade, Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

The matter on the table this morning perhaps will seem to you to be just a trifle, but don't ever think that that makes it any the less important to a news-loving cook. For this trifle is none other than the favorite English dessert by that name. It's been delighting British housewives by its economy, and Island families by its good flavor, for a great many years. And it's just as ready to cheer up the budgets and pique the palates of us Americans as it is to stay at home on the Isles.

But the most pleasant thing about a trifle is that while it may on ordinary occasions, consist simply of yesterday's sponge cake, split and filled with jam, packed in a bowl beneath macaroons, soaked in sherry flavored fruit juices, and finally covered up completely with boiled custard, it also may, on the other hand, be decked out, and so conjured up, as to be a veritable feast for a prime minister, or the husband's visiting mother!

But first for the most simple. Line custard cups with slices of dry sponge cake. Over them pour fruit juice which may, if you wish, have been flavored with cooking sherry. Allow this to stand until absorbed, then pour into each cup enough lukewarm, boiled custard to fill two-thirds full. Let them chill, then spread each top with fruit jam and pile with whipped cream spangled in the center with a half spoonful of jam. Serve cold.

Another variation of the original trifle is, likely, pretty much Americanized, but very good just the same. It alternates layers of dry cake with layers of sliced peaches, bananas, or oranges, in a large serving dish. Over this goes soft custard, and topping all comes a white of egg meringue. Chill and serve.

And, in the line of those fruit trifles, here comes one with still another quirk.

COCONUT PEAR TRIFLE.

Simmer sliced, ripe pears in a sirup made of 2 cups of sugar, 2 cups of water, and the juice of 1 lemon. Meanwhile, arrange a layer of several-days-old sponge cake in the bottom of a generous sized casserole. Sprinkle the cake with shredded coconut, then pour over it the stewed pears, with a little of their juice. Now beat together 3 egg yolks and ½ cup of sugar. Pour this over the pears, and bake ½ hour in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.]. Then take out, spread with red raspberry jam, and pile roughly with a sweetened meringue made of the remaining 3 egg whites. Brown lightly and serve chilled.

But the king of them all is the true old time trifle, which really made a sensation in its heyday. It's rich and winey, and well worth the extra minutes you put into it.

OLD ENGLISH TRIFLE.

A trifle bowl was used for this, but one of your deep, round, salad bowls will do as well. Pack it nearly half full with slices of dry-ish sponge cake and, on top, arrange a layer of macaroons. Over this pour 1½ cups of sherry and let it be absorbed. Meanwhile, blend 2 teaspoons of flour with ¼ cup of milk in a saucepan. Add 1¾ cups milk and ½ cup of cream, cooking until thickened and smooth. As it cooks, add to it 1 tablespoon of sugar and several strips of lemon peel. Let it bubble gently for several minutes, then strain and let cool. While it cools, separate 4 eggs and beat the yolks. Stir these into the cooled milk, and then heat the mixture in a double boiler until it thickens. Cool again and, when lukewarm, add 1 teaspoon of vanilla extract. Pour the custard over the moist cake and chill in the refrigerator until set. A few minutes before serving, spread the top with a fruit jam and pile with a froth made from a beaten white of egg, ½ cup cream beaten stiff, sugar to sweeten, and ½ teaspoon lemon juice. Beat the sugar and lemon juice in with the egg white, then add the cream and whip until stiff. As a final touch, the old English trifle maker would arrange candied fruit and slivers of blanched almonds, in flower forms or other tricky designs, upon the top of the layer of white, crowning this festive dish and sending it tableward with most justifiable pride.

TOOK PILLS FOR 30 YEARS, THEN CEREAL BROUGHT RELIEF

Mr. Forsythe Endorses ALL-BRAN for Constipation

If you suffer from headaches, loss of appetite and energy or any other of the frequent effects of constipation, read this voluntary letter:

"After taking pills and tablets for about thirty years for constipation, I started to take your ALL-BRAN three times a day according to directions. Today I can eat cheese, and that is binding, and certainly feel fine."—Mr. Ed. Forsythe, Box 219, Youngstown, N. Y.

Science says ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and vitamin B to further aid regular habits. In addition, ALL-BRAN is rich in blood-building iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass which gently clears the intestines of wastes.

Isn't this pleasant "cereal way" far more healthful than using patent medicines—so often habit-forming?

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. In serious cases use with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Suit Answer to Nature of Child's Query

"Putting Off" Questions Even Call for Evasions.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

This is a continued subject—children's questions. Yesterday we granted that children's questions are not trivial but worthy of consideration.

Shall you, we asked, answer every question your child asks and answer it fully?

Our reply was—that depends, and we divided children's questions into four groups—for all children's questions are not asked for the same purpose.

Take a question like, "What makes the clouds above, Mommie?" That is asked for information and we surely answer it as adequately and simply as we can. But we need one caution with these seeking questions—at no age must we overwhelm a child with information. It's not only that we must fit our answer to his youth but also that we don't want to bore him. "I won't ask grandpa," said one child, "because he'll give me a long lecture about it. Just tell me in a few words, mother."

Next take the question that is like overhearing our child's thoughts. Sometimes these questions need an answer—but sometimes an answer would spoil a revery or break in upon the child in a realm quite far away from every day. His question is one of wonder, and often he doesn't expect an answer.

Another kind of question is the running fire of rather inconsequential questions that a child keeps up when he feels lonely or is being ignored in favor of a book or other grownups. When a mother finds her child doing much of this and when she feels only annoyance at it, she would do well to do a little looking inward and see if she is not failing in companionableness.

And last are those questions that are the resort of the little boy or girl who, longing to play or stay up with the family, is frantically trying to postpone the inevitable bath or lunch or bed. When these barrages of questions come, your common sense tells you that each and every one does not call for an answer, but needs a friendly but tactful evasion, or a change of subject, or a firm, "no more questions tonight, darling—just pop into your tub, have a nice scrub, and then a tuck in bed."

Children's questions are one of the most interesting and revealing things about them—but they must be answered with discretion.

Worth Revives Edwardian Frock for Afternoon

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Worth is reviving one of the prettiest styles of the Edwardian days in a group of black taffeta afternoon dresses that are trimmed with narrow black lace insertion. I hope you're not old enough to remember when fifty yards of lace insertion was considered a fair allotment to a single afternoon frock. Whether you are or not, you'll like the new 1934 frocks that are trimmed in this way. The modern way is to use the lace with a bit more discretion; there are not more than six yards, if that, to trim the black taffeta dress shown in our sketch.

Apart from the trimming and the crisp material, this Worth model has a demure apron tunic at the front of the skirt that gives it a personal character. The apron also serves to give to the skirt that forward movement that is growing in importance in Paris fashions all the time.

The leg o' mutton sleeves have spokes of lace insertion set in at the top and extending about five inches into the sleeves. Bands of the insertion at the front of the bodice suggest a vest of bolero movement. The collar is made of two small taffeta scarves knotted in front and tied in a bow at the back of the neck.

DANCE! DON'T RUB IT IN, GWEN! IT'S ALL I CAN DO TO WALK AT THIS TIME OF THE MONTH!

FIDDLESTICKS: YOU'RE COMING AND YOU'LL BE YOURSELF, TOO. I'LL TELL YOU HOW TO END "REGULAR" PAIN:

AND SHE DID!

Yes, the girl who once gave-in to periodic pain has found a way to snap out of it.

Even those women who have always been "knocked flat" may now go through this time in perfect comfort.

The treatment is explained here. It's simple. It's perfectly harmless. It doesn't interfere with Nature's necessary process; all it does is block the pain. And this is all you have to do:

Watch the calendar. MIDOL Just before your time, take a tablet of Midol, followed by a large glass of water. The usual pains may not start at all. But if you feel one twinge, take a second tablet.

That's all! Relief is complete, and lasts for several hours. Two tablets should see you through your worst day. Your period becomes just an incident. No need to "favor" yourself, or "keep off your feet." Keep your dates, and keep active.

Midol is not a narcotic. Don't be afraid of the speed with which it takes hold. Don't hesitate to try it, for it has helped thousands of desperate cases. Just ask the druggist for Midol—today, so you'll be prepared.

DE VALERA BALKS PROPOSAL TO END ROW IN IRELAND

Refuses to Participate in "Peace Parley."

BY HUGH CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Feb. 26.—Correspondence available today discloses that efforts have been made by Edmund Rice Fermoy, prominent lawyer, to bring about a conference between Irish leaders to try to remove the menace in the present political situation.

Cardinal MacRory agreed to preside at the conference as it was learned that the papal nuncio is prohibited by the duties of his office from participating in Irish politics.

De Valera Balks Plan.

President Eamon de Valera balked the proposal. He said it would serve no useful purpose. The president insisted an essential condition was that all participants should accept the policy approved by the people at the two general elections. If such a disposition existed the conference would be unnecessary, he said.

Gen. Owen O'Duffy, former President William T. Cosgrave and Frank MacDermot, leaders of the United Ireland party, accepted the invitation to participate in the conference.

Sean O'Kelly, vice president, sided with De Valera. William Norton, Labor leader, asked for further particulars, but in view of De Valera's decision the project was abandoned.

De Valera Faces Attack.

De Valera's attitude will be strongly attacked in forthcoming debates on the bill to ban the wearing of uniforms by such organizations as the Blueshirts of the United Ireland party. The bill is held to be an arrogation to De Valera's party of dictatorial powers. It also is urged that it is a denial of all rights to opponents who must, according to the general interpretation, accept his policy as the essence of political wisdom, utterly sacrosanct and above criticism.

Reports from the country indicate the attempt to ban the Blueshirts is proving an incentive to the organization. Its membership is increasing rapidly and financial contributions are pouring in.

Gen. O'Duffy said today that the bill is intended to outlaw the opposition party because of its danger to the Fianna Fail [government] organization. The bill empowers police to tear blue shirts from their wearers. That is freedom with a vengeance, O'Duffy said.

An Answer to Bishops.

The bill is the government's answer to the bishops who pleaded for freedom of assembly for all parties, he continued. He claimed all breaches of peace were caused by De Valera's supporters.

"Not the shirt but the man who wears it is what counts," O'Duffy said. "Our blue shirts will be worn when the Fianna Fail is only an unpleasant memory."

MacDermot, leading the Farmers' party, said the new bill is nominally designed to eliminate militarism from politics, but pointed out that it made no reference to the armed Irish republican army.

BURNED $15,000, WIDOW SAVED FROM BAY SAYS

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Mrs. Katherine Pfeniger, 57, Chicago widow who said she burned fifteen $1,000 bills in her room at a hotel here and later jumped into Elliott bay, said she was happy today. She believes she will not be followed any more now that she is rid of the money.

"My troubles are over now—I'm poor," she said at the county hospital.

Mrs. Pfeniger arrived here Saturday on the liner Santa Paula from San Francisco.

Fishermen rescued her when she leaped off a pier yesterday.

She said she has a son, Martin Baumgartner, at Fort Crockett, Tex.

Widow Killed on Crossing by Belt Freight Train

Mrs. Marie De Rosa, 48 years old, a widow, 5209 South Kenneth avenue, was killed last night by an Indiana Harbor Belt freight train at 53d street and Kilbourn avenue. Police said she apparently did not see the train approaching the crossing.

Friendly Act Costly

New York, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Irving and Merton Millen, brothers, charged with conspiracy in the holdup of the Needham Trust company, Needham, Mass., Feb. 2, in which two policemen were killed, insisted today that all their troubles resulted from a Good Samaritan act Irving did for a motorist.

The brothers were arrested yesterday as a result of the tracing of a recharged automobile storage battery. With them was Merton's 19 year old wife, Norma, daughter of the Rev. Norman Brighton, formerly pastor of an Auburndale, Mass., church. She was held as a material witness. Merton, 24, was subdued in a crowded lobby of the hotel after one shot had been fired.

In the police lineup today Irving told Acting Capt. Patrick McVeigh that several weeks ago a man known to him only casually had stalled his automobile near Irving's house. To help him, Irving said, he traded batteries with him. He said it was the battery the other man had left with him which led to the arrests here yesterday.

Father Gorman Injured in Rescue Work at Fire

The Rev. William Gorman, fire department chaplain, was the hero of a fire that wrecked three frame buildings at 616, 618, and 620 West 25th street early yesterday. Edward Howard, 30 years old, was brought down from a second floor flat at No. 618 by Father Gorman, who cut his hands in crashing through a glass door to reach the outside. Members of six other families fled to the street as firement responded to a 2-11 alarm.

ITALY, BRITAIN RENEW HUNT FOR ACCORD ON ARMS

ROME, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Premier Benito Mussolini and Capt. Anthony Eden, special British envoy, agreed today on the possibility of finding a basis for a general agreement on disarmament, an official communique announced.

The communique, issued tonight after a long conference, said: "The head of this government received the British lord privy seal, Capt. Eden, at Venezia palace this afternoon. Capt. Eden informed him [Mussolini] of conversations he [Eden] had had at Paris and Berlin.

"This information enables them to examine afresh the British and Italian memoranda.

In Accord on Aims.

"They find themselves in accord as to the object to be reached, particularly as to the possibility of finding a basis for a general agreement."

Mussolini and Eden discussed all phases of the European disarmament problem during their long conference.

The British ambassador, Sir Eric Drummond, former secretary of the league of nations, accompanied Eden to the palace. Fulvio Suvich, Italian undersecretary for foreign affairs, just home from a special visit to Budapest and Vienna, was on hand to help his chief.

Although refusing to be quoted Eden appeared very satisfied with his conversations with Mussolini.

Difference Still Exists.

It was understood that several large points of difference still exist between the Italian and British points of view, but it is thought possible Mussolini will accept the British memorandum as a basis for negotiations.

Germany has agreed to accept the British plan as a basis, with certain reservations.

It was understood in informed circles that the conference between Eden and Mussolini left the impression that the time is not yet ripe for the calling of a four power conference. There seems to be no doubt, however, that any disarmament agreement among the four powers will be referred to the general disarmament conference at Geneva.

REFUSE TO NAME LONDON STREET FOR ANNE BOLEYN

LONDON, Feb. 26.—(AP)—After some worried pondering, the London county council has rejected suggestions that a new street be named after Anne Boleyn, second wife of Henry VIII. and mother of Queen Elizabeth. The council left it to the records committee to dig out the name of some personage entirely without blemish.

It has been the council's custom to perpetuate the memory of many historic figures by adopting their names for new streets. When it was proposed thus to honor Anne Boleyn, however, Dr. Emil Davies quoted a declaration that "she appealed to the less finer part of Henry's nature, and her virtue was not of a character to deserve the respect of her own or subsequent ages."

If the name of this queen was to be put on the road of a respectable neighborhood, said Dr. Davies, the young ladies of today would be stimulated to ask who she was—"and who knows what consequences might ensue?"

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—Once again Purdue is the Western conference basketball champion. The Boilermakers defeated Wisconsin 37 to 25 tonight to take their third undisputed title in five years. This is the seventh championship, or share in a championship, which they have won since 1918 under Coach Ward Lambert. The victory, which was the ninth in ten conference games this season, brought Purdue permanent possession of the Allerton trophy, first offered in 1928 to the Big Ten basketball champions.

In the first ten minutes of play Purdue took a lead of 11 to 3. At this point the Badgers rallied and cut Purdue's lead to 17 to 12 at the half.

Purdue Steps Out.

Both teams were tense as the second half opened, and Eddy's under the basket shot provided the only points in the first five minutes of play. Lowery, Cottom, and Fisher finally broke loose with a five minute scoring spree that gave Purdue a 29 to 17 advantage with eight minutes left to play. The Boilermakers retained this 12 point lead to the end.

Purdue displayed the same balance tonight that it has all season, Ray Eddy, Norman Cottom, Dutch Fehring, Emmett Lowery, and George Fisher all sharing equally in the victory. Lowery paced the scoring with five field goals, but his shots were made possible by the effective floor work and accurate passing of the entire team.

The long range shooting of Preboski kept the game from turning into a rout. Preboski made six field goals from long range and added two free throws to take the high point honors of the evening.

INDIANA, 39; CHICAGO, 30

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—Indiana university's basketball team closed its home schedule by defeating the University of Chicago, 39 to 30, tonight.

The contest started like a walkaway for Indiana, but turned into a scoring spree in the second half. Seeking to square accounts for Indiana's 30 to 28 victory at the Midway recently, the Maroons came back in the second period, after trailing at the half, 21 to 8. Haarlow, with 13 points, and Oppenheim with 8, led Chicago in the rally, but the gap was too great to close.

Weir Leads Hoosiers.

Capt. Woody Weir led the Hoosiers with six field goals and two free throws. His shots in the early stages provided the spark that sent Indiana ahead, with Stout and Scott contributing. Stout scored ten points before giving way to Kehrt.

Indiana opened strongly after Oppenheim had given Chicago a momentary 2 to 0 lead. Indiana ran up 19 points before the Maroons scored again on Eldred's field goal.

Indiana will journey to Lafayette Saturday night for a return engagement with Purdue and will close its card against Michigan at Ann Arbor Monday.

N. U., 29; MICHIGAN, 25

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—The Northwestern university basketball team stood off Michigan's closing rally here tonight to win, 29 to 25, after having led at the half, 18 to 6.

In the last half of the first period the Purple scored 12 points while holding Michigan to one free throw.

Michigan scored on five free throws out of 10 attempts, while Northwestern made good on 11 out of 14. The Wolverines outscored the Purple from the floor, 10 goals to 9.

Lyle Fisher of Northwestern shot three field goals and made six free throws out of seven tries. Dick Joslin led the Wolverines, dropping in three field goals and a free throw.

THOUSANDS OF SPORTS WORLD MOURN McGRAW

Hold Funeral for Baseball Leader Tomorrow.

New York, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The body of John J. McGraw lay in state tonight in the living room of his Pelham Manor home where tomorrow some of the thousands of baseball fans who followed his career as leader of the New York Giants for 30 years will be allowed to say a last farewell.

So many requests came to Mrs. McGraw that the public be admitted to pay its last respects she decided to throw the McGraw home open to them all day tomorrow.

Funeral to Be Wednesday.

In the meantime final plans for the funeral Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at St. Patrick's cathedral were completed and a list of more than sixty personages of baseball, the stage, and New York official life named as honorary pallbearers.

The solemn requiem high mass will be celebrated by the Rev. Vincent De Paul Mulry, pastor of the Pelham Manor church, where McGraw worshiped for the last few years, and the full choir of St. Patrick's will chant the responses.

All Clubs Represented.

Most of those named as honorary pallbearers were long-time friends of the dead baseball leader, among them representatives of all the National league clubs, George M. Cohan, Sam Harris, and De Wolff Hopper of the stage and the Lambs club, of which McGraw was a member; John MacCormack, the Irish tenor; Edward P. Mulrooney, former New York city police commissioner and in other days in charge of the police detail at the Polo grounds; Supreme court justices, city officials, and business men.

John A. Heydler, president of the National league and a McGraw associate during most of his baseball days, had left for Bermuda before McGraw's death and was unable to get a boat and return in time for the funeral. Harvey Traband, league secretary, will be his representative at the services.

Terry Leaves Camp.

William H. Terry, who succeeded McGraw as manager of the Giants in 1932, is on his way north from the Giants' training camp at Miami Beach, Fla. Mourning with him as the Giants' official family will be President Charles A. Stoneham, Treasurer Leo J. Bondy, and Assistant Secretary Edward T. Brannick, who had been associated with McGraw during his full 30 years with the club and looked on the fiery former manager as a father.

Because of a heavy snow storm there were few callers at the McGraw home, but messages and telephone calls of condolence continued to pour in from all over the world.

Leaders Pay Tribute.

Tributes to McGraw continued to come from baseball leaders, including those who disagreed bitterly with him many times during his stormy career, yet never lost their respect for him as a man.

BUTLER TAKES VALLEY TITLE BY DEFEATING DRAKE

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—Butler university clinched its second consecutive Missouri Valley conference basketball championship here tonight by defeating Drake university, 39 to 27. Butler led, 21 to 20, at the half, and Drake tied the score as the second period began. Baskets by Batts and Demmary gave Butler a fresh advantage and Drake never again caught up. Butler has lost only once in the Valley conference this season—to Creighton—and has only Saturday's game with Washington university at St. Louis remaining.

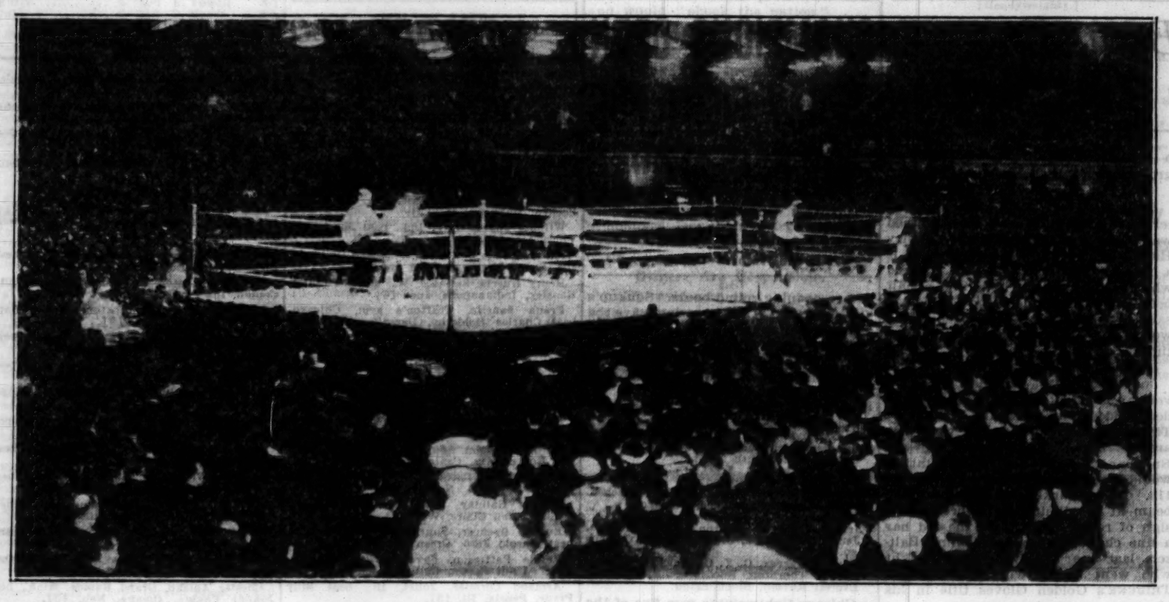
STOUT PUNCHERS MOVE STEP NEARER TO GOLDEN GLOVES



Battling in two rings keeps crowd of 7,500 in uproar last night at Chicago Stadium as first bouts in Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions are contested. Tonight the 147, 160, 175 pound, and heavyweight division boxers will clash in approximately 125 bouts.

Find Cunningham Ran Record Race in Faster Time

New York, Feb. 26.—[Special.]—Glenn Cunningham of Kansas ran his record breaking 1,500 meter race on Saturday even faster than was first supposed. This fact came to light today when Daniel J. Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the A. A. U., received the signed application blank for a new world's mark. The time announced at the Garden on the occasion of the national championships was 3:52.3. But the official timers caught the Kansan one-tenth of a second faster in 3:52.2. This last figure is the one that appeared on the record blank and will be the one that will receive recognition as a record.

PONZI SETS HIGH RUN MARK OF 111 TO BEAT RUDOLPH

New York, Feb. 26.—(AP)—Andrew Ponzi of Philadelphia, challenger for the world's pocket billiard championship now held by Erwin Rudolph of Cleveland, set a new record for a challenge match high run tonight when he defeated the title holder, 118 to 59, in the second block of the 750 point match. Ponzi completed the block with an unfinished run of 111 in the sixth inning. The previous record was 101, made twice by Ralph Greenleaf in defending the title in challenge matches.

Ponzi's brilliant performance tonight, after he had won the opening block, 137 to 82, in ten innings, gave him a lead of 255 to 141. Four more blocks remain to be played.

CARNERA TAKES HIS NO. 17'S FOR BALLROOM TRIP

And What Do You Think? He's a Good Dancer!

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., Feb. 26.—Primo Carnera of Italy, who defends his world heavyweight title Wednesday night against Tommy Loughran of Philadelphia, has an accomplishment of which he had not been suspected. He is a dancer. No, not a dancer in the squared circle like his coming opponent, but a ballroom dancer. Honestly.

This accomplishment, or weakness, was exposed last night when Primo attended a gathering of sports writers assembled from all sections of the country for a reunion and handshaking at the Palm Island club. Seated at a table when the orchestra began to play dance music, De Preem arose with a smile, bowed to the wife of a newspaper writer who once graced the stage, and ambled with her to the waxed floor.

The No. 17's Surprise.

What Primo did with his feet, currently reported as No. 17 in size, was a surprise to the onlookers. Feinting for an opening into the throng which made way for him Primo guided his partner easily and not ungracefully. His footwork was excellent. Likewise he did no roughing in the clinches. He failed to step on his partner's feet as he has been accused of doing to sparring partners when they stung him with blows. At the end of the bout the champion showed no ill effects from his effort. Neither did his surprised dancing companion.

Now this may seem a strange way for a pugilist to keep in training. We had been told he retired every night at 10 o'clock. It was 10:30 when he glided over the boards. He was gone by 11 o'clock. If you're surprised, remember that this is the strangest fight, in nearly all respects, in heavyweight annals. From the Carnera camp came the explanation that the big fellow has been lonely down here, felt the need of companionship, and so welcomed the opportunity to dance. To our great relief we were not also informed that Primo is just a big good natured boy and good to his folks.

Dancing Seems to Help.

In his workout today at Gore's indoor gymnasium, transferred from the Pier quarters because of rain, the Italian was more active than usual. Possibly one just imagined his footwork was better from his dancing of the evening before. He went three fast rounds with Johnny Miler, who has been working with him during most of his stay here, and they were mixing it in the fourth when Primo halted the bout. Despite headgear, Miler had a cut eye. It was washed, gloves taken off and the round concluded in shadow boxing.

At the conclusion of his work Carnera's weight was announced 258½ pounds, at which he expects to fight. Therefore his work tomorrow will be only light exercises to which the public will be admitted if it cares to pay 50 cents.

Hope for $75,000 Gate.

Because of the rain not more than 200 attended today's exhibition. This weather also retarded the ticket sale. According to the Garden promoters, there is now $30,000 in the till. They still hope for a $75,000 gate.

In the seating arrangements there are 2,000 reservations at $20 each, including tax. These include the first 12 rows behind the press benches. These seats were not advertised. Then come $11 seats for 18 more rows. Then 30 rows of $5.50 seats, and finally the outer fringe of $2.20 locations. To prevent stampede of bleacherites into the more choice sections, as happened at the Rosenbloom-Knight bout, a barricade of barbed wire has been placed. Extra guards also will be stationed.

Judges Are Named.

With the naming of Roy Latham and Red McLauchan, local men, as judges, officials are complete. Leo Shea previously has been named referee. The state boxing commission stood pat on its mandate no outside arbiters could serve, despite plea of the Carnera entourage.

Manager Joe Smith came down from the Loughran camp and reported the challenger weighing 183 pounds.

BY FRENCH LANE.

A determined army of amateur boxers battled for more than five hours at the Chicago Stadium last night at the opening of THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions.

It was well after midnight when a truce was declared until 7 o'clock tonight. More than half of the 300 warriors here from eight states, awaiting the call to action, engaged in the fighting.

These warriors represented 39 teams which were striving for honors. A crowd of 7,500 gathered in the Stadium and was thrilled by the spectacle of two slashing bouts going on at the same time in two rings.

Sixteen novice bouts were sandwiched into the program. They also provided lots of fireworks. The finals in the novice division will be included in tonight's big program.

Cleveland Wins Four.

Chicago boxers were hardly able to do more than hold their own in the furious fighting which engaged flyweights, bantamweights, featherweights and lightweights.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer team made the finest showing in the first round of fighting. Four Cleveland boys won their fights in as many divisions. They were Jesse Levels, flyweight; Troy Bellini, bantamweight; Roy Sharkey, featherweight, and Frank Bojack, lightweight. Levels and Bellini won on knockouts.

Two Chicago boys who stood out were Irving Goldstein of the Jewish Youth Organization and Al Soukup of the Catholic Youth Organization. Both are featherweights. So, one or the other will be eliminated before the great festival ends.

Heavier Boys Battle Tonight.

There will be another five hour session of fighting tonight, when the heavier boys from the 39 teams, the welterweights, middleweights, lightweights and heavyweights, will begin to sail into one another and toss leather at each other's chins.

Should the out of town boys win tonight with the same regularity they did last night Chicago will not have many representatives on THE TRIBUNE'S team which fights New York at Madison Square Garden March 28.

Eleven Out of Town Winners.

The flyweights fought through all their first round bouts and when the smoke of the battle had settled the out of town boys had won eleven of the eighteen scraps.

These first round winners in the flyweight class were:

William Joyce—Gary.
Wayne Blake—Fort Wayne.
Jesse Levels—Cleveland.
Kenneth Bell—Quincy.
John Brown—C. Y. O., Chicago.
Eugene Spencer—South Chicago, Y. M. C. A.
Everett Haliday—Iowa City.
Barry Gillett—Milwaukee.
Frank Sanello—Trafton's gym.
Harold Wilhelm—South Bend, Ind.
Joe Nadeau—Detroit.
Patsy Urso—Grand Rapids.
Jesse Robinson—C. Y. O., Chicago.
Gerald Mathieu—C. Y. O., Chicago.
Verdie Patterson—C. Y. O., Chicago.
Marty Beal—C. Y. O., Chicago.
Henry Huerta—Streator.
Armand Cormier—Joliet.

Matthys, Belini Show Well.

In the first round among the bantamweights Chicago boys were able to win only three of the sixteen scraps. Knockouts came in many of these struggles and at the end of the session most of those in the crowd were of the opinion that Walter Matthys of Joliet and Troy Belini of Cleveland had made the better showing.

The first round bantamweight winners were:

Ray Harris, South Bend.
Bert Ellis, Quincy.
Sam Guidara, Chicago [unattached].
Bobby Blake, Lafayette.
John Fairchild, Chicago [unattached].
Elmer Selby, Peoria.
Tommy Barry, Springfield.
Joe Sworek, Detroit.
Troy Belini, Cleveland.
Dick Hurst, Fort Wayne.
Frank Cvitak, Omaha.
Paul Stedina, Gary.
Joe Minnecci, C. Y. O., Chicago.
Walter Matthys, Joliet.
John Krukenmeier, Indianapolis.
Sam Calle, Streator.

SAVOLDI AWAITS GETZ'S OPINION ON FAVORITE HOLD

Other Members of Board O. K. Drop Kick.

Joe Savoldi's request for permission to use his drop kick in a contemplated wrestling match with Jim Londos at the Chicago Stadium next month was held in abeyance yesterday by the Illinois athletic commission.

Chairman Joe Triner and Commissioner Packey McFarland announced that they were not opposed to Savoldi's pet hold, but inasmuch as the other commission member, George Getz, had recommended its banishment they would not pass on the matter without consulting him.

Getz expected to return from a Florida vacation in time to attend the meeting, but his train was late. The commission said a decision would be rendered on the case today.

Roger Bernard, Flint, Mich.; Battling Gizzy, Pittsburgh, and Maxie Strub, Erie, Pa., have received offers to oppose Frank Sigilio, local lightweight, in the main event at Cicero stadium on March 16. . . . In the event that Mickey Joy refuses to box Johnny Stroppa in a feature match at Marigold Gardens next Monday Gene Higgins may be substituted. . . . Jackie Ausborn, welterweight, has signed to replace Izzy Lubansky against Iowa Joe Rivers at Eau Claire, Wis., March 9. . . . Lubansky will be out of action for two weeks because of an injured hand.

The state boxing commission yesterday refused to lift the suspension of Johnny Fitzpatrick, featherweight, and Merril [Red] Tonn, heavyweight. . . . Snubs Ganoway, Peoria fighter, has been suspended for 90 days.

Johnny Meyers, former middleweight champion, and Fred Kohler will finish training today for their wrestling bout tomorrow at Rainbo Fronton. Franz Hart and Alex Kasaboski will meet in a preliminary. Another will bring together Zack Malkov, north side light heavyweight, and George Jonason.

The Lincoln Park post of the American Legion will sponsor an amateur boxing show at Edward Hines hospital on March 5. St. Alphonsus boxers will compete. F. M.

Baby Ruths, Woodstock to Clash Tonight

The second and final international amateur hocky game between the Woodstock team from Canada and the Baby Ruths will be played at the Coliseum tonight.

After winning every game in which they participated during the last two months, the Baby Ruths ran into a snag Sunday, losing the first game of the series to Woodstock, 2 to 1. With the series to be decided on the total goal basis, the Baby Ruths must score two goals more than the Canadians to come out on top.

The Chicago team will start with either Clem Poulin or Roy Halvorsen at goal, with the defense duties falling on the shoulders of Lampsa, Beda, La Prairie, and Spreitzer. The three forward lines of Deacon, Samec, Saxburg; Latva, Manderfield, Ouellette; and Nichols, Wiljanen, Arnold will alternate on the ice.

Lineups:

Lampsa	R. D.	H. Moore
Spreitzer	L. D.	Collins

REV. M'GRATH TO ADDRESS ALUMNI OF DARTMOUTH

Dartmouth alumni of Chicago will be luncheon hosts tomorrow to one of their alma mater's football and baseball heroes, the Rev. Owen A. McGrath, C. S. P., who is preaching the Paulist mission for nonCatholics at 8 o'clock nightly this week at Old St. Mary's, Ninth street and Wabash avenue. The luncheon, at which Father McGrath will be the guest speaker, will be held at 12:15 o'clock in Mandel's green room, State and Madison streets.

Goldenberg Meets Oleson Tonight at Arcadia Gardens

Ole Oleson of Milwaukee and Buckets Goldenberg, full back on the Green Bay Packers football team, will meet in the main bout of a wrestling show tonight at the Arcadia Gardens, 4444 Broadway. They met once before here. Oleson winning the decision.

In previous matches here Oleson has needed little more than his face lock for an offense, since he can clamp on the hold almost at will. Goldenberg, however, has changed his tactics, which formerly consisted mainly of flying tackles. He has mastered the toe hold made famous by the late Frank Gotch, and also has a few other offensive weapons to make for a versatile attack.

Promoter Doc Krone has two added matches. One is Count Zarynoff of Ukrainia, who will step half an hour or less with Dr. Stan Lurik. Clem Savoldi, welterweight brother of Joe, the heavyweight, will make his Chicago debut in another match on the card, his opponent being Al Woznica. Clem claims the welterweight championship of Indiana.

The semi-windup pits George Mack, Chicago against Jack Zeravitch. Mack has won every match here of the winter season.

Tonight's card:

Ole Oleson vs. Buckets Goldenberg, one fall, hour and a half time limit.
George Mack vs. Jack Zeravitch, one fall, half an hour time limit.
Clem Savoldi, Indiana welterweight champion, vs. Al Woznica.
John Gucek vs. Charlie Peterson.
Rudy Hoffman vs. Chuck Wuthrich.
Count Zarynoff vs. Stanislaus Lurik, added event, one fall, half hour limit.

Golden Gloves Bouts End Son's Long Hunt for Dad

There was a happy reunion in the residence of Henry Johnson Sr. of 3206 North Walton avenue last night despite his son's defeat by Al Soukop in the Golden Gloves bouts at the Stadium.

Henry Jr., who is 28 years old, left his home in Vetlanda, Sweden, six years ago for America seeking his dad, whom he hadn't seen since 1923.

The fighter had no luck until the senior Johnson happened to read an item in an edition of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE with the information that his son was the featherweight representative on the Centralia Sentinel's team. It took him no time at all to get in touch with Junior.

"I don't feel so bad about losing now," said Henry. "I've found my dad after 11 long years."

Max Marek, 1933 international Golden Gloves light heavyweight title holder who is competing this year as a heavyweight from Notre Dame, seconded Anthony [Bud] Marcy, featherweight, and Hal Gooden, lightweight, in their matches. Marcy and Gooden also are Notre Dame students. Marek will fight tonight.

The Omaha contingent of Golden Gloves boxers is confident that its heavyweight, Bill Lambrecht, will prove a real threat in the Tournament of Champions. Wild Bill weighs 205 pounds and has never lost a battle. He is a freshman football tackle at Creighton university and holds in addition to the World-Herald Golden Gloves crown the Nebraska National Guard heavyweight title.

Al Copland and Young Otto, coaches of the New York Golden Glove team, were interested spectators at last night's fights. The pair will watch the fighting this week and will then return to Gotham to report on the boys who will make up the Chicago team.

Everett Haliday, Iowa City's bantamweight, hails from Muscatine, Ia., and is the father of a six months' old son. He boxes for the fun he gets out of the sport. His teammates report that he is a chesty individual who carries a chip on his shoulder and dares one and all to knock it off.

Two former University of Illinois students are members of the Danville outfit. Joe Puerta, 126 pounder, was the Big Ten wrestling champ a year ago and has just taken up boxing. The other Illini on the squad is Chris Chibucos, 135 pounder.

King Wyatt, who was an alternate on the Chicago team last year, was back with the Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette squad. Wyatt is a welterweight. He had three extremely hard fights this year in the Fort Wayne tournament and is a much improved fighter. He is only 18 years old.

Cooney Tucker of the Fort Wayne team is making his fourth trip to the Tournament of Champions. He was barred last year when his heart acted up a bit when the medics looked him over. Tucker is a light heavyweight.

Dwight Sutton, lightweight, and Dick Hurst, bantamweight, were the other veterans of the Chicago tournament who came back from Fort Wayne this year.

Clyde Pedersen, Omaha middleweight, is a real dirt farmer. He specializes at hog raising and has won national honors in 4-H club contests with his prize hogs.

Leo Cain, light heavyweight on the Iowa City team, has promised Ossie Solem, Iowa football coach, that he will bring back a Golden Gloves emblem. Leo was a member of the Hawkeye freshman squad last fall and has his eye set on a regular position with the varsity next season.

Sock Kurtz, Purdue athlete, is having as much trouble landing a Golden Gloves heavyweight championship as he experienced in earning a varsity berth on the Boilermaker football team. During his three years of eligibility at Purdue, Kurtz was substitute full back for Alex Yunevich, Roy Horstmann and Fred Hecker. Each year there was one player a jump or so ahead of Sock. Kurtz is ready to make his third attempt to win a Golden Gloves title. Twice he has been eliminated on close decisions.

Lafayette is represented by everything from Purdue students to fish peddlers. Bobby Blake, bantamweight who won two fights in the flyweight class last year, helps handle a wholesale fish store in Delphi. Everett Haley is a farm hand, Earl Douglas a "printers' devil," Henry Boze a grocery clerk, Dick Noonan a butcher.

First to appear at the Stadium yesterday to weigh in and be examined was Charles Yancey of the Quincy Herald-Whig team. Yancey, who is a lightweight, arrived at 12:30. Asked why he appeared an hour and a half before the scheduled time, Charley said: "The early bird catches the worm and I might catch some victims."

Joey Rozina, 135 pounder, who is a veteran candidate for a diamond studded Golden Glove, led the Davenport Times' band of four to the west side arena. Rozina wasn't sure Howard Burkhardt, flyweight representative, would make the required poundage of 113. When Burkhardt just tipped the beam at the limit Rozina breathed a sigh of relief. He thinks the lad has a fine chance to replace Johnny Baltzer, last year's Davenport flyweight who went on to win THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's Golden Gloves title in his class.

Two former amateur champions, Mike Dudak and Johnny Zale, are coaching the 1934 Gary troupe. Included among last night's Gary contestants was Paul Stedina, who is making his fourth attempt at a Golden Glove. Stedina, who is a bantamweight, went to the semi-finals in 1931. He was whipped by Nick Scialaba, member of the championship squad which defeated a team from France five bouts to three.

The scales eliminated Lefty Schulein, Fort Wayne featherweight, from competition in the Tournament of Champions. Schulein came in at 129½ pounds, two and a half over the stipulated weight. When Lefty refused to reduce he was disqualified by the A. A. U. clerks.

Five out of town teams were weakened for team championship honors when each reported with one member under the quota of eight. Jess Roces, flyweight, did not make the trip with the unattached Notre Dame squad because of a heart murmur. Other boxers unable to fight were James Verse, Omaha lightweight; Russell Cummings, Streator featherweight; John Wigfall, Vincennes bantamweight and John Marganti, Michigan City, 118 pounder.

John Logan, C. Y. O. heavyweight champion, who automatically qualified for the Stadium bouts, put in an early appearance on the west side to lend moral support to his teammates. Logan doesn't battle until tonight.

The welterweights, middleweights, light heavyweights, and heavyweights are requested to report this afternoon at the Stadium between 2 and 6 o'clock to weigh in and be examined for their matches tonight. Drawing will be by lot at 6 p. m. The first contests in two rings will start an hour later. Survivors in all eight weight classes must report at the west side arena tomorrow afternoon for another physical examination. None will be required to weigh in tomorrow.

Patsy Wins a Pair.

Patsy Urso, an apprentice printer from Grand Rapids who is a flyweight, was one of the big heroes. He encountered two powerful Chicago boys in his first two encounters. In the first one he whipped Henry Fuscaldo, the C. Y. O. champion. Three hours later he came back and outpunched Frank Sanello, from Trafton's gym.

The printer's devil toted a terrific right hand punch. He was slow in getting it into action, but swung it with such regularity in the closing rounds of his bouts he was far ahead when the final bell tapped.

Caserio, Marek Tonight.

Fred Caserio and Max Marek, both former Golden Gloves champions will do some fighting tonight. Marek is here with the unattached athletes from Notre Dame and will fight in the heavyweight division. Caserio represents Trafton's gym and again will endeavor to capture the middleweight title.

RACE ACCIDENT TOLL REACHES 11; ANOTHER IS DYING

ROSARIO, Argentina, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The 11th victim of the accident near the finish line of the Gran Premio Nacional automobile race yesterday died today. Attempting to avoid an intoxicated spectator who wandered on the course, Ernesto Blanco swerved his car and drove into the crowd.

Among the dead were William Lewis, a British employe of an American packing concern, and Gerardo Evilla, a laborer, his wife and two children. Another daughter of Evilla is expected to die from her injuries.

The race was over a 924 mile course and was won by Emilio Karstulovic, a Chilean.

ILLINOIS BEATS IOWA

Champaign, Ill., Feb 26.—[Special.]—Illinois protected a small advantage over Iowa in the closing minutes of their basketball game tonight to win, 35 to 31. With his team leading by one point, Jack Beynon of Illinois scored field goal. Then Huddie Hellmich sank a free throw as the game ended.

The Hawkeyes failed to make a field goal in the first twelve minutes of the opening half. But with Illinois ahead 13 to 1, Iowa piled up 12 points in five minutes. Just before the half ended, Ben Selzer sank his second long shot to tie the count, 15-15.

Neither team could build up more than a three point lead at any time in the second half and the score was tied three times. Iowa jumped away to a four point lead as play was renewed after the intermission, but the Illini came back to tie the count at 21-21 and again at 25-25. They were never headed after that.

Froschauer Leads Scoring.

Frank Froschauer, Illinois' leading scorer in the Big Ten race, led the victors with five baskets and three free throws. Roy Guttschow counted nine points for Iowa. Howard Bastian and Ben Selzer each made four baskets. It was the latter's long goals in the second half that kept the losers in the running.

Grim made four personal fouls in seventeen minutes and was replaced by Ivan Blackmer.

Illinois sank nine out of eleven free throws.

SCHMIDT NAMED AS PROSPECT FOR OHIO STATE JOB

Columbus, O., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—Francis Schmidt, coach at Texas Christian university, may be Ohio State's next coach, it was reported today. Schmidt, former Nebraska athlete, coached football and basketball at Texas Christian.

Clark Shaughnessy of the University of Chicago and Noble Kizer of Purdue have refused offers to coach the Buckeyes. Schmidt's eleven last fall won eight games, lost two, and tied one. Ohio State officials refused to deny or confirm the report that Schmidt has been selected to succeed Sam Willaman, who resigned to coach at Western Reserve.

HAWKS TO MEET BRUINS TONIGHT ON BOSTON ICE

Chicago Team Hopes to Catch Red Wings.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 26.—[Special.]—The Chicago Blackhawks arrived here today to battle the Boston Bruins whom they are scheduled to meet for the last time this season tomorrow night.

Neither a victory or a defeat means a thing to the Bruins who are definitely out so far as the playoffs are concerned. The Blackhawks, however, still have a chance of catching the first place Detroit Red Wings, who are two and a half games ahead of both the Rangers and Hawks with but seven games remaining to be played. The Rangers and Hawks each have eight games left on their schedule.

While the Blackhawks are battling the Bruins, a game which the Hawks are confident of winning, the Rangers will be engaging the Red Wings at Detroit. A victory for the world champions will tighten the United States division race considerably and make the scheduled encounter of the Rangers and the Blackhawks Thursday night in Chicago, one of the outstanding hocky games of the season.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

AL SIMMONS, before going to a movie, usually calls up the theater and asks the exact time the feature picture starts. When this isn't convenient and he walks in on a partly filled plot he closes his eyes and plugs his ears until he can retreat to the foyer, where he asks to be summoned when the new reel starts. . . . Bud Tinning, Cub pitcher, who took off twenty pounds at Hot Springs, Ark., is in Los Angeles, and wears blinders every time he passes a delicatessen, bakery, or meat display. . . . Tug Wilson, Northwestern athletic director, is president of the Evanston Rotary club and Kildeer Golf club.

Vern Landmeier, Illinois distance runner, works his way through school by rising at 4 o'clock in the morning to drive a milk wagon. . . . The University of Wisconsin will make more money off boxing this winter than off basketball. . . . The Badger fighters would have been in Golden Gloves, along with Notre Dame, Illinois, Purdue, Iowa, and Northwestern, had it not been for a conflict in tournament dates. . . . "He went social on us," is the way Frank Hill, Northwestern track coach, characterizes an athlete who becomes ineligible. . . . Cal Hubbard, tackle on the Green Bay Packers, umpires baseball games in the International league during the summer. . . .

Lou Gehrig, the Yankees' slugging first baseman, submits this: "If the Yankees meet the Giants in the 1934 world series we will beat them. We do not fear Hubbell. Washington is the club we must beat to win the pennant, and I think we will do it." . . . Five varsity football players—Sim, Reinsner, Palamountain, Lewis, and Hillman—are members of the Stanford rugby team. . . . Forty-three men in the University of Chicago's athletic history have won six or more varsity letters. . . . Clarence Herschberger, captain of the 1897 football team, is credited with the most—13. . . . He won four in football, four in baseball, and five in track. . . . Herschberger was the west's first player to make Walter Camp's All-American. . . . He joined the Maroon eleven in 1894, but, at his parents' request, did not play in 1895. . . . He hunted instead, and in doing so shot himself in the hand, whereupon his parents approved his playing three more years. . . .

When the United States Polo association issued its last ratings and placed Elmer J. Boeseke Jr. of California and Cecil Smith of Texas alongside Tommy Hitchcock at 10 goals, it was the first time in the game's history that a player from west of the Hudson was rated at 10 and the first time since 1928 that the United States has had more than one 10 goal player. . . . A young baseball reporter on the Pacific coast unloaded himself of a prediction that Walter McCredie, manager of the Portland team, will be one of the best judges of baseball talent in the league one of these days. . . . [Editor's note—McCredie sent Dave Bancroft, Roger Peckinpaugh, and Mickey Cochrane to the big leagues.] . . .

Michigan track coaches doubt if Willis Ward again will equal the high jump mark, 6 feet 7⅛ inches, he made in the national intercollegiates in 1932. . . . They attribute his failure to clear more than 6 feet 4 last year to his competition in too many events—the 100 yard dash, high hurdles, and broad jump, as well as the high jump. . . . The gentleman from the Carnegie Foundation who charged that Notre Dame and Southern California operate their football teams for profit possibly figures that Stanford, Yale, Michigan, Nebraska, and the other big timers arrange schedules that will discourage off campus folks from attending. . . . The Bears had five wives with the players on the far west trip, and there wasn't a single hair pulling contest. . . .

Ten years ago today—Pancho Villa, world's 112 pound champion, and Bud Taylor were signed to go ten rounds at Milwaukee. . . . Ed Strangler Lewis pinned Stanislaus Zbyszko two out of three falls. . . . Nick Crosby of

CHARLIE GRIMM TELLS PLANS FOR A WINNING TEAM

Cub Manager Leads Squad West Thursday.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Mr. Charles Grimm, manager of the Cubs, came to town yesterday and went to work by talking baseball. Being a modest young man and having learned by experience that baseball predictions frequently flop, the north side leader didn't claim a pennant for the team he is leading westward next Thursday evening. Grimm merely declared that if this, that, or the other thing worked out as expected the Cubs will be winning a lot of ball games the coming summer.

Mr. Grimm also had other announcements. He's going to let Chuck Klein, the erstwhile Philly clouter, play center field if Babe Herman proves good enough to hang onto the right field job. He believes that when the scramble for jobs is over Woody English will be the third baseman. And the manager, having shaken off his infirmities of last season, intends to play first base unless Dolph Camilli shows he's the better man of the pair.

Considers Team Improved.

Taking the team as a whole, Grimm reckons it to be considerably stronger than the squad he took to the Catalina island training camp a year ago. It is better fixed in the way of reserve strength. There is more speed, although this remains a weakness. There should be better hitting strength if only because of the presence of Klein. The catching remains weak unless Gabby Hartnett can be kept in there daily, but Grimm thinks he'll have ample pitching even if the new kids don't produce.

"We had great pitching last summer, better than we had expected," he declared. "But that hitting was enough to drive a manager to the river. Look back and total up the low score games Warneke lost simply because we didn't come through with a base hit in the right spot. The other pitchers had the same thing to complain about. If Babe Herman hits as he should and Klein maintains his usual pace that weakness will almost be erased."

Klein to Bat Fourth.

It is Grimm's plan to arrange his batting order in such way as to reserve the fourth [cleanup notch] for Klein, who swung third while a Philly. Klein not only should hit, but is fast enough to dodge a good percentage of double plays. Cuyler, if used regularly, will bat third as in the past. The Babe, if a regular, will swing fifth. Riggs Stephenson will be in that spot if he's a regular.

There'll be five outfielders in camp struggling for jobs and all five will be retained unless a good trade should suddenly pop up. If Babe Herman plays right and Klein center, the left field berth will be a matter between Cuyler and Stephenson. If Herman falls down Klein will be in right, Cuyler in center, and Stephenson in left. These plans make no allowance for the possibility that George Stainback, purchased from Los Angeles, might develop into a whizz. Stainback can play anywhere in the outfield, so will be a source of worry for all the fly chasers except Klein.

Rumor of Dissension Quieted.

The use of English at third, or even at short, will set at rest the last season stories that the sprightly infielder was being kept on the bench because of differences with the management. English's absence, especially after Stanley Hack was injured, gave strength to these rumors. Nobody wanted to believe English actually was the victim of a back injury. However, he was under treatment for weeks. He talked with Grimm yesterday and declared he felt as if he had fully recovered. English, however, will have to keep hustling to discourage Hack from getting a firm grasp on the hot corner.

Grimm thinks his alleged lumbago of last season has been eliminated by the correction of misplaced vertebrae. It didn't come back despite strenuous work on his farm during the winter. He drove a tractor, pushed a plow, and made a lot of Grimm's domestic sausage which he admits is the best what gives, as the Germans say.

As soon as the island camp is reached Grimm will start his charges on a program of one lengthy workout per day. Camp games will be played after the boys have had about three days for limbering up.

GEORGE ENGEL IS STOPPED IN 4TH BY GENE HIGGINS

Gene Higgins scored a technical knockout over George Engel in the fourth of a scheduled eight round windup bout at the Marigold Gardens last night. They fought at the welterweight limit.

Jackie Ausborn, Birmingham, Ala., welterweight, floored Mickey O'Shea for an 8 count in the second round of their five round secondary feature bout, and went on to win the decision. The match was a return meeting between the pair, O'Shea having won the first bout.

Jimmy Cummings registered a technical knockout over Kid Norfolk in the second round, and Mickey Misko won a four round decision from Henry Hamburg.

Six Members of Pirates Leave for Training Camp

Benswanger, Manager Gibson, and Coach Wagner departed on the Overland Limited from the Northwestern station last night for their spring training camp at Paso Robles. The athletes in the early squad were Pitchers Bill Swift, Bill Harris, Leon Chagnon, Ralph Birkhofer, and Harold Smith, and Catcher Tom Padden. Pitchers Fred Lucas and Heine Meine will join the party this morning at Omaha.

White Sox Get Down to Work on First Day

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., Feb. 26.—The first formal baseball practice of the Chicago White Sox today was something more than the usual hither and thither scamper. Manager Lew Fonseca, a more methodical man than in his days as a neophyte skipper, started right out with a detailed plan of action and adhered to it strictly. There was nothing of the old merry-go-round technique in which the athletes merely trot about in an effort to overcome the tendency to huff and puff.

Boss Lew asked to have his young pitchers sent forth a week in advance of the main squad in the hope that he might be able to separate the pitchers who pitch from the ones who simply throw by the time the regulars arrive next Saturday.

They Look at Movies.

When the outfit assembled Fonseca took a position near the pitcher's mound and for three hours did nothing but watch rookies stand improperly on the rubber, fail to follow through with their deliveries, and take their eyes off the plate while winding up. After each young man had made his little quota of mistakes he was asked to visit the Fonseca movie projection room at the hotel and see slow motion pictures of great pitchers not making mistakes of the type discussed at the workout.

When the young men were not in the hands of their manager Coach Jimmy Austin took them in hand. Jimmy is an expert in the art of knocking fungoes just a few inches beyond the range of the gents seeking to catch the baseball. The boys try very hard, and thus do much running without realizing it.

Four Out Ahead of Time.

Among those who worked out today were four athletes who were not invited to be present a the first seven sessions, but who were none the less welcome. We refer to Aloysius Simmons, Mule Haas, James Dykes and Milt Bocek.

Simmons was on the field a half hour ahead of the practice call and amazed many present by doing eight fast turns around the rim of the spacious ball park. Haas worked longer than any athlete present and Dykes, with the assistance of Coach Austin, put on an infield demonstration which belied the 36½ year existence of the exuberant little man from Oak Lane, Oakmont, Upper Darby, Pa. [This is just one address, and even so, had to be shortened a bit to fit on the roster, Mr. Dykes explains.]

Bocek worked hard slugging flies, but didn't have any chance to engage in his specialty, which is batting.

Babe Ruth Couldn't Do It.

Bocek, an earnest lad from Cicero, played in 11 games for the Sox in the closing weeks of last season and batted .364, his efforts including a homer in the Municipal stadium at Cleveland. Babe Ruth was unable to make a homer in the Cleveland stadium in the year and a half the Indians played there, but Bocek did it in his only game on the premises. Furthermore, Bocek will remain one up on the Babe through the ages, for the Indians are going back to League park.

The Fonseca movies, now enjoying the official sponsorship of the American league, are to play an important part in the spring training.

The Sox manager has collected a wide range of highly interesting and instructive shots. He is a smart player, indeed, who can't learn much from Lew's films.

Racing Report Evades Issue, Senator Says

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Joseph A. Reilly's report to the New York state senate as secretary of the state racing commission was tabled for further study by motion of Senator John J. Dunnigan, New York Democrat tonight. Dunnigan described the report as "evasive, not specific and ridiculous."

The racing secretary offered the report in compliance with a demand by Dunnigan and the New York senate last week. At that time the senate called for a report on the commission's work, particularly with regard to reports of doping and sponging of horses, irregular starts and other practices. Dunnigan said evidence he had concerned some prominent men and would "shock the nation."

Says Doping Is Hard to Prove.

In reply Reilly declared that "while there may have been rumors" concerning the use of narcotics at tracks, "it is not easy to prove," or reasonable to suppose that such practices would have escaped the detection by the federal narcotics bureau.

He said the commission had undertaken one prosecution in Nassau county and three in Westchester county in connection with alleged use of sponges. Dunnigan charged sponges were put in horses' noses to slow them down.

Owners Are Responsible.

"Any evidence that a horse has been tampered with is immediately acted upon," the report said. Reilly said the commission works with the Jocky club to fight misconduct with disciplinary action. "The responsibility is directly upon horse owners," he asserted and they are threatened with having their horses barred from tracks.

FOXX AND MACK TO TALK SALARY TERMS AT CAMP

Slugger Gets Bid from Wrestling Promoter.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Jimmy Foxx has a date to talk salary terms with Connie Mack Thursday in Fort Myers, the Florida training camp of the Athletics. Foxx, who led both leaues in home run hitting last year, has been asked to take a reduction to $11,000.

If the Athletics refuse to give him a better deal, he says he will consider a number of offers in other lines of business. One of these is a $10,000 offer to become director of a camp. Another is a proposition to turn professional wrestler at $30,000 a year for three years.

Believes He's Worth More.

"I haven't done any wrestling in some time," admitted Foxx, "and I haven't even replied to this offer, sent to me by a Philadelphia promoter, but my reaction is this: If that's the kind of money they think my name and baseball reputation is worth, why should my baseball employer ask me to accept a drastic reduction in salary right after the greatest year I have ever had and at a time when I figure to be in my prime?

"Things may all be straightened out. I don't know what Mr. Mack will have to say to me when we get together this Thursday and argue it out. I am not threatening now to quit baseball or to say I won't sign a contract, but what baffles me is the apparent attitude of baseball owners in trying to squeeze everything possible out of the players. I have never been unreasonable and this is the first time I have ever let out any real squawk, but I certainly believe I have one coming when I'm asked, at the age of 26 and at my best, to accept less than one-third of what they are going to pay Babe Ruth at 40 this year. I'll play 154 games, barring accidents, and the Babe will be lucky if he plays 50 games."

Will Consider Offers.

"I have the future to figure on and if baseball with the A's can't offer me more than the contract I've got in my pocket now, unsigned, I will have to look into these other propositions. Honestly, I don't think Mr. Mack expected me to accept this contract, but I won't know exactly what's what until I talk with him.

"And there's another angle: With Grove, Cochrane and other stars of our championship club gone this year, there is less chance of our club getting into the next world series and splitting a big chunk of extra money."

FINISH QUIZ ON EXCHANGE; TAKE UP REGULATION

Whitney Letters, Publicity Expenses Considered.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 26.—The senate committee on banking and currency today completed its investigation of the New York Stock exchange when it developed the fact that Richard Whitney, president of the exchange, had addressed letters to the presidents of all corporations whose stocks are listed on the exchange calling to their attention the stock exchange legislative situation in Washington.

George U. Harris, a member of the governing board of the exchange, described the letter as a "statement of facts" regarding the Fletcher-Rayburn stock exchange regulation bill, hearings on which followed immediately after the committee concluded its inquiry into practices on the New York exchange.

"The letter," said Mr. Harris in answer to a question by Ferdinand Pecora, committee counsel, "was a statement of fact, as seen through the eyes of the exchange, to companies which have paid money to have their stocks listed."

Argue Purposes of Letter.

"And this letter," said Mr. Pecora, "was designed to line up these corporations in opposition to the Fletcher-Rayburn bill?"

"No, I do not think that. I would say that it was a statement. I think it was the duty of the New York Stock exchange to point out to these various corporations that they might be greatly affected," Mr. Harris replied.

"The letter points out certain alleged defects or shortcomings or weaknesses in the bill, does it not?" Mr. Pecora asked.

"It does not merely set out the fact to these corporations; it was the history of the exchange," Mr. Harris answered.

"And it pointed out facts that would prompt them to oppose the enactment of this bill, did it not?"

"That is quite likely," Mr. Harris replied.

Exchange Earnings Come Up.

There followed a long colloquy between Mr. Pecora and Mr. Harris involving the report of income and disbursement by the exchange for the year 1933. Mr. Harris said he was present when the report was read to the governing board, but could not remember a single detail of it so far as dollars and cents were concerned. The report, he added, involved "a sizeable amount," but it does not go to members of the exchange other than officials and committee members, and is never published.

Reverting to the Whitney letter to heads of corporations, Mr. Harris said he did not know whether members of the exchange had sent copies of the letters to their correspondents and customers. His own firm, Harris & Upham, he said, sent a wire to its branch offices telling that the letter was available and asking if any copies were desired. The result, he said, was that Harris & Upham sent out "quite a few copies of the letters."

Publicity Is Questioned.

At this point Mr. Pecora asked the witness to produce minutes of meetings of the exchange's committee on publicity.

The minutes of May 19, 1933, revealed the approval by the committee of a proposition to add to the mailing list "all of the economics faculties of the principal universities."

After Mr. Harris had informed the committee that he would transmit to it a copy of the 1933 financial report of the exchange he was excused and Senator Fletcher announced that the hearings on the bill itself would then begin, the first witness called being E. A. Goldenweiser, head of the research staff of the federal reserve board.

Mr. Goldenweiser's statement was general in nature. He said he approved the objective sought by the framers of the bill. He expressed the view that exchanges had been too liberal in permitting extension of credit to persons whose desire was to "gamble in stocks."

Senator Costigan [Dem., Colo.], in a formal statement after the close of the session, denounced the stock exchange for "wrapping its financial operations in secrecy" and asserted its policies and decisions were controlled by a "small handful of men."

"Not even the relatively small membership of the New York stock exchange has been allowed to know fully what has been going on, how the vast sums at the disposal of the exchange have been disbursed," he added.

President Again Takes Space Used by Reserve Bank Reviews

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 26.—For the second time in four months President Roosevelt has preëmpted space in the federal reserve bulletin usually given to a discussion of business and financial developments prepared by the federal reserve board, it was disclosed today when the February bulletin appeared from government presses. In the space usually occupied by reviews are letters and proclamations by the President on the gold reserve act and other subjects.

The appearance of the February reserve board bulletin recalled the November, 1933 bulletin which was full of quotations from the President's radio speeches, executive orders, extracts from new laws and regulations, the reserve board's comments on conditions being omitted.

Quarreled with Johnson.

The omission of reserve board comment followed a quarrel the month before between the director of the NRA and the reserve board bulletin's editor engendered by a statement in the October bulletin that declining activity had been most marked in those industries in which codes had been recently adopted. To this statement of fact Gen. Hugh Johnson took vigorous exception.

Unlike what happened last November, the reserve board this month manages to find space in its own bulletin for three pages of its own remarks.

Industrial production, measured by the board's seasonally adjusted index number, advanced in December following four months of decline, the index rising from 72 to 75 per cent. The January figure issued by the board today showed a further rise to 78. Volume of construction work, the board said, continued to increase, reflecting chiefly expansion in public works as well as in some private projects.

Factory Jobs Decrease.

The number of employés in factories declined by more than the usual seasonal amount while employment on public projects increased. The board calls attention to increased exports and notes that these gains are the reflection, in part, of price advances and in indivdual instances larger shipments of goods themselves.

The board discusses the return flow of currency from circulation, amounting to about $300,000,000 by the end of January. Much of this went into bank reserves. Additional increments to such member bank reserves were derived from purchases of government securities by the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, the product of these two influences being a rise in member bank excess reserve to a new high of about $950,000,000.

The board brings out that a portion of the $225,000,000 drop in member bank loans from Dec. 27 to Jan. 24 was attributable to the writing off by the banks of slow and doubtful advances at the end of the year. Member bank deposits gained and there was a sharp upturn in government deposits.

DEVALUATION 'SWINDLE OF CREDITORS,' SAYS FRENCH SENATE CHIEF

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Feb. 26.—Germain Martin, minister of finance, twice today, once from the tribune of the senate and the second time before the annual meeting of the Syndical Union of Bankers, denounced the idea of devaluating the franc and pledged its maintenance at its present value.

M. Caillaux, president of the senate's finance commission, applauded his words, saying, "Inflation or devaluation would be a swindle toward those from whom we have borrowed."

France won't yield to the "campaign carried on in Anglo-Saxon countries to invite France to inflate or devaluate her currency," said Martin before the senate. He said the worst sort of economic and financial consequences would result from such a move.

"Our formula," he said, "is no devaluation and no inflation but the will to reshape budgetary equilibrium by appealing to the country's good sense to spare itself the misfortunes which monetary manipulation would bring. We agree with the finance commission that a constant level in the value of the franc is necessary to the security of the workers and the life of the nation."

MARCH GASOLINE OUTPUT FIXED AT 4,651,000 BARRELS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 26.—(AP)—The oil administration, with the approval of Secretary Ickes, today fixed the March allowable production of gasoline at 31,791,000 barrels, an increase of 4,651,000 barrels over the February total.

The increase was provided to meet usual seasonal increased demand. Allowable production in each refining district is to be allotted to individual refineries by the planning and coördination committee, subject to the secretary's approval. Gasoline production [at refineries including straight run, cracked and natural gasoline blended] in the Indiana-Illinois-Kentucky district for March was specified at 4,957,000 barrels.

Secretary Ickes also approved a recommendation by the planning and coördination committee for appointment of four regional committees of the committee to deal with natural gasoline problems. The north central states will be region No. 3 and the chairman will be E. G. Seubert of the Standard Oil company of Indiana.

MERCHANDISE MART TO HOLD SHOW IN APRIL

Success of recent special merchandising shows at the Merchandise Mart has prompted a new show, a building-wide "mid-season market" which will be held April 9 to 14, T. J. Reed, general manager, announced yesterday.

All divisions housed in the building including furniture, house furnishings, home wares and apparel will participate. Buyers are expected from all parts of the country.

"The improved spirit shown by merchants attending market events this year, indicated by attendance figures and larger sales, leads to a belief a general showing of all lines in April will attract many buyers," he said. "We feel this is particularly true in home furnishings and apparel lines.

U. S. WILL REOPEN DRIVE TO CUT WHEAT ACREAGE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Following reports of wheat acreage reductions in Europe, the Farm Administration today arranged to reopen its campaign to cut down wheat plantings further in this country. The reductions already pledged by growers under contracts signed last fall called for 13,876,759 acres to be taken out of production.

Under the international wheat agreement the United States agreed to reduce its exports by 15 per cent and set about reducing acreage by the same amount. The Jan. 1 crop report, however, showed that the reduction apparent at that time was only 7.2 per cent.

Chester C. Davis, the farm administrator, in announcing resumption of the campaign, said it was intended to give farmers who did not sign last fall an opportunity to do so and was not an effort to make certain the 15 per cent reduction.

The house agriculture committee today amended the Bankhead bill for compulsory cotton control to provide for the sale of 10,000,000 bales instead of 9,500,000 tax free this year. The committee also changed the tax from 75 to 50 per cent of market value.

The area represented in the European decrease covers almost all of the continental wheat territory. Present information points to reductions of about 9 per cent in the Danube basin, 5.6 per cent in Italy, more than 2 per cent in Germany, and 1 per cent or less in Spain and France. Czechoslovakia has a 3 per cent increase and Greece an 8 per cent increase over last year.

BURLINGTON LINE LEASES FLOOR TO EXPRESS AGENCY

The Illinois commerce commission yesterday approved a lease between the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad company and the Railway Express Agency, Inc., covering rental of the eighth floor of the railroad's office building at 547 West Jackson boulevard. The term is five years and the annual rental was fixed at $11,000, lessor to provide heat, water and janitor service. Alterations involving a cost of $10,230 were to be made by and at the expense of the lessor.

The proceedings before the commission emphasized the abnoral amount of office space that is avilable for occupancy in and about the loop district. This condition, it was declared, has depressed rent levels outside the loop proper more markedly than within where buildings are more advantageously situated.

The area leased to the express agency is approximately 15,554 square feet, making the annual rental per square foot 71 cents.

NRA REDUCES 6 MONTH PROFIT OF BELLAS HESS

For the six months ended Jan. 31, 1934, net income of National Bellas Hess, Inc., before federal and state taxes and provision for employés' stock participation was $110,143, an interim report mailed to stockholders yesterday revealed. Net sales for the period were $3,188,484.

Carl D. Berry, president, said the current position is excellent with total current assets of $1,305,055 and current liabilities of $380,002, a ratio of 3.42 to 1. He added that there is sufficient cash in banks and on hand to pay all accounts payable for merchandising and catalog costs.

"Net profits would have been considerably higher," he asserted, "had it not been for the National Recovery act which caused substantial increases in pay rolls and in the cost of merchandise, as well as processing taxes and cotton floor taxes."

Ask Dunnage Allowance on Shipments in Box Cars

Dunnage allowance of 500 pounds on carlot freight shipments in box cars, similar to the allowance now permitted on shipments in open top cars, has been asked from the railroads by the Chicago Association of Commerce. While the need for proper bracing of contents in box cars is just as important, railroads have not allowed shippers any deductions, the trade body points out. Instead they have required payment of freight charges on the total weight of material used for this service.

GREENEBAUM SONS INVESTMENT HAS LOSS OF $32,012

Lower Income Partly Offset by Economy.

BY AL CHASE.

The annual statement of the Greenebaum Sons Investment company, made public yesterday at the annual meeting of the stockholders, showed a net operating loss for the year 1933 of $32,012, compared with an operating profit of $17,405 for the year 1932. According to M. E. Greenebaum, president of the concern, the gross income for 1933 decreased $276,620.

"When it is taken into consideration that the decline in earnings was only $49,417," he said, "this is considered a satisfactory showing and indicates to what extent operating economies have been effected."

Reduce Bank Loans.

Mr. Greenebaum reported to the stockholders that the company's bank loans totaled $675,084 on Dec. 31, 1933, as compared to a maximum of approximately $5,500,000 in 1929.

He also stated that all leases for space formerly occupied by the company in the Roanoke building, calling for an annual rental of $90,574, have been canceled and that a new lease has been executed for space on the third floor of the same building at an annual rental of $15,000.

Mr. Greenebaum said that the executives of the company have devoted the major part of their time to the complicated task of reorganizing defaulted bond issues.

Raps Nondepositors.

"We have striven diligently at all times to help the bondholders," his statement to the stockholders says. "Unfortunately, our assistance to them has as yet, in most instances, not been noticeable in the form of interest or dividend checks. This, however, is due to economic conditions and cumbersome state and federal laws, as well as other causes entirely beyond our control.

"In many cases a few nondepositing bondholders, attempting to secure a selfish advantage against the majority of the bondholders, have greatly delayed the consummation of bond issue reorganizations."

PRICE DECLINES REVIVE MONEY JUGGLING PLANS

Morgenthau Confers with Professor.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 26.—With a watchful eye set on the recent sluggishness of commodity prices over the last ten days, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. is continuing his discussions of monetary experimentation, it was learned today.

SEC. HENRY MORGENTHAU JR.

Whether the administration may again resort to currency manipulations in the event of continued falling prices was a question which Secretary Morgenthau refused to discuss.

Printing and issuance of currency with which to pay off maturing government securities or increases in the official price for silver are two of the steps which might be taken if the treasury should decide to reopen monetary experimentation. The treasury might also begin again to increase the price it is paying for gold.

Confers with Professor.

Secretary Morgenthau conferred today with Prof. James Harvey Rogers, who, with Prof. George F. Warren, worked out for the White House the basic plan for dollar devaluation. Secretary Morgenthau characterized the conference as routine.

Price indexes have tended to drift irregularly lower for the first time since President Roosevelt cut the dollar's gold content. This trend is contrary to what the monetary brain trust predicted and desires. If it continues, the President has indicated, other currency measures may be taken to force a price rise.

Printing of money with which to retire some of the maturing government securities is a step which the administration may take before April 15 for financial as well as monetary reasons. On April 15 a billion dollars of Liberty bonds which the treasury has called for redemption mature and must be paid in cash or refinanced.

Want Bonds Paid in Cash.

A strong group within the department is urging that the bonds be paid off instead of refinanced. They hold that this move would have a salutary effect on the calling of other Liberty bond issues. Most of them, however, insist that the treasury should not print money with which to meet its maturities but should redeem them out of cash already on hand.

Reports that something of benefit to silver interests may be done have been rampant for some time. Although the treasury is buying newly mined silver at 64½ cents an ounce, only 322,627 ounces were taken in last week. At this rate less than 17,000,000 ounces would be turned in during a year, and the treasury is willing to take at least 4,000,000 more ounces.

Dollar Eases Again; Nears Its Gold Parity

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 26.—A marked slowing down in the rate of gold imports and a further decline in the dollar's exchange value in terms of the British pound sterling and the French franc occurred today. The coincidence led bankers and dealers in foreign exchange to surmise that President Roosevelt's devaluation program was approaching its purpose of establishing the dollar at a value of 59.06 cents based on gold.

Imports of gold slackened to $8,050,000 today, according to the New York federal reserve bank's report. These imports consisted of $4,160,000 from England and $3,890,000 from France.

Including these receipts, the total of imports officially reported for February to date amounted to $328,433,900, against estimated actual arrivals for the period of about $360,000,000. On the basis of the reserve bank's reports there has been a net gain of $231,816,200 in the country's monetary gold stocks this month, which is the largest monthly gain on record.

Large additional arrivals of gold are expected this week. One of the largest shipments is due on the Olympic, which was reported last week to be carrying upwards of $33,000,000. Other steamers are expected to bring in about $11,500,000 additional during the week.

The price of gold in London declined a penny yesterday to 136 shillings 5 pence per fine ounce, which was equivalent to $34.67, compared with the United States treasury's price of $35 an ounce.

4 Million for U. S. Account.

About $3,912,000 of gold was bought for American account in the open market despite the narrowing margin of profit on imports to the United States.

The approach of the dollar to its new parity in terms of the French gold franc was evidenced in today's exchange quotations. The French unit advanced to 6.58 cents compared with 6.55⅝ cents on Saturday. The dollar's new franc parity is 6.63 cents. In terms of the franc the dollar was valued to 59.54 per cent of its former parity compared with 59.74 per cent on Saturday and 63.07 per cent a month ago.

The British pound advanced to $5.08½, compared with $5.08 on Saturday.

DEVALUATION CALLS FOR 65% BOOST IN DEBTS, JUDGE RULES

Columbus, O., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Common Pleas Judge John R. King ruled today that the gold embargo invoked by congress and President Roosevelt does not invalidate lawful contracts calling for payment of gold.

The payment, Judge King said, must be made in lawful currency of the United States in a sum equal to the amount of gold called for in the contract.

The ruling was given in a foreclosure action brought by the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States against Theodore and Edna Freda of Columbus.

Under Judge King's decision payment would call for about 65 per cent more on a basis of the present dollar since its value has been cut to slightly more than 59 cents.

Ford to Make Only Small Part of Steel Needs

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Although official explanation was withheld at the Ford Motor Co. offices today on the announcement that it had contracted for a $10,000,000 expansion program in its steel mills, it was learned authoritatively that the company has no intention of producing even a major part of its own steel requirements.

The expansion plans were revealed in an announcement by the United Engineering and Foundry company, of Pittsburgh, that it had been awarded a contract to build a blooming mill, continuous hot sheet mill and a cold rolling mill at the Ford company's River Rouge plant. The announcement was confirmed at the Ford Dearborn offices.

Produces Small Part of Needs.

Manufacture of steel at the Ford plants was started primarily as a salvage problem. While it already has grown to tremendous proportions, the company never has produced more than 5 per cent of its own requirements. Even when the present program of expansion is completed, it was learned, the company probably will not produce more than 30 per cent of the steel it needs.

The new units, however, will round out the company's steel manufacturing facilities. While the company has never attempted to make itself entirely independent of outside producers, it has attempted to produce enough of its own requirements to furnish information concerning processes and costs.

Already in operation at the River Rouge plant are blast furnaces, open hearth furnaces and certain types of rolling mills. The steel production units have been expanded from time to time since they first were installed to reclaim scrap steel.

Scraps from Old Autos.

Much of this scrap steel came from worn out automobiles, for which the Ford company offered dealers an allowance of $20 each.

In confirming the announcement from Pittsburgh, a company spokesman said today the expansion was in line with a campaign, encouraged by the federal government, for capital expenditures on the part of industry.

He would not confirm reports that the program was linked with dissatisfaction automobile manufacturers have expressed with present steel prices.

BANK OF FLOSSMOOR LACKS PROFITS; WILL PAY DEPOSITS, CLOSE

Letters have been sent out by the Flossmoor State bank telling depositors to withdraw their money because the bank is closing its doors. Inability to even make sufficient profit to compensate for carrying on the business was given as the cause for the action.

The bank, which was organized in October, 1928, has had deposits totaling between $90.000 and $100,000. Dr. William L. Brown has been president for the last few years.

William F. Collins, cashier, said that nearly all the accounts are savings. It has been necessary to maintain the bank at a high degree of liquidity, he said, and consequently, the chances have been lessened for profitable undertakings.

Other Chicago district banks that have liquidated voluntarily in the last few years are: The Peoples Trust and Savings bank, Michigan and Washington, which closed in June, 1932. The president was Earle H. Reynolds. The Mayfair State Savings bank, 4436 Lawrence avenue, headed by T. B. McGrath Jr., which closed in September, 1931.

LEHMAN MOVES FOR MORTGAGE FIRMS' RELIEF

New York, Feb. 26.—[Special.]—Gov. Herbert Lehman indicated today that he will act at once to provide relief for the 500,000 holders of a billion dollars' worth of certificates tied up in distressed mortgage guarantee companies.

The governor will call a conference early this week with representatives of the state's financial institutions and legislative leaders on a proposal to post $10,000,000 as the first step in the relief plan.

On this fund is contingent an additional 100 million dollars promised by the Reconstruction Finance corporation, to be loaned to certificate holders in amounts up to 25 per cent of the face value of their certificates.

The governor was acting on recommendations made in the interim report of George W. Alger, Moreland act commissioner, who is making an investigation of the affairs of title and mortgage companies.

RECEIVERSHIP FEES EQUAL TO CREDITOR RETURN

Washington, D. C., Feb. 26.—(AP)—Receivership and bankruptcy proceedings under federal judges in California were denounced today in a preliminary report to the senate from its special committee appointed to study such cases throughout the country.

Attacking the high cost of receivership, the committee reported that for every dollar paid to general creditors 96 cents was paid in fees.

The costs in 2½ years amounted to $9,243,407 in San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Oakland while the salaries of the executive heads of the United States government, the senate and all the federal judges amounted to only $7,782,500 in that time.

The committee concluded that the conditions it had found in California justified "drastic remedies" but proposed that to prevent injustices it should examine conditions in other parts of the country before recommending corrective legislation.

It said 270 equity receiverships were examined and for the most part creditors had not voice in the appointment itors had no voice in the appointment of receivers and had little if any consideration after their appointment.

AMERICAN CHICLE DIVIDEND ON 75C QUARTERLY BASIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 26.—The American Chicle company revised its dividend basis today by the declaration of a 75 cent quarterly disbursement, payable April 1 to stock of record March 12. The company previously paid a regular dividend of 50 cents, accompanied by a 25 cent extra, so the amount paid to the shareholders remains unchanged.

A dividend of 30 cents in place of the 25 cent payment made three months ago was declared today by South Penn Oil. Three months previously the company increased the dividend rate from 20 to 25 cents. The current disbursement is payable March 31 to stock of record March 25.

Wright-Hargreaves Mines declared a quarterly dividend of 10 cents and a bonus of 5 cents. Three months ago a quarterly dividend of 5 cents plus a bonus of 5 cents was declared.

New York Transit company declared a dividend of 15 cents a share. A similar payment was made in October last year.

Due to a lack of a quorum the directors' meeting called to take action on the Foster Wheeler corporation preferred dividend has been postponed. The dividend meeting of the American Hawaiian Steamship company has been postponed until Wednesday.

New York, Feb. 26.—(AP)—The American Iron and Steel institute today reported current steel operations at 45.7 per cent of capacity compared with 43.6 per cent a week ago.

The present rate compares with 25.2 per cent on Nov. 6, which was the bottom level since weekly figures have been released by the institute.

Urge Treaty with Mexico to Aid Trade

The foreign trade committee of the Illinois Manufacturers' association yesterday sent copies of a resolution to the secretaries of state, commerce and agriculture at Washington in which it was asserted that a trade agreement between the United States and Mexico would afford a greater outlet for the manufactured products of Illinois and the middle west than now exists.

The resolution mentioned such items as lard and other agricultural products and called attention to automobiles, electrical products, machinery and other articles produced by manufacturers in Illinois and other middle western states. Charles E. Herrick, president of the Brennan Packing company, is chairman of the manufacturers' foreign trade committee. He discussed the reasons which impelled the committee to pass the resolution.

Cites Drop in Foreign Trade.

"The foreign trade of Illinois has dropped from $233,762,882 in 1929 to $66,958,484 in 1932," he said. "During the same period the foreign trade of the thirteen states in the middle west—Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Indiana, Tennessee, Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Arkansas, and Nebraska—dropped from $1,305,713,662 to $272,373,697.

"Lard and other packing house products constitute the chief exports from Illinois. Exports of lard amounted to $9,216,692 in 1932, or about half of the total amount of the packing house products exported. Since 1932, however, the export of lard has been greatly curtailed by quotas established by Great Britain, Germany, and some other countries.

"There lately has developed an opportunity under which a trade agreement with Mexico may be arranged, as recently explained in a news story sent from Mexico City by Philip Kinsley, a staff correspondent of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Mexico Proposes Reciprocity.

"In exchange for the admittance of tomatoes and peas from the Mexican states of Sonora and Sinaloa, Mexico will take a greater amount of American lard and other pork products, farm and other machinery, including tractors, and various other articles manufactured in Illinois or adjoining states.

"Peas and tomatoes were formerly admitted free. After the Smoot-Hawley tariff law was enacted, a duty of one-half a cent a pound on these vegetables was established. This later was increased to three cents a pound on fresh tomatoes and 3.9 cents a pound on fresh peas. This tariff amounts to $630 on a carload of tomatoes and $700 on a carload of peas. As a result, exports of these vegetables dropped from 8,000 carloads in 1927 to 2,500 in 1933.

"In 1930 the United States tariff on Mexican live cattle was raised from 2½ to 3 cents a pound, depending on weight. In 1930 the United States bought 170,959 head of cattle from Mexico to the value of $4,539,847. In the first four months of 1933 the figure was 30,739 head."

Trade with Mexico Dwindles.

Mr. Herrick said that during 1928, 1929, and 1930 the United States sold to Mexico $25,000,000 worth of lard and pork and bought $15,000,000 worth of Mexican cattle. For 1930 exports of lard from the United States totaled $8,425,000, he said, while in the first four months of 1933 they totaled $625,000.

Among other members of the committee who see in a trade agreement with Mexico an opportunity of increased Illinois business were W. N. Curtis, vice president of the Automatic Electric company; James P. Collins, vice president of the National Carloading corporation; Knud Nielsen, manager of foreign sales of the Belden Manufacturing company; R. S. Bigelow, manager of the foreign department of the Goodman Manufacturing company, and C. C. Coldren of the Quaker Oats company.

EDISON MAY END INSULL-PEABODY COAL CONTRACT

Cummings, Ranney Elected to Board.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The Commonwealth Edison company is negotiating a new contract with the Peabody Coal company for its coal supply which will result in a substantial saving to the company over the present contract, James Simpson, chairman, revealed yesterday at the annual stockholders' meeting. The old contract was made by Samuel Insull when he was in control of both companies.

W. J. CUMMINGS. (Maurice Seymour Photo.)

The information was disclosed by Mr. Simpson in replying to questions by Thomas F. Murray, a stockholder, who asked if the company was not paying more for its coal than the present code price. Mr. Simpson denied that this was true. The Peabody firm has contracts for supplying 90 per cent of the coal requirements for 30 years to the Edison company and the other Chicago utility companies.

Cummings and Ranney on Board.

Two new directors were elected to the board of the company. They are Walter J. Cummings, the new chairman of the Continental Illinois National bank, and George A. Ranney, vice chairman of the company. They fill the posts formerly held by Stanley Field and Edward A. Doyle, who retired last year.

At the earlier stockholders' meeting of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois Mr. Ranney was also made a director of that company, in which he holds the same position of vice chairman. The sitting directors of both companies were reëlected.

In contrast with the meetings of recent years yesterday's gatherings of shareholders were comparatively quiet. Stockholders of the Public Service company approved by a decisive margin the proposals of the management for cutting the par and stated values of the common stocks from $100 to $60 a share in order to create a capital surplus for the absorption of accumulated losses and further reserves.

How Surplus Will Be Used.

Of the $25,000,000 of surplus created, $12,000,000 will be used to cover the shrinkage in value of the investments of the company's investment subsidiary and $6,500,000 will be set aside to provide for the ultimate liquidation of that concern. The remaining $6,500,000 will be retained as a special reserve. A few dissenting stockholders voted their holdings against the proposals. The management, however, held a large majority of the stock represented by proxies.

Mr. Simpson explained that the action will hasten the return of dividends. Dividends on the preferred stock will be cleared up immediately, he said. They are in arrears since the first of the year.

Mr. Simpson told stockholders at both meetings that an improvement in general business is apparent.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 26.—Generally lower prices were registered in the listed bond market today with domestic corporation bonds suffering the most, many declining 1 to 4 points. The domestic industrials, rails and utilities averaged lower in the order named. United States government bonds were 1-3 to 12-32 points lower. Foreign loans were irregular, with the leading issues averaging slightly higher on the day.

Activity in the domestic corporation issues slowed up on the decline and the turnover in these issues accounted for about $11,260,000 of the total dealings of $14,465,600 in the listed market.

Strikes Disturb Trades.

Although optimistic industrial reports were published during the day traders were disturbed by scattered strikes and threats of strikes in the motor industry as well as a possible pause in business progress due to the curtailment of Civil Works administration activities.

Declines of 1 to 3 points in the rail section were due largely to profit taking on the belief that prices have largely discounted recent gains in earnings.

Some Foreign Liens Lower.

In the foreign list Belgian government loans, United Kingdom issues and Danish government bonds were lower. Advances and declines in the German group were about evenly balanced. Most of the Australian issues were showed fractional variations. Latin American bonds were dull.

Domestic bonds on the curb exchange showed about the same degree of weakness as did similar issues on the big board.

Keystone Steel and Wire.

Investors' Guide: Would very much appreciate receiving information regarding Keystone Steel stock.—P. H.

Answer: Keystone Steel and Wire company is a ten million dollar concern manufacturing finished steel products. Principal customers are the farming communities of the middle west. Some of the principal products are fencing, steel posts, staples, wire rope and block and galvanealed wire. Distribution is effected through retail hardware, implement and lumber dealers.

After following a steady downward course for four years, sales in the year ended June 30, 1933, showed a slight increase, and a profit instead of a loss, as in the previous year, was recorded. The four year record of earnings follows:

Year ended June 30	Net sales.	Net inc. com. sh	Inc. per
1933	$4,504,000	$196,000	$0.30
1932	4,332,000	*215,000	*1.86
1931	6,372,000	197,000	.29
1930	7,921,000	586,000	2.20

*Loss.

On Aug. 31, 1933, W. H. Sommer, president, said that tonnage in July and August was substantially greater than in the corresponding 1932 months.

On June 30, 1933, current assets, including $659,000 cash, totaled $2,900,000 and current liabilities were $344,000. During the fiscal year the company reduced its funded debt $277,000 to $1,136,000. This consists of bonds which mature in 1941.

There are outstanding 19,799 shares of 7 per cent $100 par preferred and 189,408 shares of no par common. On Jan. 12, 1934, all preferred dividend accumulations, totaling $3.50 a sh re, were paid. Nothing is being paid on the common.

The preferred is medium grade. The common is speculative.

Pennsylvania Telephone Co.

Investors' Guide: I am writing for an opinion on Pennsylvania Telephone company 5s, due 1960.—P. W. N.

Answer: This $3,500,000 first mortgage issue is the obligation of a subsidiary of Associated Telephone Utilities company. Pennsylvania Telephone corporation is an operating company furnishing telephone service to a population of about 500,000 in Erie, Pa., and vicinity. Operating revenues have held fairly steady and charges have been earned by substantial margins. They were earned 3.12 times in 1932, 4.21 times in 1931, 9.68 times in 1930 and 6.23 times in 1929. Current position at the close of 1932 was fair. The bonds are considered sound.

STOCK PRICES SLIP AS LONGS DROP HOLDINGS

Declines Spread to All Parts of List.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 26.—Stocks remained reactionary today. Selling, which got under way in the closing sessions last week, was resumed at the opening of trading, an' in the course of the day losses of fractions to 3 points or so were recorded for active issues in all groups.

The market's vulnerability to selling was seen as providing a test of the low points established Feb. 10 when prices underwent a correction of the January advance. Liquidation was laid to the market's heavy appearance late last week, coupled with developments in Washington apropos the administration's drive for stock exchange control legislation.

Rallying Power Feeble.

Late trading brought some steadiness into the list, but on the whole the market displayed feeble rallying power. Prices finished around the low levels of the day, with most leaders taking losses of more than a point.

The market had to cope with a repetition of the stormy weather that stalled the machinery last Tuesday, and customer attendance was reduced considerably, holding the turnover close to two million shares.

Trading was active, but liquidation was of a quiet sort. Early offerings were absorbed in impressive style, but as trading entered the second hour the market bogged down to a sleepy pace and appeared content to stay there, with nothing in the news to unlimber a rally.

All Groups Weaker.

Rails in spots showed more weakness than others, but the liquidation affected all sections, and new lows for the reaction were frequent.

Leading carriers made a good showing in the first rail traffic reports, considering the weather and the holiday, but the fact went unnoticed. Santa Fe, New York, and others closed down about a point. Chesapeake and Ohio, an important coal carrier, failed to benefit from a traffic gain over the preceding week and a further good margin over 1933.

Chemicals were hard pressed for a time, the shares of fertilizer companies dropping on the movement to reduce cotton production further. Allied Chemical finished off more than 2 points.

Aircraft Issues Soft.

The recent hardening of aircraft issues went for naught as a fresh setback developed. Selling of United Aircraft was a feature, closing off almost 2 points.

Among pivotal industrials American Can was the brightest spot, scoring a full point again on the day.

Auto stocks had the disadvantage of speculative nervousness over a possible spread of labor disorders in the industry.

Merchandising favorites, such as Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Macy, and Penney backed off 2 points or so. Sugars were heavy along with oils and food. A drop in silver stocks coincided with weakness there.

CHICAGO-JOLIET ELECTRIC TO CUT CAPITAL STOCK

The Illinois commerce commission yesterday entered an order authorizing the Chicago and Joliet Electric Railway company to reduce its authorized capital stock from 50,000 shares of $100 par value, consisting of 15,000 shares of preferred stock and 35,000 shares of common stock, to 1,000 shares of common stock of $100 par value.

The outstanding capital stock amounts to $4,428,000 face value, consisting of 13,500 preferred and 30,786 common shares. Under the conditions imposed by the commission the company must take up and cancel all preferred stock outstanding and take up and cancel $2,978,600 of common stock. Under this arrangement $100,000 of common stock will remain outstanding.

The company also must create on its books a reserve account to provide for abandonment of property and other losses in the amount of the $4,328,600 representing the reduction in value in its capital stock.

LAMBS ADVANCE TO $10, HIGHEST SINCE JUNE, 1931

Hogs Jump 15 to 30 Cents on Active Demand.

Predictions of $10 lambs for this month were realized yesterday when top grades of wooled stock soared to this mark, the highest since June, 1931, and highest for any winter month in four years. At the low time in December top grades were down to $7.25 and in November the peak price sank to $6.60. A year ago top kinds were halted at $5.70 and two years ago the peak was $6.75. Receipts were light for Monday and not enough to supply all buyers.

There was a quick clearance during the afternoon at $9.85 to $10, when the deadlock between buyers and sellers was broken by a bid of $10 from a packer. For several weeks sellers have been trying to drive the top to $10, and with the exception of a small lot at this figure two weeks ago, $9.85 was the highest mark for any full loads until yesterday.

Hogs Rise 15 to 30 Cents.

Sharply higher prices for hogs also featured the trade yesterday. The market advanced unevenly 15 to 30 cents to new highs for the winter and to the highest February levels in three years. Including the $1.50 per cwt. tax, the prices paid by the packers were highest since September, 1931, and showed advances of about 85 per cent compared with the corresponding day in 1933. In a month's time the top and average prices have advanced $1.45.

Colder weather, lighter receipts and the 75 cents increase in the processing tax scheduled for March 1 were the strengthening factors. The fact that all hogs slaughtered after tomorrow will be subject to a tax of the leading packing centers in the east. Shipping demand was the broadest in over two years.

Local Packers Active.

Local packers also were eager for supplies, as the feeling in the trade is that supplies will not be heavy enough after the first of the month to enable buyers to obtain concessions in the market price to counterbalance the heavier tax. The trade was also helped by a mild rally in the wholesale market for fresh pork which was stimulated by the cold wave. Selected light butchers topped the market at $4.95, compared with a peak of $4.75 on Saturday and $4.65 last Friday.

Conditions in the cattle alleys were in marked contrast to the activity in hogs and lambs. A few of the best grades of light steers sold readily at stronger prices, and in spots were slightly higher, but weakness persisted in the medium and weighty kinds, with the finish slightly lower in many instances. Cows and heifers showed the same unevenness, weakening off at the close. Canner grades eligible to go to the government for the relief corporation, were plentiful and closed lower.

The top sale of steers was $7.15, or 20 cents under the high of last week.
